Foes' Cannon Rake Madrid; Loyalists Pull Lines Tighter

Airplane Battle Rages Overhead, Artillery Shakes Capital.

Besiegers' Front Solid for Assault

Troops but Five Miles Away at One Point; Getafe Occupied.

By the Associated Press.

The roar and clatter of cannon and machine guns shook the city while overhead government planes fought off rebel bombers.

The besieged inhabitants rushed to the lines of the government militia to keep the attacking Moors and Fascist troops from breaking through into the streets of the capital.

(An unconfirmed report in Lisbon today said 2,000 persons were killed in the bombardment of the Madrid area.)

(Great Britain and France were reported to have made a joint eleventh-hour appeal to the Madrid government to reach "some sort of an arrangement" with Fascist Gen. Francisco Franco in order to avert slaughter of the civil population in Madrid.)

Some of the city's terrified women residents, their ears ringing with the sounds of nearby battle, sought refuge in subway kiosks and basements, while others ran through the streets beside their men marching to the front.

Rebels' Front Solid.

The insurgent attack, for weeks an ever-narrowing semi-circle south of Madrid, was converged into a solid front driving toward the heart of Madrid through Getafe, 8 miles south of the capital, where one of Madrid's two major airdromes was located.

Insurgent gunners boomed shell after shell into government field headquarters south of Cerro de Los Angeles, less than 10 miles south of Madrid.

Carrying the aerial battle to the enemy for the first time during the bloody civil war, government planes bombed Fascist infantry units in Alcorcon County, west of Madrid.

In retaliation, insurgent airmen splattered machine gun bullets on concentrations of Madrid's defenders falling back through the city's environs.

Getafe in Ruins.

Getafe, it was 4,500 population evacuated several days ago, was in smouldering ruins. Its streets and homes were the targets for gunners of both sides during the week-long struggle for possession of the gateway to Madrid.

Thousands of government militiamen poured back from Getafe and forward from Madrid to consolidate their lines just outside the city limits.

During the day-long bombardment of the Madrid area from land and air, a 100-pound bomb scored a direct hit on the Carabanchel Military Hospital. Debris crashed into the street, but apparently the bomb did not explode.

Chinese Reds Hold American 116 Days

Kweisu, Suiyuan Province, China, Nov. 5 (AP).—Cimarron Hathaway, who described himself as a Los Angeles, Calif., explorer and photographer, reported today he had been held 116 days by Communists in Northern Sinkiang Province.

Hathaway declared he was arrested at Tihwa and accused of espionage. He said he was imprisoned in solitary confinement and tortured in an effort to obtain a confession.

The Communists finally released him, he said, after he had gone on a hunger strike in protest against his treatment.

Hathaway asserted he left Los Angeles in 1935.

Tug Speeds to Aid Of Distressed Ship

Balboa, C. Z., Nov. 5 (U.P.).—The Panama Canal's salvage tug Favorite raced into the Pacific tonight in response to distress signals from the American steamer Timber Rush, which said it was disabled and adrift.

The 5,542-ton vessel, belonging to the Shepard Steamship Co., of Portland, carried 12 passengers and 5,741 tons of cargo. It passed through the canal October 30 from Boston, Mass., en route to Tacoma, Wash.

It radioed its position as approximately 110 miles south of the El Salvador coast.

Upshaw Seriously Ill; Gets 2d Transfusion

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 5 (U.P.).—William D. Upshaw, Prohibition Party Presidential candidate in 1932, lay seriously ill in an Asheville hospital tonight after his second blood transfusion within four days.

Upshaw, who first gained national prominence in 1919 as a militantly "dry" Congressman from Georgia, underwent a major operation Saturday to relieve a bladder congestion. Hospital attaches said tonight his condition had improved slightly since the second transfusion, administered yesterday.

Mrs. Montagu Goes to N. Y.; British Earl Denies 'Jilting'

Says Wedding, Slated Yesterday in Baltimore, Was Postponed.

After a mysterious and hurried trip from New York to Baltimore and back again, the Earl of Carnarvon last night blasted rumors that he was "jilted" at the marriage altar by Mrs. Tanis Guinness Montagu, heiress of the Irish brewing family, according to dispatches from Manhattan.

The couple, it was reported, was to have been married yesterday at the British consulate in Baltimore. But just before the ceremony, Mrs. Montagu, distantly related by marriage to Mrs. Wallis Simpson, American friend of King Edward, hastily took a train back to New York. She was followed a few hours later by the Earl of Carnarvon, son of one of the discoverers of the tomb of King Tutankhamen.

Questioned in his suite at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in New York last night, the English nobleman told the Associated Press:

"My wedding is not off. It is merely postponed."

Mrs. Montagu, former wife of the second son of the Earl of Sandwich, remained incommunicado in her rooms at the Hotel St. Regis, a few blocks further uptown, according to news reports.

Their whirlwind visit to Baltimore and early morning departure yesterday left friends and associates agog. After a few hours' stay in the Lord Baltimore Hotel, Mrs. Montagu took a 2:45 a. m. train back to New York. The earl followed three hours later.

Attaches at the British Consulate in Baltimore admittedly were puzzled. They said the earl and his party were expected to visit the consulate offices, but couldn't explain their hasty exodus without even saying "hello" or "goodby."

Mrs. Montagu's connection with Mrs. Simpson came by her marriage into the English Montague family. Mrs. Simpson's mother was Montagu.

Eden Minimizes Mediterranean As Danger Zone

Clashing Interest Avoidable, but Sea Is Vital to Britain, He Says.

By the United Press.

London, Nov. 5.—Great Britain has no intention of attacking Italian interests in the Mediterranean, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today.

The speech was in reply to Premier Benito Mussolini's address at Milan last Sunday in which the Italian dictator said Rome was ready to sponsor an "armed peace" in Europe if necessary.

Eden firmly reminded Mussolini that the Mediterranean for Britain was not merely a convenient short cut, but a vital and main arterial route to her colonies.

The British foreign secretary indicated he was prepared to co-operate with Italy in the Mediterranean rather than act in conflict with Italian interests.

"Britain has no desire to threaten Italian interests," he said. "It should be possible for each country to maintain its vital interest in the Mediterranean without conflict for each other and even with mutual advantage."

Eden answered charges by Gen. Hermann Goering, Germany's new economic dictator and aviation minister, that Britain had "stolen" Germany's colonies, and therefore was responsible for Germany's economic ills.

"The tendency to blame Britain for Germany's economic difficulties is a doctrine I could not for a moment accept," Eden said. He also denied Britain is seeking economic and political encirclement of Germany.

Describing himself as not believing in the inevitability of catastrophe, Eden said, however, "a stronger Britain today is for a greater certainty of peace."

He listed the three main objectives of British policy:

1. Strengthening of authority of the League of Nations.
2. Negotiation for European economic stabilization and peace.
3. "Re-equipment" of Britain.

Eden did not elaborate on his third point, but it was understood he referred to bringing Britain's defenses up to standard in keeping with the armament race between other countries.

Eden seemingly hinted delicately at a British loan for Germany, referring to provision of a tripower exchange pact and proposing abolition of quotas.

Prince Georges Suspends Two In Police Row

Board Also Hears Capital Motorist Charge Third With Brutality.

Privates Warren E. Peake and Claude A. Reese, of the Prince Georges County police department, were suspended yesterday following a stormy session of the county commissioners.

At their meeting, the commissioners also heard specific charges of brutality against another policeman, brought by a Washington motorist and attorneys for the Keystone Automobile Club.

Suspended Without Pay.

The suspendsion order declared:

"It is ordered, upon the motion of Commissioner Joseph H. Blandford, seconded by Commissioner James B. Berry, that Police Officers Warren E. Peake and Claude A. Reese be suspended without pay pending an investigation by the grand jury of the case of Raymond R. Iannucci arrested July 26, 1936, which case was this day formally brought to our attention by the officials of the Keystone Automobile Association, provided, however, that either or both of said officers have the privilege of asking for a hearing during the period of their suspension."

Expressing their willingness to "get to the bottom" of the reports of graft in the police department, members of the board explained the reason they had not taken action earlier was that they had not been formally presented with specific charges.

Prior to their action suspending the two policemen, the commissioners had voted down a motion offered by Capt. Vinton D. Cockey, Laurel, requesting that the board reverse its decision of last week and begin an immediate investigation into the activities of the police department.

Declaring he had been "blackjacked" by another county officer, Dewey Morris, 29, a cab driver who lives at 1135 New Hampshire avenue northwest appeared before the Commissioners with attorneys for the Keystone Club and told his story.

Morris said he had been arrested in a cafe near Hyattsville last Sunday night and charged with disturbing the peace and assault with a dangerous weapon.

While being taken to the Hyattsville station, the cab driver said one

Duels Permitted, Slurs on Hitler Banned in New Nazi Penal Code

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Nov. 5.—Germans will pay fines proportionate to their pocketbooks under a new penal code disclosed today by Minister of Justice Franz Guertner and legal experts.

The code is based on the theory that fines should not be absolute but should be related to earning power of the offender.

Thus, instead of the fine being fixed at 500 marks for a particular misdeed—a court may assess an offender five days' income. In the case of a wealthy man this might be 500 marks, while for a poor man it might be but 30.

Murder and kidnaping for ransome will be punishable by death, but persons attempting to commit suicide will go unpenalized.

A person acquiring weapons with intent to kill may be punished.

Prison sentences will be imposed for "publicly inciting the limitation of the number of offspring," and anyone expressing contempt in public for marriage or motherhood will be penalized.

The person who gossips about the past of another who has since been shown to be a good citizen will face a fine or a jail sentence.

An insulting remark about Reichsfuehrer Hitler may be enough to send one to jail, and the man who speaks disrespectfully of the German army's war deeds will be punished.

When personal honor is at stake men may duel.

In general, any act which might interfere with Germans' will or ability to work is punishable.

Ordering or causing strikes or lockouts fall into this class; so does the squandering of supplies, which, Nazi legal experts declared, might cause scarcity and result in closing of plants or the discharge of workers.

Cornering the market or disclosing industrial secrets to foreign countries may bring fines or imprisonment.

Protection of the nation, the code says, is more important than protection of the individual.

Cabinet Shift Is First Task For President

Study of New Members Begins Today; Other Jobs to Be Filled.

Roosevelt May Announce Several Appointees After Conference.

By Felix Bruner.

President Roosevelt, upon his return to Washington today, will be faced, among his various official duties, with the selection of appointees to fill a large number of important and lucrative jobs.

The political plum tree is particularly fruitful, and the Democratic Party, following Tuesday's landslide, is in the unusual position of having very few lame ducks, the usual recipients of such post-election appointments.

The President is expected to remain in Washington for several days, possibly a week, before embarking upon a cruise which, unless plans are changed, will be concluded with his usual Thanksgiving vacation at Warm Springs, Ga. Shortly after his return today to the White House he will meet with the Cabinet.

Roosevelt Tops 25,000,000.

Late returns last night for the first time placed the Roosevelt vote above the 25,000,000 mark. They gave the President 25,347,591, or a lead of 9,552,355 over Alf M. Landon, who had 15,795,236. William Lemke polled 723,405 votes. A total of 13,418 of the country's 122,772 election districts still were missing.

It is possible that some of the existing vacancies will be filled immediately, although most of the appointments may be postponed until next month or later.

Meanwhile, election totals were rolling up into unprecedented figures as returns were almost complete. President Roosevelt's popular plurality was nearing the 10,000,000 mark, with 75 Democratic seats assured in the Senate and at least 334 in the House. One House contest still was in doubt, with only 218 necessary for a majority. The Democrats had 321 House members at the beginning of the last Congress and 70 in the Senate.

Late tabulations showed Senator William J. Bulow (Democrat), South Dakota, whose election was in doubt, had defeated his Republican opponent, Chandler Gurney. From Michigan came the news that in the Eleventh District John Lueckel, Democrat, had defeated Herbert J. Rushton, Republican, for the Congressional seat vacated by Senator-elect Prentiss M. Brown.

One Seat in Doubt.

The only undecided House contest was in the First Iowa District.

There was still considerable discussion of the possibility that President Roosevelt will decide to go to Buenos Aires for the Pan American Conference opening December 1. Secretary of State Hull planned to leave Washington today for New York, where he expected to start the long sail for Argentina Saturday. President Roosevelt is expected to discuss conference plans with hom today.

Tomorrow the President is scheduled to dedicate a statue of Jules Jusserand, war-time Ambassador of France, in Rock Creek Park. Otherwise plans for his stay in Washintgon have not been definitely outlined.

The task of filling numerous vacancies in official positions is tied up somewhat with possibilities of changes in the Cabinet when the President's second term gets under way. One of the most important places to be filled is that of Comptroller General, vacated with the expiration of the 15-year term of John R. McCarl.

Ickes Mentioned.

Secretary of Interior Ickes, who has been reported to be among the Cabinet members who are slated to go, was reported a possibility for this job. Ickes, however, did so much heavy work in the campaign that it appeared he might remain as Secretary of the Interior. Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, also was mentioned at one time for the appointment, but his success in returning to the Senate is believed to have eliminated him.

The Navy Department is expected to undergo a reorganization. This department is one of the closest to the heart of Mr. Roosevelt, who was war-time Assistant Secretary of the Navy. The health of Secretary Swanson has been poor for a long time and his retirement is expected. Since the death of Assistant Secretary Henry L. Roosevelt that position has not been filled.

In the War Department there is a similar situation. With the death of Secretary Dern, Assistant Secretary Woodring was moved up into the position of acting Secretary of the department. It has been understood that he is acting in a temporary capacity and that a new Secretary would be named. In that event Woodring probably would remain as assistant.

Gov. McNutt Suggested.

Among those who have been suggested for the Secretaryship is Gov. Paul V. McNutt of Indiana, whose term will expire January 1. Under McNutt's leadership the national and entire State ticket carried the Hoosier State by an overwhelming vote, putting him in the eligible "lame duck" class. He was at one time commander of the American Legion and is interested in military affairs.

James A. Farley, who as national chairman led the Democrats to their spectacular success, is returning to Washington to resume his duties as Postmaster General, but he is expected to remain only a short time, leaving another important vacancy.

Hull Is Worried Marine Strike May Delay Trip

Ship Officials Reassure Him; Roosevelt Rumored Set for Argentine Visit.

By Sidney Shalett.

Plans of Secretary of State Hull to visit Buenos Aires to speak at the Inter-American Peace Conference, yesterday snagged momentarily on the maritime strike situation.

Worried the strike might tie up the American Legion, the ship scheduled to sail from New York tomorrow with the United States delegation, the Secretary queried the Munson Line in New York to assure himself the ship will sail on time.

According to an Associaetd Press dispatch Munson officials said: "We have no intimation the American Legion will be held up by the strike."

Should the ship, however, be held in port, the delegation would sail on the Furness Prince, Saturday, November 14.

The President, who, it is rumored, will attend the parley, will announce his decision by the end of this week.

The cruiser Indianapolis, on which the President journeyed to Hawaii, has been prepared for another long voyage, it is understood. Only a vessel as speedy as the cruiser can sail the thousands of miles to Buenos Aires and return in less than 25 days. The American delegation will take nearly 40 days for the round trip, not counting the days in conference.

The President had previously an-

Hope to 'Carry Out First Campaign Pledge,' Tells Neighbors in Farewell at Hyde Park; Banters Republican Sign-Bearers.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 5 (AP).—President Roosevelt told a cheering send-off crowd at the depot here tonight he was going to Washington "to try to balance the budget, thereby carring out the first campaign pledge" of the New Deal.

A crowd of several hundred persons from Hyde Park, Poughkeepsie and other Dutchess County towns gathered at the little village depot to see the President off. Skyrockets and flares lit up the dark station and a band played "Hail to the Chief" and other airs.

In his farewell talk, the President indicated strongly he will make the trip to Buenos Aires to open the Pan-American Peace Conference December 1 for he said he would leave for the South a week from Tuesday, not to return until shortly before Christmas.

Noticing two signs held up in the crowd, evidently by some Republican neighbors, reading "As Maine Goes, So Goes Vermont and Our Own Little Dutchess," and "Roosevelt—46 States Honor Him—Dutchess County?" the President laughed, saying:

"It's mighty good of you to come down here tonight and I appreciate it more than I can tell. That sign is all right, but really it's all my fault.

"That's one case in the campaign where I didn't take Jim Farley's advice. He suggested I take a trip to Vermont and Maine and I didn't do it. Instead I came back to the Third Election District of Hyde Park and you know what happened there." This district went for Roosevelt, but the county went Republican.

He said he had talked with Farley today and was informed "we'd

Home-Coming Program

President Roosevelt's train will arrive at Union Station at 8:30 a. m. today.

He will be greeted by Cabinet members, members of the White House family and the District Commissioners.

Entering his car at approximately 8:40 o'clock, he will be driven to a point on the Plaza in front of Columbus Fountain. There, Commissioner Hazen will offer a brief greeting in behalf of the community, and the President is expected to respond.

At about 9 o'clock, the Presidential motorcade will proceed over Delaware avenue to Constitution avenue, along Constitution avenue to Pennsylvania avenue, west over Pennsylvania avenue to Fifteenth street, around Treasury place to East Executive avenue and thence into the White House grounds through the southeast gates.

From 8 a. m. until completion of the ceremonies, parking will be prohibited on the Union Station Plaza and the ban will go into effect half an hour later along the President's route.

No street cars or buses will be allowed to pass through the Plaza from 8:30 a. m. until the program is over. Street car traffic along Pennsylvania avenue will be suspended while the welcoming celebration is on.

Following are the names of musical aggregations which will participate and where they will be stationed:

Navy Band—East exit of Union Station.

Army Band—Columbus Fountain.

St. John's College Band—Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue.

Marine Band—Southeast entrance to White House grounds.

Trolley Routes To Be Shifted For Welcome

Parking Will Be Forbidden Along Route During President's Ride.

Downtown Washington, from Union Station to the White House, will present something different from the usual rush-hour picture this morning as a result of traffic arrangements for the homecoming celebration for President Roosevelt.

Parking will be forbidden on the station plaza and along the processional route from 6 a. m. until the spectacle is concluded.

Between 8:30, when the Roosevelt train is scheduled to arrive, and 9:15, when the party is expected to start for the White House, street cars and buses of the Capital Transit Co. will be routed away from the plaza. During this time there will be no direct service between Thirteenth and D streets northeast and the central area.

"Cars scheduled to operate to Thirteenth and D streets after 8:30 a. m. will re rerouted via the courthouse route to Lincoln Park and there will be shuttle services operated between Thirteenth and D streets and Massachusetts avenue and First street northeast. By walking from this point to First and C streets northeast, patrons will be able to get service from Thirteenth and D streets to the central area, and from the central area, patrons desiring to go to Thirteenth and D streets will be able to do so by taking a Lincoln Park car, getting off at First and C streets northeast and walking to First street and Massachusetts avenue northeast.

"After 8:30 a. m. there will be no service between Eighth and F streets northeast and First and C streets northeast in either direction. Patrons living in this area will be able to get service by using the H street or Eighth street car lines or the Glover Park-Trinidad bus lines, operating on E street.

"There will be no service operated over the New Jersey avenue car line between Massachusetts avenue and North Capitol street and Eighth street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast. After 8:30 a. m. the cars on New Jersey avenue will be operated via regular route to North Capitol street and Massachusetts avenue, then north on North Capitol street to Michigan avenue, returning over the same route.

"After 8:25 a. m. buses of the Glover Park-Trinidad bus line will be rerouted in both directions from North Capitol and E streets, south on North Capitol street to D street, east on D street to Third street, north on Third street to E street, then over regular route."

Party Lines to Be Cast Aside in Uproarious Celebration.

President to Make Informal Address

Fete Will Start at 8:30 at Station; 11 Bands Will Play.

By Gerald G. Gross.

Blase Washington, which takes its Presidents for granted while the rest of the country is showering them with ovations, will accord President Roosevelt a homecoming reception this morning which will shatter precedent and rival any mass turnout ever witnessed here. A crowd of some 250,000 is expected to witness the celebration.

From 8:30 a. m., when the Roosevelt special train is scheduled to arrive at Union Station, until the President and his party have entered the White House some 90 minutes later, the sole aim of the Nation's Capital will be to show its admiration for a "local boy" who made good—even in New Hampshire.

In past years Washington has turned out by the thousands to greet Lindbergh, Admiral Byrd, Pershing, Queen Marie and other celebrities. But a President, even upon his arrival from a victory at the polls, was just another President.

To Submerge Party Lines.

Today, however, the city will doff its customary ennui and submerge party lines and petty differences, to receive Mr. Roosevelt as a conquering hero come back to his home.

Tens of thousands of school children, Government clerks, housewives, mechanics and laborers, Federal officials and just plain folks will welcome the victor not as a Democrat or New Dealer or New Yorker but as a son who has triumphed.

School children will be excused for the occasion. Federal employes have received permission to participate in the home-coming. Department stores will delay their openings until 9:30 a. m. and the District Building won't start the day's business until 10:30 a. m.

Union Workers Invited.

Late yesterday John Locher, president of the Central Labor Union and executive secretary of the Washington Building Trades Council, issued an invitation to all union workers—106,000 strong—to join in the unprecedented welcome, which was inspired yesterday by The Washington Post's invitation.

President Roosevelt will speak over the air for the first time since his re-election at 8:30 a. m., when C. B. S. and N. B. C. blue networks broadcast welcome home ceremonies. The broadcast will start at 8:15 over the N. B. C. chain and C. B. S. will come on the air with ceremonies at 8:45 a. m., continuing until 9:45.

Marylanders and Virginians, as well as Washingtonians, are making plans to take part, according to advices which poured into local newspaper offices and the District Building.

The President's train is scheduled to arrive at 8:30. A few minutes after he will enter his car and be driven to the station plaza. In front of Columbus Fountain, he is expected to pause for a few minutes and address the throng informally.

Townsend Case Being Prepared For Grand Jury

Garnett to Push Contempt Charge Against Pension Leader, 2 Aids.

After a delay of five months, United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett yesterday took steps to present to the Federal grand jury charges against Dr. Francis E. Townsend, old-age pension movement leader, and two of his associates, growing out of the House investigation of the Townsend movement.

Garnett communicated with Representative C. Jasper Bell (Democrat), Missouri, who was head of the investigating committe, asking him for the names of witnesses who should be called before the jury. It is expected the investigation will begin in about ten days.

Besides Dr. Townsend, charges were brought by the House Committee against the Rev. Clinton Wunder, former New York director of the movement, and John B. Kiefer, former Chicago director.

Last May, while the Townsend investigation was going on, the old-age pension leader walked out of a committee hearing, refusing to answer questions. Wunder and Kiefer refused to respond to subpenas which called them as witnesses before the committee. The House group immediately filed charges with Garnett asking that criminal proceedings be brought for contempt and contumacy.

Bell and James R. Sullivan, counsel for the committee, are expected to be among the witnesses.

Meanwhile, the Associated Press reported from Chicago that leaders in the Townsend movement claimed that at least 66 members newly elected to the House and Senate would vote for the Townsend plan. The group included 37 Democrats, 14 Republicans, 10 Progressives and 14 Farmer-Laborites.

Austria Organizes 'Industrial Militia'

Vienna, Nov. 5 (AP).—The Austrian government today named local commanders for a new "industrial militia," modeled on the American National Guard, to take the place of the disbanded privately-owned armies.

At the same time, the 1937 budget submitted to the Diet asked an appropriation of 210,000,000 schillings ($39,060,000) for national defense—approximately 60 per cent more than was voted for the same purpose during the current year.

The "industrial militia" was designed to include most workers to insure peaceful operation of Austria's factories.

Labor Will Seek Pension Tax Shift

By the Associated Press.

American Federation of Labor leaders disclosed yesterday that they expect to ask the next Congress to shift the entire social security pay roll tax to employers.

They expressed confidence Republican campaign attacks on the old age pensions tax on employes' wages would aid them considerably in ralling Congressional support for the shift.

Labor spokesmen said they would submit their proposal to the federation's annual convention in Tampa, Fla., this month and forecast unanimous ratification.

Second Decisive Defeat in Two Campaigns Has Started Tongues to Wagging Relative to the Future of the Republican Party.

By Franklyn Waltman

WHAT is the future of the Republican Party? Has it a future? Will it disintegrate as did the Federalist Party in the era that began with Thomas Jefferson's first election? Will it emerge four or eight years hence under a new name as the Republican Party succeeded the Whig Party? Or, is the Republican Party indestructible and capable of staging a comeback in national politics?

WALTMAN.

These questions naturally arise to plague Republican minds in their hour of bitterest defeat. But they are not alone in seeking the answers. The country as a whole is intrigued by the deplorable situation in which the once great and powerful Republican Party finds itself today.

Writing his "History of the Democratic Party" early in 1928, Frank R. Kent said of it that "it is true at this time it is issueless and leaderless, torn by doubt and divisions, and without prestige in the country." No more apt description could now be written to describe the Republican Party.

Since Mr. Kent wrote those words, the Democrats suffered their worst defeat in history—losing part of the "solid" South. But four years later that party was swept into power by a landslide and its triumph now reaches even greater heights, with the prospect that it will be the dominant factor in American life for at least another decade.

Talk abounds that the Republican Party is finished; that there will be an entirely new realignment of party lines in another four or eight years and that, perhaps, the Nation faces another "era of good feeling" in which this will be a one-party country, such as the period which followed the disintegration of the Federalists and resulted in James Monroe's selection for the Presidency in 1820 without opposition and by all but one of the country's electoral votes.

An effort to appraise the accuracy of such contentions is not easy. Before the answer to the future of the Republican Party can be found, the reasons for its last defeat must be accurately established. And much depends on the use which the President makes of the power given to him.

If Gov. Alf M. Landon went down to crushing defeat because the country lacked confidence in him, or because of the bungling management of his campaign by the Kansas farm boys; or, because of the charm and personality of President Roosevelt; or because of New Deal spending—then the Republican Party may well survive this defeat and emerge to enjoy new victories.

But if Gov. Landon's defeat was due to fundamental issues, rather than to personalities; if the huge vote given to the President was intended as a rebuke to those financiers, industrialists and publishers supporting the Landon candidacy; if that huge vote meant the country was demanding a greater consideration for the average man and woman and further curbs on special privilege—then it would seem that the Republican Party must be reconstructed or perish.

In other words, if the result of the election indicated—and the size of the Roosevelt vote is convincing evidence—that the people of this country demand a greater social responsibility and consciousness on the part of their Federal Government than it gave to them during the twenties, the Republican Party must accept that mandate. If it does not it will be whipped again into impotency.

Perhaps the "old guard" leadership of the Republican Party would rather it be ruined than permit its reformation. That they remain dominant within the party is clearly evidenced by the Landon campaign. He started out as a progressive but within two months after his nomination he apparently could not resist the pressure from these "old guard" elements.

Thus, the Republicans may find they are unable to unite on anything resembling a definite program. Such was the fate of the Federalists. Thus, the more progressive elements in the Republican Party will find themselves enrolling under the Democratic banner.

On the other hand, the progressivism of President Roosevelt fails to appeal to some within his own party and thus they may take refuge in a new party yet to emerge. Except for their support of the President, the millions who voted for his re-election are marked by greater discord than that which exists in the Republican Party.

* * *

The survival of the Democratic Party from the beginning of the Nation to the present, despite the smash-ups over slavery and free silver and periods of desuetude, and the survival of the Republican Party after its cleavage of 1912 places history on the side of its survival now. Nevertheless, the Republicans have reached a crisis which may be insoluble.

Chicago Will Restore Central Time Nov. 15

Chicago, Nov. 5 (AP).—The city council today decided to restore Central standard time in Chicago November 15. Since last March 1, the Nation's second icty had operated on Eastern standard time in keeping with a measure approved by the council. Subsequently, protests came from labor groups. The Chicago Federation of Labor initiated a referendum on the matter. It was put to a vote in last Tuesday's election. By a margine of more than 2 to 1, the citizens voted in favor of Central time with daylight saving time in the summer months.

nounced vacation plans for a "long sea voyage" to Southern waters. His voyage may now be extended for a week with a return to the White House scheduled for mid-December.

Certain difficulties surround the proposed visit of the President to Buenos Aires. Not the least of these, it is understood, is the fact that other South American capitals would like to see him, and might be jealous of a visit to a neighboring capital. Rio de Janeiro could not very well be left off the President's itinerary, and others would be added if he goes, it is believed.

'Stork Derby' Will Up in Court Today

Toronto, Nov. 5 (AP).—Executors of the estate of Charles Vance Millar will place before the Ontario Supreme Court tomorrow the question of the validity of his will leaving a $500,000 estate to Toronto's most prolific mother of the last decade.

In a tiny courtroom seating barely 75 persons are scheduled to gather the six mothers believed to be tied for the prize with nine children apiece, relatives of the late lawyer who have sought to alter his bizarre testament, and representatives of the Ontario government.

Stockholders Fight Closed Bank Suit

Four stockholders of the closed Continental Trust Co., which was merged with the Commercial National Bank several years ago, yesterday in District Court filed a suit for injunction to restrain John F. Moran, receiver, from prosecuting actions against them for the collection of their proportionate share of a $1,000,000 assessment.

Through Attorney George C. Gertman, the four, Robert I. Lyon, Addie T. Lyon, Nettie E. Lyon and Helen Lyon, all of 3747 Jocelyn street northwest, asserted they controlled 40 shares of the bank's stock, and had been assessed $20,500. They have not paid the assessment, although more than $100,000 of the million-dollar assessment has been paid by stockholders.

Under the law, the attorney claimed, the stockholders were liable for the debts of the bank only up to the date of its actual operation. Liabilities incurred thereafter were not legally chargeable to the stockholders, the suit stated. The assessment, it was said, was levied only to obtain monies allegedly lost after the bank was merged and at a time when there was no statutory obligation on the part of the share owners.

TRY THIS WAY TO QUICKLY RELIEVE ECZEMA ITCHING

If your skin is broken out with "fiery" or "weeping" eczema, you want to relieve the intolerable itching and burning as quickly as possible. Resinol Ointment does this and also combats the irritation caused by eczema—its oily base being ideal for penetrating the outer layers of the skin and securing deeper action.

Wash the affected parts with warm water and Resinol Soap. It is especially suited to tender skin—soaps containing too much alkali may irritate. After washing off scales and crusts, pat dry with a soft cloth. Do not rub.

Apply a thin layer of Resinol Ointment, letting it remain for several hours. Apply again liberally at bedtime leaving on all night. The longer Resinol is in contact with the skin, the more good it does.

10 in Alabama Shut Off Power, Escape Prison

By the United Press.

Kilby Prison, Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 5.—Paralyzing the prison power and communication system by capturing the power house, at least ten convicts "crushed" out of Kilby Prison tonight.

Without firing a shot, the prisoners escaped over the prison wall on a crudely made ladder, after plunging the prison into darkness.

More than 90 other convicts, at work in the prison cotton mill, where the break was organized, did not participate in the break. Prison officials, however, could not say definitely that only ten escaped. They were making a cell check while posses with bloodhounds began a search of fields around the penitentiary.

The prison cotton plant was turned into a bedlam of yelling, frantic convicts for nearly an hour when guards locked the doors of the mill after the lights went out.

For more than an hour, the prison was in darkness while sirens screamed and officials strove desperately to restore order. Equipment in the cotton mill was reported heavily damaged, but no estimate of the loss could be made.

The fugitives were known to have at least one pistol, which they took from a prison employe as they engineered the break. Officials believed they may have had other arms, smuggled into their cell blocks during the last few days.

Underwood & Underwood.
DR. HERBERT C. CLARK.

Snakes, martinis and malaria were discussed by Dr. Herbert C. Clark, director of the Gorgas Memorial Laboratory in Panama, at the annual meeting of the directors of the Gorgas Memorial Institute here yesterday.

Dr. Clark should know about them if anybody does. A hearty old gentleman who disdains scientific terminology, he refers to venom, medicine, liquor, his work, and practically everything else with the simple word "stuff."

"Martinis are bad stuff," he declared. "Americans in the tropics hang around clubs drinking martinis and other cocktails, gulping them, to be more exact. Now your Englishman drinks Scotch, sips it like a gentleman. Scotch is good stuff."

Would you recommend Scotch for Washingtonians in our tropical summers?

"Yes, diluted with lots of water. That, we have found, is the best drink. The water helps neutralize the bad effects of the alcohol."

What about snakes, what are you doing with them?

"We're collecting snakes to study as a hazard to business. They're quite a problem in the fruit-growing industry. We've gathered a lot of stuff together about them but haven't come to any conclusions yet."

Snake Bounties Paid.

How do you go about gathering a snake?

"We pay laborers to catch them, by a system of bounties. We give 10 cents for non-poisonous species, 25 cents for poisonous ones. Those are for dead ones.

"For a live bushmaster in good condition we pay $10, for a fer de lance $2.50 and $1 for coral snakes and tree vipers.

"Snakes are hard to catch when they're hungry. When they're full they are unable to run away. Most people are bitten by snakes which are unable to get out of the way.

"That's why so many snake bites are not fatal. The snake has emptied all its venom into the rat or other animal in its belly and has little left to discharge into a human who comes close. But no snake bite does a man much good.

"If a man is bitten by a hungry snake he's in very bad shape. We have rubber vacuum cups which are successful in sucking out the poison if used quickly enough. They're a common commercial product on sale nowadays in the tropics for $2.50. If a vacuum cup isn't available, the best thing to do is to lay a sheet of rubber over the bite and suck the venom out with the mouth. Sometimes this is a difficult trick, if the man happens to be bitten between the toes, for instance."

Medical Experiments.

Are you making any experiments leading toward medical use of venom?

"Why, yes, there's a German who came to the National Institute of Panama, a Prof. Malowan, who is trying to work up something with the stuff to use in treatment of skin cancer. He has a theory on it, but he won't tell us what it is until he has made more tests. He's using all the local species of snakes."

Does a nonfatal snake bite have any permanent after-effect?

"Collectors of snakes—fellows who hunt them for their leather, or for their venom—are frequently bitten, and they suffer from a necrosis of the liver. They're like horses inoculated for typhoid. Their livers go to pieces. A bite in a vein is very bad and almost impossible to save. A bite along a nerve is a long time getting better. But ordinarily a man gets over it."

Which are your most dangerous snakes?

"The bushmaster and the fer de lance and the hog-nosed viper. The fer de lance moves faster. A 7-footer will weigh 5 pounds, and can lick a bushmaster the same length weighing 7 pounds like a light-heavyweight can lick a fat man in the circus.

"The bluesnake is the toughest. He's a non-poisonous. A bluesnake will swallow a 7-foot fer de lance exactly his own length. He stretches like a silk stocking. He's apt to be pretty sluggish for a day or so after swallowing another snake his own length.

"Boas are most plentiful. They're nice, good-natured fellows. We keep a couple of 10-footers around the warehouse to catch rats and scare thieves. They'll scare the wits out of a sneak-thief, hissing like a goose whenever a stranger comes in the building. We don't pay any more attention to them than your average Washingtonian would to a house cat."

Malaria Biggest Problem.

What work are you doing in malaria?

It's our biggest problem. The Canal Zone, of course, is entirely free of it and one of the healthiest places on the globe to live. But out in the lowlands where a great deal of water is necessary for the growing of fruit, it is difficult to keep the mosquitoes down.

"We have launched a plan in the other direction now. We're trying to clean up the carriers, those infected with malaria, in the hopes of eliminating the sources where mosquitoes become infected. One man in four down there has malaria.

"Quinine is still the best stuff, but it tastes bad. A new German drug is just about as good and becoming more popular because it doesn't taste so rotten. We have been able to cut down the virulence of the disease in infected persons from about 45 per cent, through the use of drugs. We're teaching them all the use of screening.

"Our program is sensible in two other ways. First, it would be financially impossible and even undesirable to drain all the water where mosquitoes breed in Panama. Second, by curing up those infected we can produce the number of workers needed in the country. If every man in the fruit industry were perfectly healthy all the time, he could do work which now requires three half-sick men."

Dr. Clark addressed the board of directors of the Memorial before seeing the press. A distinguished group of doctors and scientists was present, men pledged to carry on the spirit of Maj. Gen. William Crawford Gorgas, who cleaned yellow fever out of Havana, transformed the Canal Zone from a charnel house of disease into a healthful place to live, built up the Army Medical Corps from a few hundred to 285,000 men during the war and promoted hospitals all over the world.

Panama Gorgas Institute Head Describes How He Collects Reptiles.

Federal Agents Join in Search For 2 Hoeppels

Congressman, Son Wanted to Begin Jail Term for Sale of Appointment.

Federal agents, directed by J. Edgar Hoover, yesterday were enlisted in a Nation-wide search for Representative John H. Hoeppel and his son Charles, both of California, whom District Attorney Leslie C. Garnett described as "fugitives from justice."

The search was begun after Garnett reported his marshals were unable to find the Hoeppels for service of week-end bench warrants for their arrest. Hoover was asked to lend his aid by Brien McMahon, Assistant Attorney General.

Both father and son are wanted for commitment to jail for conspiring to sell a West Point appointment to James W. Ives, of Baltimore, for $1,000.

They were convicted last December. Recently the Supreme Court refused to review their cases.

"The Hoeppels are, and have been very definitely fugitives from justice," asserted Garnett.

Both were in California, where Representative Hoeppel recently lost his fight for renomination, when word came that the Supreme Court had refused to review the case. Since then they have been sought on a bench warrant issued by Justice Peyton Gordon.

Only yesterday the Government learned that on August 28, Representative Hoeppel had cashed a $300 check in California, drawing on his salary as a Congressman. This check was sent here for collection, and is now in the House Office Building as an offset to any ensuing salary payments.

One avenue of search for the Hoeppels extended into Indiana, but there were current reports that he and his son might be in Washington.

Court observers, however, said there was now no chance for the Hoeppels to gain an acquittal, although there was a possibility that they might be placed on probation.

Each received a term of from four months to a year.

Garnett said late yesterday he expected to go before Justice Gordon and ask forfeiture of the $2,000 bonds on which the Congressman and his son have been at liberty since their conviction.

Life Term Is Given In Amott Slaying

Wetumpka, Ala., Nov. 5 (AP).—Frank Green, of Montgomery, convicted of killing Wesley D. Amott, of Washington, D. C., Government Resettlement investigator, was sentenced to life imprisonment today by Judge Arthur Glover.

Counsel gave no indication an appeal would be taken.

Green made no statement. The State contended he "hitch-hiked" a ride with Amott on September 1, later killed him and dumped his body out in a cotton field near here. Green was arrested September 3 in Amott's car.

Green declared he stole the car on the streets of Birmingham and never knew Amott.

British Workers Back King-Simpson Marriage

London, Nov. 5 (AP).—If King Edward "wants to marry" Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, no representative of the working-man in Parliament would object, said William Gallacher, the only Communist in the House of Commons, today.

The British worker, Gallacher declared in an interview outside Parliament, approves of the Monarch's friendship with the former Baltimore woman who recently obtained a divorce at Ipswich.

Fresh Strikes Imperil Blums' Rule in France

Premier Plans to Introduce Bill to Force Settlement of All Labor Warfare.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Nov. 5.—A fresh outbreak of strikes added to the worries of Socialist Premier Leon Blum tonight as Parliament reopened in a session marked by a verbal clash between Conservatives and Communists.

The premier, Socialist deputies said, told them he planned to submit a bill calling for obligatory arbitration of strikes if circumstances make it necessary.

Three thousand employes occupied the Panhard-Levassor automobile plant while walkouts spread to several sections of the country.

The Chamber of Deputies, reconvened with the Senate largely to discuss finances, was suspended temporarily almost as soon as it opened when political tension flared.

The clash came just after Finance Minister Vincent Auriol had proposed a discussion of finances. The cabinet has approved Blum's 1937 budget for huge increases in expenditures, opposed by Conservatives.

Deputy Ramette, a Communist, shouted, "into the Seine with the Fascists!" Deputy Poitou-Duplessis replied, "We are not surrendering!"

Speaker Herriot immediately suspended the session, but it was called to order shortly afterward.

Amid the wave of strikes, Col. Francois de la Rocque's Social Party—which Communists assert is Fascist—circulated a warning to its members to beware of provocation by Leftists and to keep in close touch with party's leaders.

The party charged a plot existed to provoke "agitation of a revolutionary nature" in Paris' factory suburbs and other cities.

Versifiers Protest Here on 'Outsider'

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 5 (AP).—A group of poets, poetry editors and librarians protested today, in what one of their number called "blankety-blank verse," the selection of an Ohio poet laureate by the Poet Laureate League of Washington, D. C.

The league had anounced the lifetime appointment of Mrs. Mabel Posegate, of Cincinnati, and arranged to install her as poet laureate at a reception in Cincinnati, November 11.

Persons well versed in such matters said the Buckeye State had never had a poet laureate, and had not considered having one until the Washington organization chose Mrs. Posegate.

Clyde Moore, poetry editor and columnist for the Ohio State Journal, asserted the protest was occasioned by "arbitrary selection of a poet laureate by a rank outsider."

'Ambassador' From Republican Maine Reaches Washington on 3-Year Walk

'Spirit of Portland' Arrives With Pony, Headed South.

The spirit of Portland, Me., came to town yesterday and rubbed shoulders with New Dealers.

It was traveling light. Perhaps it had lost the proverbial shirt in the election. Anyhow, its entourage consisted only of a pony, without benefit of trappings, named Chippy, and a sleepy, pedigreed airdale who responded warily to the name Judy.

The spirit of Portland was taking a walk. In fact, it was taking a three-year walk. It was calling itself "America's Walking Ambassador," and it was en route to Portland, Oreg.

"Why Portland?" we inquired. You see we had a vague notion that only Vermont remained true to Maine.

"It's my dynamic personality," the spirit replied. "It cannot be confined to four walls. It must ever be on the move."

"Will it ever find rest?" we asked, with tears in our eyes.

Hopeful for Music.

"Some day," it answered. "When people will forget hotch-swing-times and crowd to see me conduct symphonic tunes."

"Then you are a conductor?" we inquired brightening.

"I am everything," the spirit answered. "I play the viola and violin. Music is in my blood. Perhaps I got its rhythm in far-away Bari, near the blue waters of the Adriatic, where I was born."

"You must have," we answered, thinking of Maine and the election. "But, just a moment, for the sake of our readers will you tell us a little something about yourself. Are you spirit or blood and flesh?"

"I am Frank Piccininni," it answered ignoring our question. "I am 28 and have $3 in my pocket. I once conducted the Mozart Symphony Society of Brooklyn, but what Democrats call 'the depression' soon knocked me into a cocked hat. I decided to travel then and get a broader vision. At the end of my journey I expect to be ready to write an overture or a novel."

Fortified for Trip.

Frank left Portland, Me., last June fortified with letters from the local chamber of commerce and the superintendent of police. Both attest to Frank's integrity and his honesty. He feels these will come in handy when he comes to the chain-gang country of the South.

Spending eight days in Boston, Frank pushed on for Manhattan where he dallied 2½ months with his good friend, Gilbert Updegrove. Gilbert, he stated, is the only living American who fought Richtofen single-handed in the famous air epics of the World War.

Chippy, the pony; Frank Piccininni, the Spirit of Portland, Me., and Judy, the airedale.

At the Olney Pony Farm at Joppa, Md., Frank was presented with a pony. He likes ponies and dogs, but dogs mostly. The pony was accepted as an afterthought. Too many people were skeptical about Frank's walking proclivities and he had been accused by them of cheating with free rides.

"The pony should convince them," Frank stated. "I cannot ride him because he is too small and no one will now think of offering me a lift. They have before, I admit, but I turned down all offers."

Headed for Florida.

Frank hopes to reach Key West by early February and will head for the Great Lakes area before the summer months. He will follow the warm weather, he explained, and veer South every time the wind blows chill and cold. His shoes are of special make with kangaroo leather and steel shanks. They are triple-soled and have ventilation holes.

"Will you walk back?" Frank was asked.

"I do not know yet," he replied. "If the Democrats win again I may just keep on walking."

We asked him if he meant into the Pacific, but he was gone.

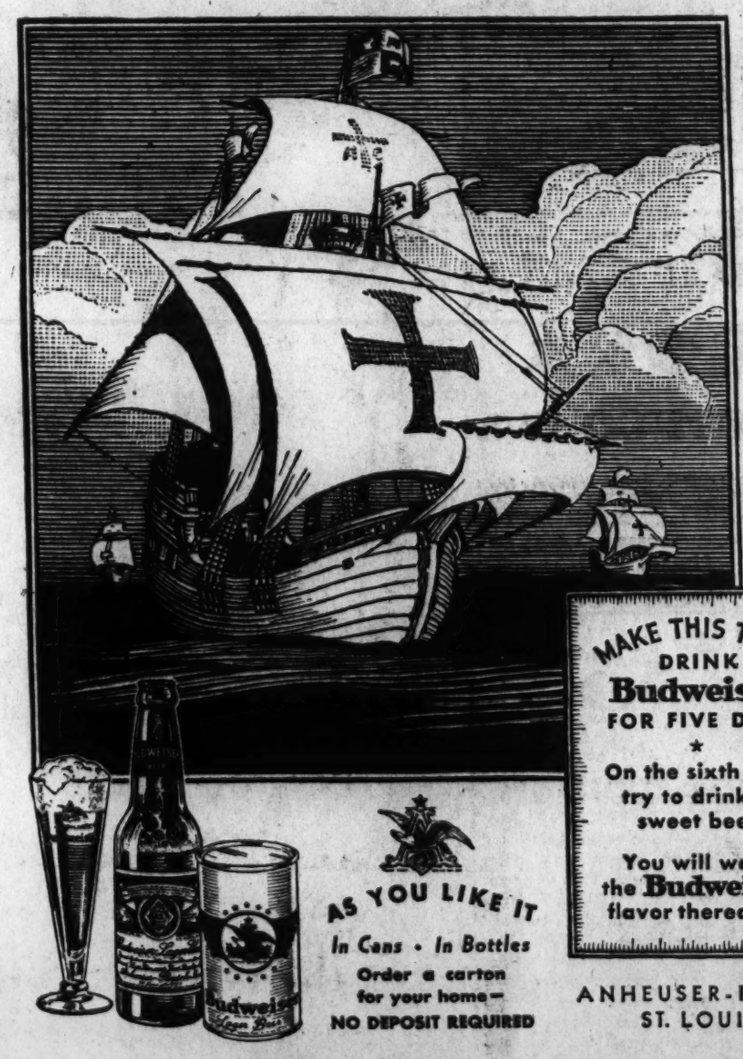
Why wasn't Columbus looking for America?



Fine flavors of India's spices! Luring Columbus westward... westward...into the unknown. Looking for India by a new and shorter route... never dreaming there was an America. Today, as in 1492, everybody ...everywhere...is looking for a delicious flavor. You get it in Budweiser—an unusual, fine-beer flavor...distinctive...highlighted with the snap of costly Saazer hops and skillful brewing. Look for it in no other beer, because only Budweiser tastes like Budweiser.

ANHEUSER-BUSCH ST. LOUIS

The Budweiser flavor—as famous as Budweiser itself — is carefully protected from anything and everything. Birdseed, for instance. Sunflower seeds—which parrots love but which won't make good beer—become mixed with barley in harvesting. But, ingenious separators, in the Home of Budweiser, extract every one. Results—pure ingredients, pure beer, pure goodness.

Cabinet Shifts Are First Task For Roosevelt

Study of New Members to Begin Today; Other Jobs Also to Be Filled.

W. W. Howes, First Assistant, is acting as Postmaster General.

In the Treasury Department the post of Undersecretary has been vacant for a long time, since the resignation of Thomas Jefferson Coolidge. This is another fat job that remains to be filled. It is generally agreed that Secretary Morgenthau will be among the Cabinet members retained.

Hull's Aid Uncertain.

In the State Department the office of Undersecretary remains unfilled since the appointment of William Phillips as Ambassador to Italy. Both Secretary Hull and Assistant Secretary Sumner Welles are going to the Buenos Aires Conference, leaving Assistant Secretary R. Walton Moore in charge of the department. It does not follow, however, that Moore is in line for the post of Undersecretary.

Two important diplomatic posts also are open. One is the ambassadorship to the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, vacated when William Bullitt was transferred to Paris to succeed the late Jesse Isador Straus. Also vacant is the office of minister to Denmark, following the resignation of Mrs. Boege Rohde, the former Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen. A minor post, that of a United States representative in Iran, also is open.

Interior Post Open.

In the Interior Department the post of Assistant Secretary has been vacant since the resignation of Oscar L. Chapman to participate in the Colorado campaign.

One of the most lucrative of all the political plums hanging from the tree is that if high commissioner to the Philippines. It became vacant with the resignation of Frank Murphy to conduct his successful campaign for Governor of Michigan. Attorney General Cummings, who originally was to be Governor of the Philippines, but who became Attorney General following the death of Thomas J. Walsh, is considered a possibility for the job, which pays $18,000 a year.

The chairmanship of the Social Security Board also is open, as a result of the resignation of John G. Winant to take an active part in the campaign. There also is a vacancy on the Federal Reserve Board, following resignation some time ago of Ralph W. Morrison, of Texas.

Maritime Unit Uncomplete.

The personnel of the Maritime Commission also has not been completed, and the present appointments are on a temporary basis.

President Roosevelt is expected to give consideration to most if not all of these appointments prior to the opening of Congress. In each instance the President's nomination must be confirmed by the Senate. With the overwhelming Democratic majority in that body, however, the President is expected to have a free hand.

Speculation also continued concerning the Cabinet itself. Besides the departments already mentioned, principal speculation was about the Commerce Department and the Labor Department. Retirement of both Secretary Roper and Secretary Perkins is considered not unlikely.

Perkins May Stay.

The Labor Department situation is made particularly interesting by the large part played by labor organizations, particularly those headed by John L. Lewis, in the campaign. Lewis is expected to have something to say about the successor to Miss Perkins should such an appointment become necessary.

The name of Mayor LaGuardia of New York has been mentioned in this connection.

Meanwhile, the time is approaching when President Roosevelt must begin work on his inaugural speech and on his first message to the new Congress. The Democratic platform and the President's numerous campaign speeches were being scanned for clews as to what may be expected.

Much interest centered on the possibility of some attempt to revive NRA, in connection with certain new labor legislation.

Accused by Capital Motorist, 2 County Policemen Suspended

of the officers asked him if he was one of those "smart Keystone fellows."

"No, I'm not," Morris was quoted as saying, "but I approve of what they are doing out here."

Struck on Head.

At this point, Morris continued, the policeman who was driving the automobile, turned to the officer in the rear seat with him and said: "Shall I let him have it?"

The officer in the rear seat did not reply, but the other policeman stopped the car, the cab driver said, and struck him on the head five times.

Morris was treated by Dr. John T. Maloney, of Cheverly, Md. Dr. Maloney last night said he could not tell what had caused the head injuries, but that at the time he had heard Morris say he had been struck on the head with a blackjack.

The commissioners, however, refused to take punitive action against the officer named by Morris as the one who struck him on the grounds that there was not sufficient proof.

Called into conference with the board, Chief of Police Jeremiah J. Crowley reaffirmed his previous statements that he knew nothing of the reports of "corrupt" practices among his officers.

When shown the court records on the suit filed by Raymond R. Iannucci, 308 Sixth street northwest, against Elmer Pumphrey, bondsman, of Suitland, Md., in which Officers Peeke and Reese are named as the arresting officers in an alleged "shady" bonding deal, Chief Crowley agreed that suspension of the officers was in order.

Three in Delegation.

The delegation of citizens which appeared before the board to urge an investigation of the police was headed by W. F. Mulligan, of the Berwyn District. Other members of the group were G. P. Bickford and Mrs. O. D. Wyatt, also of the Berwyn District.

Recommendations for a change in the present system of keeping court and police records were made to the board by George E. Keneipp, Harvey Cobb and Louis Lebowitz, of the Keystone Automobile Club.

Vincent A. Osterman, president of the board of commissioners of the town of Bladensburg and a member of the Washington police force for 32 years, was called on by the county commissioners to give his views on improving the Prince Georges police set-up.

He criticized the record system and cited the lack of supervision of the police.

Wire Plus Record Of 17 Arrests Get Woman Jail Term

Judge Isaac R. Hitt acted on a recommendation received via telegraph yesterday while he was presiding in Police Court.

"Give her six months; it will do her good," the wire read. It was signed Michael Daugherty and was from Pittsburgh.

Later, Mrs. Effie Daugherty was arraigned in court on an intoxication charge. It was said she had been arrested 17 times in the past 23 months.

Judge Hitt sentenced her to pay a $100 fine or go to jail for 90 days. Mrs. Daugherty went to jail.

Kent Election Clerks Called To Check Error

Board Holds Mistakes Involved Endanger President's Majority.

By the Associated Press

Chestertown, Md., Nov. 5.—Twenty-four Kent County election officials were summoned before the county board of election supervisors today "to correct, if possible, certain errors in improper election returns." Enough votes are involved in the disputed precincts to upset the 390 majority that Kent County gave President Roosevelt in Tuesday's election.

Sheriff John N. Bennett served subpenas on the officials, who in four precincts, today. They will appear before the election board tomorrow in an attempt to change the official returns.

Thomas W. Trew, head of the election board, explained that the mistakes had been made in counting the votes for presidential electors. A vote for a presidential candidate was counted as a vote for all electors of that party. In addition, in the disputed precincts, the votes given the electors individually were added to the total number of votes for the presidential candidate of that party.

Hecht Store Dines Service Employes

In recognition of the success of the Hecht Co. half-yearly furniture sale, which closed in September, employes of the company's service and control division were given a dinner at the Raleigh Hotel last night by Harry Davidow, merchandise manager in charge of the home furnishings division.

The keynote speech of the evening was made by C. B. Dulcan, sr., vice president of the company and general merchandising manager. He spoke on the theme, "Full Speed Ahead."

Other speakers on the program included Davidow, George M. Quirk, store manager; Morris Moss, assistant to the store manager, and William Loman, research director. Burt Sarasen, sales promotion manager, was toastmaster at the dinner.

Truck Thief Gets Thousands in Loot Along D. C. Streets

Police last night intensified their hunt for a colored suspect wanted for a series of thefts of commercial vehicles and many thousand dollars worth of property from city streets in the last several weeks.

Police said the suspect has been identified by witnesses as the man seen driving away laundry, bakery and clothing trucks parked while the drivers made deliveries.

Efforts to arrest the suspect so far have been futile and several raids in houses in the northwest sections have failed to net him.

He was described as 23 years old, 5 feet, 6 inches tall, with a scar on his face. The thief is well dressed, detectives said.

Baltimore, Charleston Are Ocean Air Bases

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—Officials of Pan-American Airways system announced tonight the airline had entered into a contract with Baltimore, Md., to use facilities planned by the city for operation of ocean transport aircraft.

They said arrangments previously had been concluded with Charleston, S. C., where similar facilities were reported under development at the municipal airport site.

They reported designation of Charleston and Baltimore followed more than a year of study by airline engineers and officials of Atlantic seaboard cities looking to projected transatlantic air service. The system announced no definite date had as yet been set for the beginning of Atlantic flying.

Fairfax Board Hears Request For 2 Courses

P.T.A. Asks Home Economics, Manual Training Class for School Pupils.

Fairfax High School Parent-Teacher Association through a delegation yesterday requested the county school board to include home economics and manual training courses in the curriculum next session.

Henry Hawxhurst, heading the delegation, pointed out that very few of the graduates go to college, most of them start work immediately on leaving high school, while others stressed the fact Fairfax High School is the largest in the county, and the courses have been installed in two of the smaller high schools. The delegation suggested that if the county could not build adequate rooms for such courses that temporary buildings be erected.

Several members of the board expressed willingness to grant the proposal but pointed out the board does not have sufficient funds for such a course. Action on the question was postponed pending consideration of the next school budget.

A Franklin Park delegation asked the county to pay tuition to Arlington County for pupils living in that vicinity. They said Arlington County schools were more accessible to the community and that Arlington County charges $5 a month per pupil. Nearest Fairfax schools are at Chesterbrook and McLean, but the citizens pointed out roads between Franklin Park and these schools are virtually impassable in bad weather and that the county does not furnish transportation.

The school board refused to pay tuition, but promised to aid the citizens in having the road to Chesterbrook improved. The road question will be taken up with R. I. Mount, State highway engineer.

Plans were considered for repairing Herndon High School auditorium, which was damaged by fire last week. It was decided to hold classes on four Saturdays for the school at Herndon, Floris and Forestville until the Christmas vacation, when the three schools will be dismissed four days earlier for the holidays. This will allow workmen time to complete the necessary repairs in Herndon School and not interfere with school routine. It was necessary to close the Forestville and Floris schools at the same time because school buses serve the three schools.

The Fairfax County board of election canvassers met in the courthouse yesterday to tabulate results of Tuesday's election. The count shows 4,613 ballots cast, of which 61 were void. The vote was:

For President—Franklin D. Roosevelt, 2,913; Alfred M. Landon, 1,584; Dr. D. Leigh Colvin, 9; Norman Thomas, 8; William Lemke, 12; John W. Aiken, 0; Earl Browder, 1.

For member of Congress—Howard W. Smith, 3,197; John Locke Green, 1,021 and F. A. Shelton, 73.

Novelty Firm Will Pay Workers' Security Tax

Chicago, Nov. 5 (U.P.).—Fred L. Mills, president of the Mills Novelty Manufacturing Co., today announced the concern would pay both the employes' and the company share of the Federal social security wage tax, which becomes effective January 1.

Mills said 2,600 employes in three plants and branches will benefit from today's decision.

Montgomery Road Maintenance To Be Discussed at Conference

State and County Commissioners to Meet in Baltimore Monday; Christopher Resigns, Succeeded by Bogley.

A conference between the Maryland State roads commission and the Montgomery County commissioners will be held at Baltimore on Monday to discuss the question of road maintenance in the county during the current fiscal year.

Although the new year opened on October 1, it was said at the county board's meeting yesterday that no word had been received as to the amount to be set aside from the gasoline tax for maintenance.

The work has been seriously curtailed because of the deficit in the county's secondary road account and an effort will be made to have only a portion applied to retirement of the overdraft with the remainder to be expended on upkeep of the lateral roads.

James C. Christopher, deputy clerk to the commissioners, resigned yesterday to enter the private practice of law at Bethesda. Samuel E. Bogley, son of Emory H. Bogley, member of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission and well-known Washington attorney, was appointed. Bogley resides at Friendship Heights.

Harry Hoskinson, of Gaithersburg, was named to the Montgomery County Public Welfare Board in place of Judge R. Granville Curry, of Battery Park, who was appointed to the board recently, but declined the post.

Action on the proposed rezoning of a commercial tract on Lincoln avenue adjacent to the overpass under construction at Kensington was deferred until Tuesday. The land was zoned commercially recently, but residents of the town, including the Kensington Town Council and Chamber of Commerce protested commercial development would lower the value of adjoining land.

A mass meeting of Takoma Park, Md., residents has been called by the Town Council for 8 p. m. Monday in the firehouse to discuss the proposal to substitute buses for the Laurel avenue street cars.

Mayor John R. Adams and members of the council said they did not wish to take any action on indorsing or opposing the proposal until residents had been given an opportunity to be heard.

Incorporation of the Westmoreland Hills Citizens Association under the laws of Maryland was voted at a meeting of the association held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Barker.

President Raymond B. Leavitt announced the following committee chairmen: Mrs. William E. Jackson, education; Allan Sherwin, streets, parking and parks; Mrs. J. F. Heberly, planning and zoning; Dr. Woodson T. Birthright, fire and police; Robert E. Freer, legislation; Harold E. Stowell, membership; Professor Norman B. Ames, public utility and sanitation; William H. Stimpson, publicity; Richard B. Barker, water rates; William E. Jackson, speeding; A. C. Ehlshlager, vacant lots; P. H. Willis, zoning; Gerald C. Whittaker, delegate to the Conduit Road Advisory Council.

Forty-seven representatives of student governments of six Montgomery County high schools met yesterday at Montgomery Blair High School, Silver Spring, to make tentative plans for a co-ordinated program of activities for the schools. Miss Margaret Mitchell, director of the department of inter-school relations of Montgomery Blair, who arranged the meeting, welcomed the visitors. James Littlefield, president of the student council, presided. Frank Davis, of Rockville, was elected temporary chairman, and Miss Mitchell, temporary secretary. The combined groups plan to form a permanent organization at a meeting December 3 at Rockville. A committee named to draft the constitution is composed of Charles Walker, Gaithersburg; James Littlefield, Montgomery Blair; Charlotte White, of Poolesville, and Eleanor Watkins, of Damascus.

A performance for the benefit of Grace Episcopal Church, Woodside, Md., will be held at the Woodside School at 8 p. m. today by the National Capital Ring. International Brotherhood of Musicians. Archie Engel will be master of ceremonies. Performers will include Kenneth Sheelor, magician; Frank Portillo, clown; "Happy" Jackson, shadowgraph; Frank Golden, magician, and Ed Cross, juggler.

Lovers of dramatic art crowded the Takoma Park Presbyterian Church hall, Maple and Tulip avenues, last night to witness the performance of "Are You A Mason," a three-act comedy presented by the Little Theater of Takoma Park. The show will be repeated tonight 8:15. Hugh M. Smythe, president, is directing. In the cast are Dr. E. Clyde Shade, Harry Richards, Will Carleton, Mrs. Phyllis Huff, Mrs. Jack Vogel, Miss Charlotte Knott, Miss Agnes Carleton, Miss Clara Mae Tarbett and Arthur Stevens. Mrs. J. Warrington Hayes is in charge of tickets.

The annual meeting of the Silver Spring, (Md.) branch of the Montgomery County Chapter of the American Red Cross will be held at 2 p. m. today in Jesup Blair Community House. Mrs. Vernon Brewster, of Sligo Park Hills, will preside. Appropriations for the milk fund for poor school children will be discussed and a report of the annual roll call given.

Six Charges Face 'Auto Repossessor' In Maryland Jail

Possession, even if you call it repossession, is not always nine points of the law, Morris Katz, 25, of Jefferson street northwest, found last night when he was lodged in the Hyattsville (Md.) Jail with six separate charges against him.

Katz is held on two assault charges and on one charge each for unauthorized use of an automobile, speeding, reckless driving and driving without registration. He is being held on $2,000 bond.

As Hyattsville police tell the story, Katz drove a car owned by Charles Kline, 47, from in front of Kline's Hyattsville home. But Katz hardly had got the car, a big sedan, into low gear before Kline and his 16-year-old son, Charles E., came rushing from their house.

The elder Kline jumped in front of the car and was knocked down. The younger Kline leaped to the running-board, hung on precariously as the machine gathered speed, and, he charges, finally was pushed off. Both the Klines suffered bruises.

Katz continued while police radios sent a frantic lookout for a stolen sedan with the owner's son riding on the running-board. He continued to Cottage City, where Patrolman M. J. Hampton arrested him for reckless driving.

Katz told officers he worked for an auto and radio company and that he was "repossessing" the car. Police, however, said he was without legal repossession papers.

$938 in Clothes Stolen at Store In Alexandria

Burglars Exchange Their Suits, Shoes for New; Take Other Goods.

The store of the J. C. Penney Co., at 613-19 King street, was burglarized early yesterday of merchandise valued at $938. Entrance was made by sawing the iron bars of a window in the rear of the store.

The robbery was discovered by D. C. Book, the store manager, when he went to the place to open up at 8 a. m., he immediately notified the police. Capt. John S. Arnold, Lieut. Edgar Sims, Sergt. George Everly, Sergt. Joseph Butler and Policeman Welker investigated.

The burglars went to the men's department and discarded their clothing for new, leaving two old suits and two old pairs of shoes in the place.

They took only men's clothing and shoes. All were taken from display racks in the store.

The thieves apparently were undisturbed while in the store, as they took time for changing, and few people were on the street during the night or early hours of the morning, owing to the rain.

Robert V. Fleming, president of Riggs National Bank, of Washington, will be the principal speaker at the annual meeting of Group 3 of the Virginia Bankers Association, at Alexandria, Wednesday.

Other talks will be made by Clarence L. Robey, of Purcellville; Giles H. Miller, jr., of Culpeper; William H. Byrd, of Harrisonburg; George F. Downham, of Alexandria; Harold C. Brown, of Winchester, and L. H. Dudley, of Alexandria.

There are 83 banks in the Third District group from points between Alexandria and Culpeper and in the Shenandoah Valley from Winchester to Staunton. An attendance of 225 is expected at the morning and afternoon sessions.

Confederate Leader Will Be Coin Model

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 5 (U.P.).—Adjt. Gen. Harry Rene Lee, of the United Confederate Veterans, received an invitation today to sit for a sculpture designing a coin in commemoration of the Battle of Gettysburg.

The invitation came from Paul M. Roy, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania commission arranging a reunion of Blue and Gray forces in July, 1938.

Lee said he would probably go for the sittings. Faces of one Confederate and one Union soldier will be reproduced on the 50-cent coin.

Tax Returns Show Sub-Machine Guns Being Sold Illicitly

By the Associated Press.

Tax records disclosed yesterday gangsters and some ordinary citizens were flouting the national firearms act, which requires registration of purchases of sawed-off shotguns and sub-machine guns.

During the fiscal year ended last June 30, sale or transfer of only one such weapon was registered, although approximately 25 manufacturers and dealers paid license fees for the privilege of handling them. Under the act, every sale or transfer to a person other than a law enforcement officer must be reported to the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Dealers, who pay an annual fee of $500, poured $3,965 into the Treasury during the period; and manufacturers, who also pay $500 each to deal in the guns a full year, contributed $1,176. Only one purchaser, however, paid the $200 required by law to register his weapon and file his fingerprints and photograph.

Officials said it was obvious some of the weapons were bought by gangsters, especially from second-hand dealers, and that some otherwise law-abiding citizens purchased sawed-off shotguns or sub-machine guns for curios, target practice or protection.

Sermon Will Be Given By Rabbi Silverstone

Rabbi Harry Silverstone will preach on "The Greatest of Human Crimes," an Armistice Day message, at services at 8 o'clock tonight in Tifereth Israel Congregation, Fourteenth and Euclid streets northwest. Services will be augmented by the singing of Jewish melodies by Cantor Jeremiah Weitz, and a choir directed by Louis Fenik.

Cut in U. S. Spending Forecast by Harrison

Gulfport, Miss., Nov. 5 (U.P.).—Pat Harrison, chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, said tonight he believed there will be "a strong retrenchment on appropriations, probably not in the next Congress, but certainly in the Congress following."

County to Build 2 Water Mains For Arlington

20-Inch Pipes to Quadruple Supply; Lines Will Be Relocated for Present.

Arlington County's water supply will be safeguarded during the construction of the new Chain Bridge, Frank C. Hanrahan, county manager, said yesterday in announcing he will authorize the District Army Engineers to make an estimate of the cost of relocating the two eight-inch mains now laid across the bridge.

In addition to the cost of relocating the present mains, Hanrahan is asking for the cost of installation of two 20-inch mains.

The county manager said he expected cost of relocating the two mains and installing the 20-inch mains would be approximately $40,000 to be financed by the county's water fund.

The two eight-inch mains have a daily capacity of 5,000,000 gallons while two 20-inch mains would give the county 20,000,000 gallons daily which should take care of the county's needs for many years.

Whether the county will make a survey to determine if it should establish a county-owned electric power plant is expected to be determined before the first of the year.

The county manager said yesterday he conferred with the firm of Wiley & Wilson, engineers, of Lynchburg, Va., to obtain further data.

Holdup Suspectt Picked by Witness

A witness to a holdup in a cafe at 1113-17 Seventeenth street northwest election night yesterday identified a man who said he was Freeman Bragg, 29, of the 1000 block of N street northwest, as one of two bandits who were fired upon as they fled the restaurant with $100 in cash.

Bragg was found in a Baltimore Hospital suffering from gunshot wounds in his chest and neck. It is believed by authorities he was wounded by a bullet from the pistol of Policeman Joseph Dellniger, who was eating a sandwich at the time.

Police, who accompanied the witness, brought the bullet extracted from Bragg's body. It will be examined by Lieut. John Fowler, ballistics expert, ot determine whether itw as the shell fired from Dellinger's gun.

Sirovich to Offer A New NRA Bill

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—Representative William I. Sirovich (Democrat), New York, said tonight he will introduce in Congress next January a "modified NRA" bill which he is drafting with the help of Columbia University professors and constitutional lawyers.

"The details are not yet complete, but we hope to present a bill that the Supreme Court cannot find unconstitutional," he said.

Sirovich, chairman of the House Committee on Patents, said the proposed bill would be based on these four fundamental principles:

Minimum wages, offering to everyone a living wage and preventing exploitation of labor by industry; maximum hours; abolition of child labor, and the right of collective bargaining.

The proposed bill, Sirovich said, would include a plan whereby code authorities would not be given sole right to administer the bill if it becomes a law.

Landover, Md., Woman Missing; Aid Is Asked

Washington police yesterday were asked to search for Mabel Elizabeth Sullivan, 25, who has been missing from her home in Landover, Md., since September 13.

Mrs. Sullivan was reported missing by her sister, Mrs. Beulah Boswell, with whom she made her home in Landover. Mrs. Boswell said her sister disappeared one night without taking any of her clothing or personal effects. The missing woman's father is seriously ill, it was said.

Schools to Close In Springfield, O.

Springfield, Ohio, Nov. 5 (AP).—The Springfield Board of Education approved a resolution tonight to close all city schools indefinitely after tomorrow's sessions because of lack of operating funds.

Coming on the heels of defeat of a proposed three-mill special levy designed to raise $240,000 a year for three years for operating expenses, the move affected 12,300 students and 381 teachers.

C. W. Evans, board president, reported that $66,000 due teachers and custodians of school buildings for last month's salaries probably will not be paid until December.

Civic Conference Urges New School

The joint conference of Northeast Citizens Associations met at the Twelfth Precinct station last night and voted to ask the Bureau of Budget to retain the appropriation for a new Bunker Hill School if the item had already been approved by the Commissioners.

It was also voted to ask the Public Utilities Commission to start four additional buses from Twelfth and Monroe streets northeast during the morning rush hour.

The conference decided to request the Commissioners to cut through South Dakota avenue to meet North Dakota avenue in Chillum. Officers elected last night were: President, A. F. E. Scheer; vice president, Robert M. Furniss, and secretary-treasurer, Willard A. Driggers.

Elevator Stuck 2 Hrs.; Passenger Drinks Beer

Edward Mitchell, 19, an employe of the Hoover Co., 1909 Massachusetts avenue northwest, last night put in two hours overtime he hadn't bragained for, when an elevator in which he was riding stuck fast half way between the first and second floors.

Mitchell calmly smoked his pipe and downed a can of beer while fire rescue squad men worked to extricate him. They were successful.

R. W. Echard Funeral Held At University

St. Augustine Student Buried Near School at Own Request.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 5.—Funeral services for Richard Wharton Echard, 25, of St. Augustine, Fla., student in the University of Virginia School of Arts and Sciences, were conducted at 11 a. m. yesterday in the Catholic Church, conducted by the Rev. John J. Brochtrup. According to his own wish, burial was in the student section in the university cemetery.

Mr. Echard was ill for eight days with a blood stream infection. After one year at the University of Pennsylvania, he entered Virginia in the fall of 1930, remaining for two years. Dropping out for a year on account of illness, he returned in September of this year to resume his studies for a bachelor's degree, majoring in pre-medicine. He was a member of Sigma Chi fraternity.

He was a son of Dr. Thomas B. and Olive Echard, of St. Augustine. Besides his parents he is survived by two brothers, Thomas C. Echard, Chicago, a former student in the University of Virginia, and William Robert Echard, now attending Pettie Academy, in Hightstown, N. J.

John Happel.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 5.—Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the Presbyterian Church for John Happel, 44, German-born tailor and antique dealer, who died at his home here yesterday morning.

Mr. Happel came to the United States in 1892 and before settling in Fredericksburg lived in Albany, N. Y. and Washington. He is survived by his wife and three children: Ralph Happel, of this city; Mrs. David Hanlon, Locust Valley, Long Island, and Carl Happel, New York City.

Mrs. Sadie H. Hutchins.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Prince Frederick, Md. Nov. 5.—Mrs. Sadie Humphreys Hutchins, 58, wife of Mr. Edgar Hutchins, died Tuesday night in her home at Cedar Hill, Calvert County. She had been in ill-health for some months. She is survived by her husband; a son, Edgar Hutchins, jr.; Joshua Humphreys, Baltimore, and a sister, Miss Alice Humphreys, Baltimore.

Funeral services were conducted at 2 p. m. today at her home by Dr. S. Paul Schilling. Burial was in the cemetery of Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church.

Charles Chilton.

Warrenton, Va., Nov. 5 (AP).—Funeral services for Charles Chilton, prominent farmer of Culpeper and Fauquier Counties and a director of the Bank of Remington, were held today at his home at Lakota, Culpeper County. He died Tuesday night of pneumonia and heart trouble.

Mr. Chilton, who is survived by his wife and four sons, was a vestryman of the Episcopal church at Remington.

W. O. Whitman.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Round Hill, Va., Nov. 5.—W. O. Whitman, 83, prominent farmer and landowner, of Loudoun County, died at his home near here this morning after a long illness. He was a native of southwest Virginia, and came to Loudoun County many years ago.

Mr. Whitman is survived by his wife and five children, Misses Eleanor, Naomi, Frances, Ruth Leslie and Wilbur O. Whitman, jr., at home. And two children by a former marriage, Mrs. Harrison Monroe, Washington, and Loudoun County, and W. J. Whitman, of this county. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow and burial will be in Ebenezer Cemetery.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 5.—Funeral services were held today for Martin L. Brown, 59, who was prominently identified with the printing business here for years. He died here yesterday at his home.

Mr. Brown is a native of Amherst County and a member of the College Hill Baptist Church, the Elks and Shriners. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Annie Yoder Brown, the five children, Wayland Y. Brown, Rome, Ga.; Calvin C. Brown, Martin L. Brown, jr., Mrs. Mary E. Brown and Miss Annie Yoder Brown, of Lynchburg, and five brothers and sisters, W. T. Brown, Washington; Walter W. Brown, Lynchburg; Mrs. J. T. Stracher, Bluefield, and Mrs. J. W. Coleman and Miss Lottie K. Brown, Lynchburg.

J. E. Mason.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 5.—Funeral services will be held here tomorrow afternoon for J. E. Mason, 75, resident of Berkeley County for 40 years, who died here at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Agnes Bell, Wednesday morning following a month's illness. Burial will be in Mount Hebron Cemetery, Winchester, Va.

He was born in the Whitacre section of Frederick County, Va.

Surviving are two children, Homer Mason and Mrs. Bell; two sisters, Mrs. Grace Haymaker, Winchester, and Mrs. John Herrell, Gore, Va., and two brothers, John, Shockeysville, Va., and Charles, Gore, Va.

She is survived by three other sons, Charles, Martin, W. Va.; Edgar, Antioch, W. Va., and Arnold Rotruck, Keyser, and three daughters, Mrs. George Doll, Antioch; Mrs. A. E. Dettenburn and Mrs. Andrew Rotruck, Keyser.

Benefactress, Resources Gone, Appeals for Aid for Burned Girl

Miss Dorothy Fenwick, 21, who was severely burned on the face and body when gasoline thrown by her mother exploded over a stove, soon may be deprived of the special nurses who are necessary to ease her suffering.

It costs $12 daily to have the nurses at the young woman's bedside and her brother and a kindly woman who have paid their salaries for the last week no longer are able to afford the expense.

Swathed in bandages, unable to speak above a whisper or raise her hands to push a bell, Miss Fenwick is subjected to extreme torture unless someone is constantly at her bedside to drop a few drops of water through her fevered lips, or moisten bandages with soothing lotions.

The courage and fortitude of the young woman—she "celebrated" her twenty-first birthday Monday—have won the devotion of the staff nurses at Gallinger. They do everything in their power for her, but their duties call them to all parts of the floor and sometimes as long as an hour may pass before they are able to return to her room.

Understaffed, hospital officials explained they were unable to assign a special nurse to Miss Fenwick's room without sacrificing the welfare of another patient.

The woman who has been paying for Miss Fenwick's private night nurse said that if anyone could see the courage of the young girl that person would not leave anything undone which might ease her pain.

"I have reached the end of my resources," explained the woman. "The girl's brother who has been paying for the special day nurse earns only $22.50 a week. He got an advance of his salary to pay the nurse last week and now, he, too, has reached the end of his resources.

"I am appealing to The Post in the hope that one of your readers might learn of the poor girl's plight and help her."

Democrats Win Governorships In 27 States

By the Associated Press.

Mounting majorities yesterday assured 27 States of new Democratic Governors and apparently clinched an additional gubernatorial victory in Iowa.

In North Dakota, William Langer, leader of a non-partisan faction within the Republican Party, was elected Governor from a field of five but only by a slim plurality.

Kraschel Ahead.

With only a few precincts missing, Nels G. Kraschel appeared headed for victory in Iowa over George A. Wilson, his Republican adversary for the governorship.

Thus, Democratic Governors were assured for at least 38 States with the beginning of the new year inasmuch as 11 offices not involved in Tuesday's voting already are held by that party.

Latest tabulations confirmed Democratic victories in Arkansas, Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Indiana, Tennessee, Florida, Illinois, Massachusetts, Kansas, Missouri, Michigan, New Mexico, Nebraska, New York, North Carolina, Texas, Georgia, Rhode Island, Idaho, Ohio, Washington, West Virginia and Utah.

Jensen Defeats Berry.

Seeking a third term in defiance of State tradition, Gov. Tom Berry, Democrat, was forced to admit his defeat by Leslie Jensen, Republican nominee in South Dakota.

Gov. Alfred M. Landon's former secretary, Will G. West, Republican, lost the Kansas governorship to Walter Huxman, Democratic standard bearer.

Frank Murphy, America's high commissioner to the Philippines, captured the Michigan chief executive's office from the Republican incumbent, Frank Fitzgerald.

Ten incumbents were included in the list of Democratic victors.

Election Bet Winner Given Six-Mile Ride

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Woodstock, Va., Nov. 5.—Baldy Reynard, Edinburg citizen bearing a placard, "I voted for Roosevelt," reached court square here at 4 p. m. today in a wheelbarrow, pushed from Edinburg, a distance of 6 miles, by Edward M. Clem, jr., Republican commissioner of revenue of Shenandoah County, in "payment" of an election bet.

A large crowd witnessed the start at Edinburg, and others gathered along the highway to watch the automobile cavalcade, led by the wheelbarrow. Clem and Reynard made the bet three months ago following a heated political argument. A section of the Massanutten Military Academy Band met the procession at the edge of Woodstock and led it to the Shenandoah County courthouse, where 1,000 witnessed the end of the journey.

Over $40,000 Given By Virginia Democrats

Richmond, Nov. 5 (AP).—M. A. Hutchinson, secretary of the Democratic State central committee, announced today that citizens of Virginia contributed to the national Democratic campaign fund a quota "far beyond" the $37,500 originally assigned the State. Hutchinson's announcement was made following preliminary reports given him by State Senator Robert W. Daniel, of Prince George, State financier director for the national committee.

More than 1,000 subscribers, none of them corporations, contributed more than $40,000 to Senator Daniel's division, Hutchinson said, with a number of contributions still to be tallied.

Administration To Strengthen Farm Program

Wallace Also Hints Steps for Crop Insurance in Press Talk.

By Robert C. Albright.

Strengthening of the Administration's farm program in the next Congress, together with a cautious approach to crop insurance, and general fulfillment of New Deal farm promises, was indicated yesterday by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace.

Encouraged by the size of the President's farm vote in the Midwest and Great Plains States, Wallace interpreted rural polling as general indorsement of trends in farm planning, though showing scattered dissatisfaction with some phases of the program.

Forecasts of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics meanwhile pointed to a 10 per cent increase in the national income next year, bolstering market prospects for farm products. The bureau predicted a national income of $86,000,000,000 in 1937, increases in industrial production and some gains in commodity prices.

In his first post-election press conference, Wallace received reporters following a day's talk with insurance company representatives on crop insurance plans. Consensus of opinion was that the Government should handle the program rather than private companies, Wallace said. Warehousing representatives will be called into conference today, and more than 100 farmers will be consulted tomorrow. Actuarial basis for the new Federal crop insurance, which probably will start with a single commodity—wheat—will be ready in December.

Sees Acreage Expansion.

Wide expansion in next year's acreage, possibly leading to a bumper wheat crop of 900,000,000 bushels or more if normal weather returns, was foreseen by the AAA chief on the basis of reports from the field. Indications are the Government this year will make no move to influence planting either way.

Drought wheat inroads in recent years have cut supplies down to the consumption level.

Wallace indicated farmers this year are "superstitious" about the weather, and are willing to take the chance that good weather will follow the recent drought cycle. The Secretary anticipates corn plantings will jump with wheat.

Launching of a Federal crop insurance program, which will require Congressional authorization, will not mean curtailment of benefit payments to farmers, Wallace indicated. He welcomed co-operation by insurance companies, and said the degree of its operation will, in the last analysis, be up to the farmers. The Secretary anticipates about 30,000,000 bushels in wheat "premiums" would be paid in in the first year.

Wallace had nothing to say on the President's campaign proposals for aid to tenant farmers and sharecroppers in acquiring their own farms. In another quarter it was learned that tentative plans call for an initial appropriation of $50,000,000 to provide for about 10,000 tenants.

Conservative Start Urged.

Insurance officials are said yesterday to have advised a "conservative" start in Federal crop insurance. Wallace indicated the Government would probably absorb the administrative costs, but in the end might save money by a drop in expenditures for farm relief.

Improvement in foreign demand for American farm goods was seen by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics yesterday as result of recent trade agreement developments and indirect effects of devaluation and stabilizing trends in foreign currencies.

"Improved demand and shorter supplies of some commodities will result in higher prices for farm products during the first half of 1937, compared with the similar period of 1936," said the bureau.

Close Iowa Race Won by Kraschel

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 5 (AP).—Nels G. Kraschel, Democratic candidate for Iowa's Governor, finished ahead of Republican Candidate George Wilson in the final unofficial tabulation of Iowa's vote tonight, but his margin was only 1,055 votes in the State's 2,442 precincts.

The final unofficial vote was: Kraschel, 518,997; Wilson, 517,942.

Tragedy Is Fresh in Memory Of Mother of Corinna Loring

'Never Out of My Mind,' She Says as Carpenters Work on Remodeling of Home; Recalls Working in Flowers With Daughter.

Yesterday at 3110 Beech street, Mount Rainier, Md., carpenters' hammers beat a steady tattoo as they put finishing touches on an upstairs apartment. In the front yard an elderly woman raked up leaves.

"I just do this for exercise," she said. "It really doesn't do any good. The leaves will be right back again tomorrow."

Time has failed to erase the memory of the tragedy that befell Mrs. Frances Loring just a year ago when her 27-year-old daughter, Corinna, disappeared on the eve of her wedding to Richard Tear, St. Elizabeths Hospital attendant.

Mrs. Loring paused. She seemed to be thinking of those days when she and Corinna worked in their flower garden together—yes, and raked the autumn leaves off the front lawn in that serene little neighborhood on the outskirts of Washington.

"It's never out of my mind," she said.

"Sometimes, do you feel like giving in?" Mrs. Lorning was asked.

"Yes, I do," she replied, "but I don't do it."

It was a tragedy tha few mothers experience. The brutally murdered body of her daughter was found in a clump of bushes on lonely Saddleback Ridge several blocks from their home. That was five days after that fatal night when Corinna failed to come home for the first time in her life.

The weeks that followed were a nightmare. Hardly had her daughter been buried from the church where she had taught Sunday school when Mrs. Loring was forced to submit to endless hours of questioning by Lieut. Joseph Itzel and other investigators seeking a "break" in the still unsolved murder.

Today she seeks to divert her mind from thoughts of the shocking crim with a number of varied interests. Always an ardent churchgoer, she finds comfort in teaching two Sunday school classes—one for adults and the other for juniors—at the Mount Rainier Methodist Church. She also belongs to the Mount Rainier Civic League and to several social organizations.

At present workmen are completing the remodeling of the second story of her home. Yesterday she looked at the new second floor with an appraising eye.

"It looks real 'homey' up there now," she said.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

"Without exception the world's greatest player and teacher," Ely Culbertson says.

A Type Hand.

Today's hand would be played automatically by an expert; the average player would struggle with it and might succeed in playing it correctly; the beginner would miss it entirely

Yet this is a type hand. It recurs, with very slight modifications, hundreds of times in the year of every assiduous bridge player. Examine it carefully and follow the reasoning behind the correct line of play.

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 notrump	Pass	3 notrump	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened the six of hearts. Before playing a card from dummy, South analyzed the hand.

He was sure of making three club tricks and one heart. The spade suit could not possibly provide more than three winners. That meant that the diamond suit had to provide at least two tricks if South were to make the nine tricks he had bid for.

But unless West had the King of diamonds the development of the suit would permit East to gain the lead. If he could at that time lead a heart, the contract was very unlikely of fulfillment. If he could not lead a heart, West would have no means of getting the lead to take the rest of his established suit.

The means of exhausting East's hearts before touching the diamonds was very simple. South just played low on the first two heart leads and took the third lead of the suit.

Then the Queen of diamands was led and, as was feared, East won with the King. He returned a low spade and South had his second problem; to finesse or not.

But South counted up his tricks again in the light of the establishment of the diamonds. He had already taken a heart and was sure of three clubs. Four diamonds could now be ta'.en. Only one spade trick was necessary.

Since a finesse would risk the loss of 400 points and could not gain more than 30 points, South played the Ace of spades and took his tricks.

Margin Is 645,494 In Pennsylvania

The vote from 7,929 districts out of 8,010 gave Roosevelt, 2,327, 618; Landon, 1,682,124.

Hans Andersen Stories Thrill Many Shut-Ins

An amazed group of youngsters at the Washington Sanitarium for Tuberculosis Children, Glenn Dale, Md., yesterday heard the immortal tales of Hans Christian Andersen, as told by Jacob Texiere, an actor from Anderson's native Denmark, whose life work is the telling of his countryman's stories.

Told with expert understanding and accompanied with highly expressive gestures, the stories brought first amazement and then hilarity from the 60 children, ranging from 6 to 10 years old.

One little colored girl, hearing Texiere's really startling imitation of a bantam rooster, slipped from her chair and tried to hide behind it.

Possibly some of the children had heard the stories before. More likely they had not. Although Texiere spoke with a broad Danish accent so that his words were not always clear, these 60 youngsters forgot the nurses and doctors sitting around them, forgot the reason they were in the sanitarium, and screamed their laughter at the antics of the elderly actor.

When he finished, Texiere said "Farewell, farewell . . ." but as the children seemed puzzled, he laughed, "So long" . . . this time they laughed and chorused the more familiar phrase.

Texiere, a smiling gentleman of the old Continental tradition, chose the Washington Sanitarium for his first recital in America, because proceeds from the first series of Red Cross Christmas seals in Denmark 30 years ago were used to build a children's tubercular hospital in Copenhagen.

The Danish actor was obviously delighted at his success . . . not for himself, but because these American children had listened to the stories of Anderson with the same pleasure as the children of Berlin, Copenhagen, Stockholm and Helsingfors.

"That is because Hans Andersen knew more about children than any of the modern school of writers," he said.

"Sometimes people ask me if our children today are not too sophisticated for fairy stories. These people do not understand that children always are the same in any country and any age.

"That is why Hans Andersen always will be the greatest children's writer—he understood the eternal mind of the child."

Influenza Cure Reported Possible

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 5 (AP).—Dr. Wilson G. Smillie, professor in the Harvard School of Public Health, told the Ohio Conference of Health Commissioners today that there is "a definite possibility" science has discovered a cure for influenza.

The possibility exists, Dr. Smillie said, through immunization with a vaccine developed in experiments with the ferret as a subject.

"Using ferrets extensively during early experiments," he said, "We were able to isolate and study the virus. Then we definitely determined that vaccination with virus protected the animals from the disease.

"Later a few human volunteers were vaccinated, and observation indicated in almost every case that they too were immune from further exposure."

Dr. Smillie added, however, that experiments must be continued for perhaps several years. Another epidemic such as that of 1918 would be an effective test for the practice now developed, he said.

Rios Calls Foes Of Madrid New 'Holy Alliance'

Ambassador Tells Foreign Affairs Group Election Loss Angered Rebels.

Denouncing the "Holy Alliance of the totalitarian states that is helping the absolutist cause in Spain because of the inaction of the shrinking, frightened democracies," Don Fernando de los Rios, Madrid's envoy to the United States, yesterday told the Council of Foreign Affairs the "humanistic and renascent idea of man as supreme symbol of culture, to which all else should be subordinated, is now being crucially tested," in his strife-torn land.

"Deposition from economic control meant also the deposition from political control," the ambassador summed up, after asserting the pillars of the old regime—the church, the army and the aristocracy—banded themselves together to defeat last February's overwhelming victory of ballots with the "bullets of reaction."

"If a morale of a class is measured by the way in which it reacts to its fiscal duties, as Mr. Roosevelt said in an admirable speech, it is enough to know that the average hoarding of wealth in the powerful agrarian classes, according to the census statistics, oscillates between 350 and 400 per cent," he said.

Then what does the actual movement of the Spanish rebels really signify?" Madrid's envoy asked, and answered:

"Nothing new in regard to that which the directing forces of the political life of Spain represented in the sixteenth century: intolerance, absolute control of conscience, and preservation of a social-economic structure by introduction of an absolutist regime that tried to impose itself through terror. They thought the hour historically propitious; and, in fact, it is. Thus, in 1823 did the Holy Alliance of the absolutists resolve to send an army to Spain to crush the liberal movement."

THE BLACK AUTOMATIC

by William Byron Mowery

CHAPTER 32.

After carefully inspecting the Vickers and planting rocks against the tripod, Noel crept over beside Harla. With her rifle thrust through a chink she was lying flat behind a bowlder, watching the camp below.

"Cold?" he asked.

"My hands are, a little bit. I wish I had pockets, like you. These granite rocks are like ice."

"I'll fix you up. We need our trigger fingers in good shape." He took her right hand, cupped it in his and blew on it. "That help any?"

"A lot—thanks."

He felt her hand trembling and saw that she was badly frightened. For all her wild Indian girlhood and tomboyish experiences she was a gentle girl at heart; and this life-and-death battle looming up had awed and shaken her.

He hoped she would not go to pieces when the fight broke open. If she shot with her usual deadliness she would be of tremendous help. Strange that she, who had never heard the zz-ing of a bullet meant to kill or felt the hot shock of a bullet striking her, should be a dead shot, while he himself, who could have filed half a dozen notches on his black automatic, was only ordinary with a gun.

At last two men emerged from the big cabin in the drogue. One was young Paul d'Orleans. The other was a thin, smallish white man of 45, who had been one of the contestants at the McMurray rifle match.

"Who is that older man, Harla?"

"The others call him Jed. He's Flood's lieutenant. He and Paul are our two bad ones, Noel. They're both extraordinary shots. If your plan doesn't work and we have to fight, we ought to get them first. But I wish that young Paul was out of this."

That same wish rested with Noel. Young and thoughtless, Paul d'Orleans had hooked up with Flood in a spirit of adventure, exactly as so many city youngsters of good mettle were victimized by the false glamor of a lawless life.

After throwing fresh wood on the campfire coals, young d'Orleans strode over to the torrent, peeled off his leather shirt and lustily splashed water over himself, snorting like a young bull moose; but the man called Jed crouched down at the fire and spread his hands to the warmth of the flames.

Young d'Orleans came back and started to cook breakfast. As he worked he kept talking, joking; and some remark from him made his companion laugh. At that laugh Noel stiffened and his face went hard. He had heard that evil laugh before—out of the mist and moonlight of a Winnipeg night. It resurrected a memory, vivid as a lightning flash, of Jimmy clutching at his breast and sinking to the floor.

Wantonly this man had laughed then, in confidence that he and his shadowy confederates could never be trailed and made to pay.

"Harla"—he touched her arm—"for certain reasons I want you to get that man there. We may never walk out of this valley alive, but neither must he!"

After ladling the food into tin plates young d'Orleans picked up a stick of wood and sent it whanging against the door of the big cabin.

"You, in dere!" he yelled. "Pile out of dem pokes, you lazy sons of a blue bull-mink. How you speck to tom-rock yourself a t'ousan' dollar wort' of dust today if you poun' de ear till noon? Make it sneep-snap, ir I'll eat op all your breakfusses myself!"

The rest of the men came outside, sleepy-eyed, pulling on their shirts and jackets as they came, and Noel had his first look at Flood's formidable outfit.

Ranging all the way from city whites to that dusky Yellowknife, they were a queer assortment of men to be running in the same pack. Only Flood's genius at gang leadership could have welded them into a tight, smooth-working group. Each in his own fashion, they were outstanding individuals, picked for some special quality. Besides the man called Jed, and young d'Orleans, who was hunter and guide, and the Yellowknife, who was tracker and bush-scout for the party, there were two Nahanni half-breeds and three whites and Flood himself.

Of those white men one was a shaggy-haired northern prospector, exuberant of spirit, like Paul d'Orleans. He evidently was boss of the placer workings, and those two huge Nahannis, as big and lumbersome as bears, were his chief helpers.

The other two whites looked to Noel like products of a city alley. One was the pilot whom he had seen at Manitou. The other was Flood's machine gunner.

After nodding good morning to his men and telling them to "hit that placer hard today," Flood beckoned the pilot aside and talked with him alone, evidently making arrangements to fly Harla away from there.

Noel looked at Harla and saw her fingers tighten on the rifle barrel as she gazed down at Flood, and he was afraid that in the passion of a hot battle she would forget her solemn promise and drive a bullet at the man, especially if he tried to sneak out of the fight and get away.

After this talk with the pilot Flood started for Jimmy's place, and as he neared it he said to the Yellowknife sentry, who was still guarding the empty cabin:

"Thanks for watching here, Stahmix. Go and get your breakfast. I want you to slip down the Dinokui River today and keep an eye on that Shagalasha detail and find out if you can if this Lanier man is under arrest."

He strode on to the cabin and knocked.

Noel motioned down at the camp. "Lord, what a layout, Harla—what a perfect layout for us, if we wanted to take it?" There they were, all those men, close around that breakfast fire and wide open to the Vickers. He could get them all, the whole pack, with one long burst; and Flood, 30 yards from them, was entirely out of the danger zone. In his hands lay a chance such as he had never remotely dreamed of when he broke arrest and started up the Dinokui alone. Within the space of 30 seconds he could destroy that entire outfit and take Flood alive and avoid all danger of a battle, in which Harla might get killed.

Debating fiercely, he glanced at the camp, then at Harla, beside him. Her life was infinitly more precious than the lives of those eight. Murder, poison and machine guns and then their unspeakably brutal attempt to wipe out a tribe of harmless innocent people—they had forfeited all right to mercy.

He turned toward the Vickers, to seize his fine chance before it passed. But Harla stopped him.

"Noel, don't! Don't make a shambles of that breakfast fire. It'd be too much like murder. Give them a chance to take your terms, Noel. If they turn you down and start the fight themselves, then we won't have any blood-guilt on our hands."

At the little cabin Flood knocked twice, and when he got no answer he opened the door an inch and peered inside. With a startled oath he flung the door wide and stepped upon the threshold.

For moments he stood there, stock-still, a picture of dumfounded surprise, staring at his sleeping-poke on the floor, at the bunk, the slashed-out window.

With no great effort Noel could imagine the man's thoughts. That empty cabin was a double-barreled disaster to Flood. He had lost not only Harla but the placer, too, for if Harla escaped down the river to the mounted detail and told them about him, he would have to abondon his rich prize and clear out of the north altogether.

Flood whirled around, presently, and looked at the campfire, at the Indian to whom he had intrusted the guarding of that cabin; and his fists clenched and unclenched as he glared at him.

New Trial Abandoned In Stoll Kidnaping

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 5 (AP).—Counsel for Thomas H. Robinson, jr., who is serving a life prison sentence for the $50,000 kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, abandoned their efforts for a new trial in Federal District Court today.

The action came on the final day allowed by Judge Elwood Hamilton for the filing of affidavits in support of the claim that Robinson was insane when he pleaded guilty here May 13. Judge Hamilton overruled a motion for a new trial at a hearing last month but withheld entering of the order at the request of Robinson's counsel.

Oral Appeal Rejected In Clevenger Murder

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 5 (AP).—The North Carolina Supreme Court declined to hear oral appeal arguments today in the case of Martin Moore, Asheville Negro, who faces death by gas for the murder of Helen Clevenger, of Staten Island, N. Y., ruling the appeal had not been properly perfected.

The New York University student was killed in her room at a fashionable Asheville hotel during the night of July 15. Arrested several weeks later, Moore confessed, but repudiated his statement at his trial and claimed it was forced from him.

ANNOUNCING THE GREATEST CARS IN CADILLAC HISTORY and the Price Surprise of 1937!

Here are the cars that will be the price surprise of 1937—the new La Salle, now powered with a Cadillac V-8 engine; the new Cadillac Series "60" and "65"; and the new Cadillac-Fleetwood V-8, V-12 and V-16!

Eight different American-built cars have models costing more than the new V-8 La Salle. Five different cars have models actually higher in price than the new Cadillac Series "60"!

The new V-8 La Salle is not only the lowest-priced La Salle ever offered by Cadillac—now well within reach of the average buyer—but it is also the finest. It gives you the smoothness, the performance and the dependability that only a 125-horsepower V-8 engine built by Cadillac can provide. In fact, the new V-8 La Salle is completely Cadillac-built!

The new Cadillac Series "60", now increased to 135 horsepower, is but a short step above La Salle in price. It offers Cadillac beauty, Cadillac comfort, and Cadillac performance at the lowest price in twenty-five years.

The Cadillac Series "65" is an entirely new member of the Royal Family of Motordom. It provides, at a price slightly higher than the Series "60", the advantages of an even longer chassis and a custom Body by Fisher.

The new Cadillac-Fleetwood V-8, V-12 and V-16 stand alone for styling, luxury and distinction. They are completely qualified to increase Cadillac's established leadership in the fine car field.

These four great lines are cars to see at your first opportunity. Priced sensationally lower—improved in every respect—with remarkable economy of operation and upkeep, they show the world how to lead in value as well as in quality. WPA Employe Enters Second Pay Complaint

Watchman, in Capital Again, Calls on Senator Instead of Hopkins.

New Deal victory to the contrary, WPA worker Harry Espy is sore. And when he left Washington yesterday for his home town his brow was black as thunder clouds.

Harry is employed as watchman on a project in the Armleder Building, Cincinnati, where 1,500 girl knit and sew for $60.50 a month each.

Two weeks ago when the President swung through Cincinnati on his final campaign tour the girls were given permission to take time off and greet him, Harry said. For that hour-or-so-holiday they were docked 34 cents, Harry complained, and though a protest was lodged by the Workers Alliance no redress has been made.

So Harry came to Washington. He was here a week ago, too, to lodge another complaint. At that time Administrator Hopkins could not see him, but he was "called on the carpet" by his superiors when he returned home. They called him an "ingrate" and other uncomplimentary names and told him he should come to them alone when an adjustment had to be made. They said all complaints were handled by Dr. Carl Watson, WPA administrator at Columbus, Ohio, and that the Washington office was too busy to attned to such minor details.

But Harry had lost faith, and this trip he did not attempt to see Hopkins. He went to the Capitol instead, and said he received a promise from Senator Robert J. Buckley's office that "immediate action would be taken."

What was your first complaint? Harry was queried.

"We lost a day's pay in the middle of October," he replied. "When we demanded an explanation they told us it was due to a change in pay roll. Change or no change, we never got that day's pay."

Eddie Guerin Alive; Claims Share in Will

Chicago, Nov. 5 (AP).—Reported dead many times, Eddie Guerin, 75, notorious criminal of two continents, who once escaped from Devils Island, French penal colony off the coast of South America, has been found in London living a respectable life, his attorney, William S. Kleinman, said today.

Kleinman, who returned to Chicago from England several days ago, said he had been empowered by the former Chicago pickpocket, jewel thief and dynamiter, to represent him as one of the five heirs to a $67,000 estate left by Guerin's sister, Mrs. Harriet A. Mitchell, widow of a Chicago broker, who died in May.

Locher Still Has $25; NoUnionistVoted G.O.P.

John Locher, Washington's organized labor spokesman by virtue of his presidency of the Central Labor Union, executive secretary of the Building Trades Council and vice president of the Maryland State-District of Columbia Federation of Labor, brought an amusing story to Commissioner Allen's home-coming conference yesterday.

"While the cmapaign was on," he said, "I had a standing offer of $25 to anyone who could produce a union man working in Washington who was planning to vote the Republican ticket.

"I've still got my $25."

Three Children, Four Men Burned to Death

Madawaska, Me., Nov. 5 (AP).—Three small children perished today in a fire which destroyed the home of Joseph Pelletier and damaged six other houses. The children, the oldest four years, were alone when the blaze swept swiftly through the house. Neighbors recovered the bodies.

St. Louis, Nov. 5 (AP).—Four men were burned to death today in a fire at the Fred Schmitt Building Material Co.

Fire Spreads Terror To 20 in Virginia Jail

Chesterfield Courthouse, Va., Nov. 5 (AP).—Fire in the Chesterfield County Jail this morning threw the 20 prisoners locked in a smoke-filled cell block into a near panic before it was extinguished.

The blaze broke out in the lath between the plastering of a wall where a stovepipe passes through a partitiin. Tehhified prisoners called for help and a portion of the wall was torn out and the fire extinguished. Little damage was done.

First January Inaugural Here Likely to Beat Crowds Record

Washington Partisans of President Predict Celebration Surpassing That of 1933, With Spirit of People Higher Now With Hopefulness.

And now for an old-fashioned inauguration.

Having been elected to another term by the greatest popular vote in all history, Franklin D. Roosevelt will take his second oath of office on January 20 instead of March 4, the first President inaugurated under the twentieth (lame duck) amendment that allows only 11 weeks for preparation.

The new January date may or may not be colder than the traditional March 4, but local Democrats told The Post last night that they expected nevertheless a vast crowd of jubilant Roosevelt admirers to invade the city for the inaugural ceremonies.

These Democrats saw no reason why a change in the date should mean a change in the spirit of the occasion, and they predicted that the celebration this time would be even greater than the last.

1933 Was Colemn.

When Roosevelt was inaugurated on that blustery day in March, 1933, they recalled, the country was depressed and scared. Banks were crashing all over the country, and hoarding had taken the place of spending.

Today, they pointed out, the country is on the up-grade, money is flowing again and the country has asked for a continuance of Roosevelt's policies by an electoral vote that was all but unanimous.

Therefore, they said, a good old-fashioned inaugural jubilee would seem to be in order, with historic Pennsylvania Avenue again roped off for the traditional parade. This parade, it was suggested, should be colorful but not too long.

A parade in January is by no means unusual. The famous Mummers parade in Philadelphia has been held on New Year's day for a half century or more, attended sometimes by good weather, sometimes by foul, but marked always by plenty of fun.

Luck May Stay.

In the case of the first January 20 in augural here, there is "Roosevelt lucn" to be considered. When he went into the drought region it rained. If, in some other locality, it had been raining too much, it stopped when he arrived to make an outdoor speech. Therefore, it wouldn5t surprise some admirers if next January 20 actually were balmy.

In any event, local Democrats look for a crowd of visitors that will pack every hotel in town and perhaps plenty of Pullman cars out in the yards.

The form the inaugural celebration is to take, of course, will be decided by President Roosevelt. As a rule the President usually delegates such matters to the national chairman—in this case, Postmaster General James A. Farley.

Democratic leaders here plan to confer with Farley when he comes here to attend today's Cabinet meeting at the White House.

Driver Is Detained After Girl Is Hurt

Nola Harris, 18, was injured critically late yesterday when she was struck by an automobile driven by Harvey Grubbs, of the 1200 block of N street northwest, on the Washington-Richmond highway, near Virginia Highlands.

The victim, who lives in South Washington, was taken to Emergency Hospital, where physicians said her skull was fractured and both her arms broken.

Grubbs was released on $1,000 bond, pending outcome of the girl's injuries. He told police she stepped directly into the path of his automobile.

Education Held Need In Democracy Success

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 5 (AP).—Dr. George F. Zook, of Washington, D. C., president of the American Council on Education, declared tonight that success of American democracy "lies in extending secondary education to a university which will make for an intelligent public opinion among voters of the Nation."

In an address prepared for delivery before the opening session of the thirty-second High School Conference at the University of Illinois, Dr. Zook said:

"Any approximation of success in democratic government through the devise of universal suffrage rests squarely upon universal education."

Japan Sends Protest To China in Stabbing

Shanghai (Friday), Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Kaname Wakasugi, Japanese consul general here, today lodged a vigorous protest against the stabbing of Chigeru Kagoshima, a Japanese, by an unidentified Chinese at Hongkew. Wakasugi reported the incident to Mayor Wu Teh-Chen and demanded better protection for Japanese nationals.

Threat on Carol's Life Seen in Nazi Challenge

Bucharest, Nov. 5 (U.P.).—A challenge to King Carol which political observers interpreted as a threat to his life was hurled tonight by the anti-Semitic, pro-Nazi "Iron Guards" leader, Cornelius Codreanu.

In a public manifesto, he told government leaders that if Rumania went to war on the side of Russia the country's youth would "fire guns against those who sent it to war." His public threat, addresed to the King, apparently results from Rumania's recent orrientation toward Soviet Russia.

Airplane Corporation Formed in Baltimore

Baltimore, Nov. 5 (AP).—Articles of incorporation for the Fairchild Engine & Airplane Corporation were on file today with the State tax commission.

The documents, filed by Roswelll L. Gilpatric, Robert D. Gordon and Benjamin R. Shute, all of New York, list the purposes of the firm as including the manufacture, assembly, sale and development of all types of aircraft. The principal Maryland offices of the corporation will be in Baltimore.

Snuff-Boxes Bring $1,966,640 at Sale

London, Nov. 5 (AP).—The art collection of the late C. H. T. Hawkins, composed mainly of snuff-boxes, brought £403,000 ($1,966,640) at auction today.

Hawkins, who maintained agents in almost every country to send him snff-boxes, spent thousands of pounds annually on his hobby and set apart a West End mansion to house his treasures.

On the night after his death 30 years ago, thieves tried to break into the house, but the collection was too well guarded for them to succeed.

Tariff Commission; Dr. Floyd M. Riddick, professor of political science at American University and R. L. McKeever, local real estate man.

Quintuplets Are Born In Carolina; All Dead

Durham, N. C., Nov. 5 (AP).—Duke Hospital physicians tonight said a white woman whom they declined to identify gave birth today to quintuplets, all of whom were dead at birth.

Hospital officials said the babies were born prematurely to a woman of "a nearby town." They said she entered the hospital two days ago. Doctors said the condition of the woman, mother of a 10-months old child, is "good."

Trailers Included In D. C. Auto Show

For the first time in the history of annual automobile shows, a comprehensive display of cabin trailers, representing a great new infant industry, will be included in the seventeenth annual auto show of the Washington Automotive Trade Association.

With indications it will be motordom's largest and most interesting exposition in years, the event will take place the week of November 14 to 21 in Calvert Exhibit Hall, 2701 Calvert street northwest, opposite the Shoreham Hotel.

R. J. Murphy, manager of the association and show director, has completed plans for the interior decoration scheme for the exhibit hall, which will be executed in the national colors, red, white and blue, dominating a setting designed to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the Constitution in 1937.

Twenty makes of cars will be represented in various body styles at the show. In addition, there will be displays by automotive accessory manufacturers and automobile clubs.

Mr. Hull's Triumph.

Among those who have very real reason for congratulating themselves on the outcome of last Tuesday's election is Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

For more than three years, in season and out, he had fought with unfailing courage and pertinacity for ideals that were very close to his heart. From the very beginning it was his view that the "good neighbor" policy adumbrated by President Roosevelt had a positive side; that in addition to refraining from doing anything that would antagonize other nations it was essential for this Nation to make a positive contribution to a better international order. And as he saw it the fundamental contribution for the United States to make was to help break the log-jam choking international trade.

At first his was a voice crying in the wilderness. During the early days of the New Deal the dominant philosophy of the Administration was narrowly nationalist. Those were the days when national planning and monetary manipulation were held up as royal roads to recovery.

Disturbed as he was by the President's assault on the London economic conference of 1933, Mr. Hull stuck it out. The passage of the trade agreements act gave him the opportunity he was seeking. Slowly and unspectacularly he forwarded one reciprocal pact after another, convinced that in so doing he was serving both his Nation and the world.

The favorable response to his activities in this connection has been cumulative as more and more people have recognized the significance of what Mr. Hull is doing. He won to the Administration many otherwise hostile to New Deal policies and kept many old-line Democrats in line. For on this subject the Republican platform was full of inconsistencies and the speeches of the Republican candidate anything but reassuring.

It is, in view of the decision of November 3, entirely in order for Mr. Hull to declare as he now has done that the election constituted an indorsement of the Administration's foreign policies during the last four years.

Evidently the American people feel that no mistake was made when a large measure of discretionary power was given to the executive arm of government in negotiating reciprocal trade agreements. It is a pity similar discretionary powers were not also embodied in the neutrality act. By tying the hands of the executive in this sphere real achievement of neutrality is rendered more difficult.

The Stock Market Response.

The sharp rise in stock prices since the election is generally regarded as a somewhat excited resumption of an upward trend which has been in evidence for many months. Regardless of the political outcome it had been expected that the advance would continue after the brief period of hesitancy which preceded the voting.

The divorce of stock market movements from political influences has, in fact, been a topic of discussion for some time, accepted as evidence of growing optimism over the business outlook. The chief explanation of the present strength of the stock market, therefore, is to be found in rising trade and production indices and improved earnings of industrial corporations. President Roosevelt's victory is, generally speaking, a subordinate factor in determining current trends, although it did account for post-election declines in public utility stocks because of distrust of the Administration's regulatory policies in this field.

The situation today is radically different from that prevailing in the summer of 1933 when we experienced a brief speculative boom in stocks and commodities. At that time, of course, the country was concerned about the prospects of general inflation, following the collapse of the London monetary conference and President Roosevelt's declaration in favor of a so-called "commodity dollar." There was then no substantial basis for the rise in the speculative markets, and within a short time the inevitable collapse came. Today, the upturn is based upon a much more solid foundation and does not need to be sustained by anticipations of inflation.

Thus the reaction of the stock market to the Roosevelt victory is apparently devoid of any strictly political significance. It does not indicate that Wall Street feels more confidence in the policies of the Administration and has lost its distrust for spending policies that jeopardize the public credit. It does show, however, that fears are in abeyance so far as the immediate future is concerned.

The strength of the bond market is likewise not to be interpreted as an expression of confidence in the future stability of the dollar, but rather as a renewal of confidence in the continuance of easy money policies.

Local Gains In The Election.

Washington may reasonably expect from the new Congress more sympathetic consideration for its problems than they have received in recent years. It is especially gratifying to note the return of Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House District Committee. Mrs. Norton has been so fair and conscientious in her assignment that she is undoubtedly the choice of District residents for the same office during the next two years.

Mrs. Norton's sweeping victory in New Jersey, coupled with Representative Blanton's overwhelming defeat in the Texas primaries, should forever set at rest the myth that members of Congress are likely to be ousted by their constituents for being friendly to the District. Mr. Blanton carried his fight against local interests to such extremes that he should have become a popular hero under that assumption. But the electorate snowed him under, apparently because his tactics both at home and in Washington had become obnoxious to them.

On similar principles, Mrs. Norton's courageous fight for fair play in debate and for consideration of District bills on their merits doubtless contributed to her popularity. By handling Washington's legislative affairs with efficiency and good judgment she strengthened her reputation as a competent legislator. Her service in behalf of the District was doubtless only one factor in her success at the polls, but its significance is nonetheless evident.

Several Representatives who have taken a narrow view of District problems were returned. Without the leadership of Mr. Blanton, however, they may take a new tack. In any circumstances it is hoped that the new formula to govern fiscal relations between the Federal Government and the Capital City will be ready for application to the next budget. With that controversy settled, the tension which has existed in the House over local measures should be automatically relieved.

Washingtonians will note with regret the defeat of Representative Fred J. Sisson, leader of the fight in the last session to repeal the Red rider forbidding the District schools to teach anything concerning communism. Even though this ridiculous controversy was injected into the campaign in the Thirty-third New York District, it cannot be assumed that it was a major element in the outcome. Mr. Sisson's district is dominated by dairying interests that are not favorably disposed toward the New Deal.

In any event, his narrow failure of reelection does not offset the gain resulting from the defeat of Mr. Blanton, author of that infamous encroachment upon educational freedom. The repeal bill must still be considered one of the important measures awaiting Congress on its return.

The Minor Parties.

As long as it remained a force of unknown power, that combination of erratic movements represented during the late campaign by the Union Party was able to exert no small influence on national policy. Politicians greatly overemphasized the wrath of the Townsendites, the Coughlinites and the followers of the late Huey Long. In consequence the Administration and Congress were, in more than one particular, disposed to placate the demagogues.

Now the bubble of pretension blown up with such vituperative ardor by the radio priest and his associates has been most thoroughly pricked. In the showdown of last Tuesday, the Union Party polled only an insignificant fraction of the total vote. Except in a few scattered districts, it has had little if any bearing on the final results anywhere in the Nation.

It is clear from this that the Administration can now wholly disregard all threats from the "share-the-wealth" movement or any of its imitators. And insofar as the Union Party, particularly the Coughlin side of it, constituted the nearest American approximation to a Fascist movement, its overwhelming defeat can rightly be regarded as a sign that the American people will have none of the Italian or German brand of government.

The fate of the Communist and Socialist parties in the election is similarly indicative of the sterility of American soil for Marxist propaganda. Norman Thomas made a vigorous and intelligent campaign of attack on both of the major parties. But his 1936 vote was far short of what it had been in 1932. The Communist Party in New York State, where alone it constituted a movement of any size, apparently polled fewer votes than the 50,000 necessary to win an automatic place on forthcoming ballots.

The American political system, it is clear, is inhospitable to third parties. The only new one which showed potential strength in this week's election was the American Labor Party which, while getting an independent listing on the ballot, supported President Roosevelt. It remains to be seen whether it constitutes a permanent addition to the political scene. Certainly it has more able leadership, and better technique, than any previous effort to form a labor party.

Bureaucratic Lawmaking.

In the light of our recent experiences with New Deal agencies Americans will be especially interested in a recent address of the lord chief justice of England. Speaking to the students of a South African university, Lord Hewart referred scathingly to the "unchartered pretensions of bureaucratic assumption"—in other words, the abuses of administrative lawmaking by British agencies. In view of the high quality of service rendered to the British people by civil servants free from the spoils system, it is evident that ability and security of tenure do not provide adequate safeguards against abuses of power by governmental executive agencies.

Lord Hewart complains, for instance, that statutes are enacted in skeleton form empowering some department to frame regulations or make orders. He further protests that "there is not the smallest excuse for framing regulations without effective parliamentary supervision or for making orders which are intended to ignore judicial authority." The sort of administrative license which England's lord chief justice, as well as our Supreme Court, has denounced in harsh terms can be curbed to some extent by more precise legal definition of the powers delegated to administrative agencies. That, however, would not solve the innumerable problems arising from the inevitable growth of administrative lawmaking in the modern state.

It is futile to denounce such developments as a form of executive usurpation of legislative and judicial functions. Legislatures would be swamped if they had to outline detailed rules and regulations for administrative bodies to follow. And administrative agencies would be impotent to a great extent if deprived of power (within reasonably well-defined limits) to adapt their rules and regulations to changing times and conditions.

A special committee on administrative law of the American Bar Association has concerned itself with another aspect of the problem—the evils resulting from a combination of judicial with executive or legislative functions and the lack of an effective system for judicial review of administrative decisions. The committee, under the leadership of its recently reappointed chairman, Col. O. R. McGuire, is urging the creation of a Federal administrative court which, among other safeguards, would provide a method for judicial review of orders issued by various regulatory agencies.

The committee recognizes that a rigid separation of executive, legislative and judicial functions is neither possible nor desirable, but, like the lord chief justice of England, it believes that the public is in need of better judicial protection against the edicts of "anonymous and sheltered officialism." A special administrative court would not only protect individuals against bureaucratic tyranny; it would also free existing courts from many duties that they have neither the time nor the qualifications for handling with expedition and efficiency.

Life For Williamsburg.

Having finished the major part of the architectural restoration, the research experts of Williamsburg have turned their attention to a study of the life and customs of its eighteenth century citizens.

Little surprise attends the discovery that various handicrafts figured prominently in early Williamsburg's activities and it has been hoped that some semblance of this phase of colonial life could be provided to supplement the reconstruction of the buildings. As a result of a recent gift to the sponsors of the restoration, this hope now approaches realization. A collection of early American craft tools, together with a full library on the subject, has been presented to Williamsburg.

With these at hand, it is planned to install shops for cabinetmakers, blacksmiths and silversmiths at Williamsburg early next year and perhaps other crafts will be added later. As nearly as possible, the shops will be established in buildings known to have existed and to have housed the particular crafts two centuries and more ago. In them skilled craftsmen dressed in attire of the period will be employed to make reproductions by hand.

This should give a sense of life to Williamsburg. Except for a few modern shops and the college at its outskirts, the town suffers slightly from a failure to recapture the sense of human activity which should be an essential part of its restoration.

Going Or Coming?

From the Los Angeles Times.

Alvin Karpis, former public enemy No. 1, is described by an eyewitness who saw him while en route to Alcatraz as acting "like a man going on a picnic." Inasmuch as he is facing life imprisonment on reaching his destination, the probabilities are that he was acting not so much like "a man on a picnic" as a man who was just getting back from one.

"The process of thinking draws the blood from the feet to the head," an educator informs us. This explains, perhaps, why in so many cases if you think twice about a proposition, you get cold.

Laurel's Finances.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The town of Laurel owes $159,000. It is our bonded debt, and bears 6 per cent interest. Against this bonded debt we have saved about $49,000, which is in a sinking fund. These bonds were issued years ago to cover a water supply, sewerage, fire engine, etc. They are a lien on every piece of property in town, the poor man's home and the rich man's. There is no option for redeeming a single dollar until the bonds are fully matured. They are an excellent investment. They are now held at about $1.10.

What is the interest on our savings, our sinking fund, to meet our debts? At first we received 4 per cent interest. This was a fair rate on a trust fund deposited for a long period. It has been steadily reduced. First to 3½ per cent, then to 3 per cent, then to 2½ per cent; now how much lower will it go? We are paying 6 per cent on our debts, and receiving 2 per cent on our savings to pay them—2 per cent on all bank balances, 2 per cent or a less rate on dividends of stock held by life insurance companies to guarantee our life insurance policies. But, go to the bank for a loan: the interest will be the same old 6 per cent. It is the curse of debt. I presume every town with a debt is having the same experience.

With our sinking fund amounting to $49,000 we are losing approximately $1,000 annually over what was originally agreed upon. How must this be made up? How do we bring our sinking fund up to meet the bonds when due? Obviously by increasing the amount deposited each year our $1,000. How can this be done? By the good old way of increasing our tax rate. Our tax rate for fire protection, police, sinking fund, etc., is now $1.06 on a hundred. We must increase it, beginning next year, 7 or 8 cents, and must continue to increase each year as our sinking fund grows. In the words of Grover Cleveland: "It is a condition and not a theory that confronts us."

EDWARD E. HATCH.
Laurel, Md., Oct. 30.

The Morning After.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Tuesday, November 3, reminds of July 5, when the morning broke quiet after we had listened to the snapping in a two weeks' crescendo, with an occasional jolt from a giant cracker of Gen. Johnson, Al Smith, Frank Knox, Father Coughlin size. Now that's over. Some of the agreeable incidents were Senator Norris, Edward Filene, Herbert Hoover, William Randolph Hearst, Earl Browder, Senator Wagner, Harry Hopkins, in their unsensational analysis of the situation from their several viewpoints, and Gov. Landon's spirit, though not his coached words, and the courage of President Roosevelt.

I've been interested in Boake Carter's comments, from his British background, on our American way of approaching the serious business of choosing our Government. At that, it takes up less of our attention than our other two sports, the diamond and the ring.

Out of it all, the encouraging thing is that some Americans have been growing aware, through the airplane and the radio, that there is a world outside our own borders, who sense a new conception of human society breaking in Spain, Germany, France, Italy, Russia, China, England and America. In all of these the idea is slowly breaking through that the things we produce belong to all of us and that when we all get to know each other a little more closely we'll smile at our bombs and gas masks as we smile at the toys we were so interested in when younger. Appreciation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Child Welfare Department of the District League of Women Voters is exceedingly grateful to you for publishing the series of articles by Hope Ridings Miller on the need for more up-to-date laws in the District, affecting children. We are proud to have a paper in Washington which will take time and space to present these problems to the public. This department voted to send you an official "thank you."

Living In Trailers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Anent your editorial reference in The Post of November 3 to Roger Babson's prediction that within a few years nearly half the people of the United States will be living in trailers, it may be interesting to note that a local trailer dealer reports three of five recent sales to purchasers who do not intend to use them for travel.

They are located in nearby tourist camps for residence occupancy. One of the lot was purchased by a man who does not own an automobile.

Thanks For The Parade.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The public ought to be given a glimpse of the scenes behind the curtains in arranging for their enjoyment.

While the parade went down Constitution avenue on October 30 few realized how much effort, military ingenuity and diplomacy it took the officers under the command of Col. Oehmann and Col. Nevit, of the National Guard, 121st Engineers, to get under way those participants who arrived late. Their gracious and patient manners makes them win not only the respect but also the admiration of those with whom they came in contact.

All who had a hand in the celebration deserve the gratitude of the people of Washington for arranging an evening of wholesome entertainment and affording them the opportunity to express their individual ideas, as well as trying to protect them from the roughness of by-gone years. Hats off to the committee, the National Guard, as well as to our efficient police force, for the success.

"New Deal" Victory.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to ask why the papers do not print the real truth as to the result of the election. The result is a victory for the New Deal, not a Democratic victory. The real Democratic Party went to defeat with the Republican Party yesterday.

I am a Republican and feel, as all Republicans and real Democrats should feel, an appreciation of the services of those Jeffersonian Democrats who loved their country more than to adhere to the teachings of one clothed in the garb of a Democrat when in reality the fact remains that most if not all the things done in the recent Administration were contrary to Jeffersonian democracy. So why not have the correct headline, which would read, "Victory for the New Deal."

Flags At Night.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the Halloween parade on October 30 a great number of uniformed organizations carried at their head an American flag.

It seems to me that any organization that carries a flag should be familiar with the rules of courtesy to the flag, one of which is that the flag must be cased, i. e., rolled on its staff and covered, when carried at night. Of the several hundred or more flags carried in the parade the only one properly cased was that borne by the Sons of the American Legion Drum Corps.

I am no fanatic on the question of saluting the flag, but the city officials who permit parades should see to it that if the flag is carried in a parade, it should be r orded the proper respect by those carrying it.

One Point Of View.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It appears to the writer as if God had forsaken the righteous and abandoned our beloved America to its enemies, over which there is doubtless much rejoicing in Moscow.

There can now be little doubt that should Mr. Roosevelt issue a proclamation abolishing Congress and proclaiming himself dictator it would meet with the hearty approval of those who voted for him.

Within the next four years we will see our Supreme Court filled with radicals either by enlarging its membership, or removal of the present conservatives by death or retirement, and then will disappear the only safeguard for the protection of minorities and our liberties, for Mr. Roosevelt has already proclaimed himself the master.

Sample Of Voters' Arguments

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Every one, of course, is interested in the reasons for the Roosevelt landslide, and before the theorists advance their theories, it may be interesting to recount a cross-section of reasons given by actual voters.

Having spent the entire day at a polling place talking to voters and listening to them arguing among themselves, I think I can give such a typical cross-section of opinion. The district in question was the Kent election district in Prince Georges County, Md., which contains both farming and town people, both well-to-do and poor, white and colored. The outcome in this district was 367 votes for Roosevelt to 157 for Landon, which is a somewhat better showing for the President than made by Prince Georges County as a whole or Maryland as a whole. Based, therefore, upon this reasonably typical election district, the reasons for the Roosevelt landslide were as follows:

1. The overwhelming feeling that Mr. Roosevelt and his Administration rescued the Nation, both town and country, from depression.

2. A deep feeling of resentment against the attacks on Mr. Roosevelt, this resentment being expressed most often against Al Smith, Father Coughlin, William Randolph Hearst, the leaders of the Liberty League and Chairman Hamilton, of the Republican National Committee. This feeling was particularly noticeable in connection with the last-minute misrepresentations of the security act.

3. A feeling that Mr. Landon was not a big man and that he was merely a front for the Liberty League and Mr. Hearst.

4. A feeling that Mr. Roosevelt was a friend of the under-dog and average people generally.

Two additional points may be of interest, first, that among these voters I noticed no indication whatever of extreme radical feeling; and second, that "relief" as such played a small part in the result. For example, I heard numerous comments from poor people that they were voting for Roosevelt because they had jobs again, but very little mention or even indication of the fact of "relief."

Even among those who voted for Mr. Landon, I heard only a very few expressions of the sort of bitterness against the Administration as was expressed during the campaign by opposition leaders and newspapers. Preliminary indications of the Roosevelt victory were received prior to the closing of the polls and the indicated result was accepted without rancor even by all but a few of the opposition.

The State Of Virginia

Excerpts from a report by LeRoy Hodges,, managing director of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, are given below.

RELIABLE indices show conclusively that Virginia suffered relatively less both in State affairs and in private business during the depression years than did most American States.

Cost of all government in Virginia, State and local, is less than $100,000,000 of which 33 per cent consists of State expenditures, 27 per cent of county costs, 37 per cent of expenditures by the independent cities, and 3 per cent of town disbursements. The per capita cost of government in Virginia is less than $44, as compared with an average of $77 for the other States. The net per capita combined indebtedness for all governmental units in Virginia is $74, as compared with an average of $141 in the other States of the Union.

Between 1900 and 1930 the proportion of the total population of Virginia living in places of 2,500 or more increased from 18 per cent to 32 per cent. In 1900 only 14 per cent of Virginia's total population lived in cities of 10,000 or more; in 1930 more than 26 per cent of our people were living in such cities. During the present century, decade by decade, the trend of population in Virginia has been steadily cityward, although twice the number of people today living in incorporated places in Virginia up to 10,000, live in unincorporated places other than farms, such as villages, and singly and in groups along our highways usually engaged in some form of roadside business.

The natural gain in population in Virginia, by excess of births over deaths, between 1920 and 1930, was 335,000, while the actual population gain for the decade, as reported by the Federal census, was only 113,000, indicating a loss by migration during the ten-year period of 222,000.

Some authorities classify as many as half of the 1,500,000 people in Virginia who live outside of incorporated places as "marginal," and as high as one-fifth of them as "submarginal." There are also many marginal and submarginal families in our cities and larger towns. These marginal groups are composed of those on or near a bare subsistence plane with low incomes, a fifth-grade education or less, poor housing and living conditions, and who pay little or no taxes. The submarginal groups are made up of dependents and delinquents and those living below the decency level, including those of low intelligence.

In general marginal families have gross annual incomes of less than $600, while in many cases cash incomes are less than $100 a year. Illiteracy, degeneracy and feeble-mindedness run high in these below-standard groups. They contribute little to the support of government but make the greatest demands on the public Treasury through relief, health, schools, asylums and our courts and prisons.

* * *

Another serious trend of the depression period has been for people of nonfarm status to bring submarginal lands into cultivation. Between 1930 and 1935 the number of persons living on farms in Virginia increased more than 100,000, of whom 40,000 belonged to a nonfarm status in 1930. While the number of persons per farm has decreased, the whole population shift in agriculture in Virginia has tended to throw lands unfit for cultivation into use by people not essentially farmers. The result has been the piling up of relief costs in the sections where this is occurring. This trend means an added burden on business through loss of markets and the imposition of added relief costs on government.

Unemployment in industry in Virginia, so far as males are concerned, began in 1909, when male employment ceased to increase in proportion to population. Employed females, in Virginia manufacturing industries, on the other hand, have increased at a far greater rate than population. This is not because of any great degree of substitution of female for male labor, but rather because of the building up of industries, new to Virginia, which are of the female-employing type, while the male-employing industries have remained static or lost rank in the industrial race.

Since 1910, in other words, there has been decreased employment on farms, due in large measure to mechanization; failure of the processing industries to provide employment in step with the increase in population, and extension of the field of employables to cover more than a proportionate share of females who, in many cases, are additional gainful workers from families already having the normal quota of male bread winners.

Due to this trend we today have the anomalous condition of increased employment and increased unemployment existing side by side in Virginia industry.

Facts like these point to the expediency as well as the desirableness of our businessmen and industrialists joining actively in a study of the needs of our farmers and workers to build up the purchasing power in the home markets which they themselves so badly need and so assiduously seek. Here at arm-reach is the needed new market and the outlet for goods that will stimulate all business and reactivate industry. The development and not the exploitation of this potential market is the next big need for realizing industrial progress in the Old Dominion.

Note To Our Neighbors.

ONE THING which the country gained through the recent political disturbance is a great smattering of minute and unrelated information on the history and powers of the Supreme Court, the Constitution, machine politics, States' rights, the private affairs of Andrew Jackson, the fallibility of great men and the origins and pricelessness of the American liberties.

This campaign produced a tremendous crop of books on every conceivable phase of all the subjects involved. Some were solemn, others flippant. There were cynical books and bumbling appeals for the preservation of the American system, histories, novels and biographies, including two on William Randolph Hearst, the loudest and, on the basis of the election returns, the most futile demagogue we ever produced.

There have been thousands of pamphlets and intellectual butcher's paper magazines devoted to the origins, the early symptoms and the ravages of dictatorship in all its forms. And the patriotic orations of the candidates and party windjammers have blown many wisps of knowledge which we didn't have before. The sum of this gain is a bird's nest of confused intellectual fuzz picked up just any old where in the libraries and archives, and though most of us don't know much yet, we certainly are better informed than we were a year ago.

• • • •

EVEN in the mysterious matter of money, which many an angry ignoramus tackled with no more preparation than a shave and haircut, we learned, at least, that the question is too big for finite intelligence. When, in one book on the mere meaning of money, eight of the greatest economists in the world go off into dreamy confusion trying to define the stuff the case becomes hopeless for people who know money only in terms of the two-bit piece and the dollar bill. Most of us soon gave up money as an occult subject, and it is important to note that those who campaigned on monetary issues presently found themselves hopelessly balled up with religion, communism and spirit communication.

Not since the Civil War have the citizens analyzed the composition of the country as they have done in 1936. Most of us were rather surprised to learn that we were not a nation according to the articles of incorporation but a partnership of States, with mutual responsibilities but with individual rights.

In the course of the last year three States have used their armed services to enforce interstate immigration restrictions, with money as the only test of desirability. And New York has upheld a State law imposing an import duty on liquor from adjacent Connecticut, where the State tax is lower and where borderline New Yorkers naturally prefer to do their shopping.

• • • •

UNDER the same principle each State would be free to establish customs stations and border patrols to compel the stray traveler to pay a 2-cent duty on a 12-cent package of cigarettes and to measure the fuel in his tank and tax that, too. But the New York liquor duty is not effectively enforced except on imports from Europe and Canada, and the rights of the States, legal though they may be, are dying of absurdity and disuse.

The central government, whose assumption of power was an issue in the campaign, takes money from the wealthy States to feed and placate the sallow sisters, some of which have their own shiftlessness to blame for their troubles. The NRA attempted to raise the peons of the backward States to the level of free workmen elsewhere, or, failing that, to hoist the one a little and depress the other until they met.

And the National Government is constantly harassed by ornery pests who go around flouting local superstitions with public declarations that there ain't no God, b'God, and howl for their constitutional right of free speech when slapped across the mouth by a hard-shell sheriff sworn to preserve the peace and Christian ideals, including the sacrament of lynching.

Laughing At Death

By William Lyon Phelps

Colley Cibber.

Today is the birthday of the famous Colley Cibber, actor, dramatist, theater manager, poet, autobiographer, who occupied two thrones—he was Poet Laureate and was also selected by Pope in the "Dunciad" to occupy the throne of Dullness—though of all persons of that or any other time, he was one of the least dull.

He was born in London on November 6, 1671, and died December 11, 1757, at the age of 86, full of energy and vitality and activity and cheerfulness to the very last.

What keeps people alive is not extreme care of their health; what keeps them alive is a continual, intense, passionate interest in life, so that they are too busy to die.

Look at the great artist Titian, painting away vigorously at the age of 99!

Colley Cibber was devoted to the theater and from boyhood until well on in the seventies he acted many parts. His autobiography, called "An Apology for the Life of Colley Cibber, Comedian," was published in 1740, and is one of the best books on the theater and on the art of acting that have ever appeared.

The Opinion Of Nation's Voters

Gallup Believes Accurate Yardstick For Measuring Popular Mind May Result In More Effective Democratic Government.

Writing before the election for the Nobember issue of Scribner's Magazine, Dr. George Gallup, director of the American Institute of Public Opinion, considered the terms and implications of the formula by which he is now known to have forecast the outcome of the Presidential race with high accuracy. His words, in somewhat excerpted form, are reproduced below.

IN A SENSE the November election means not only the success of a candidate for the Presidency but the vindication—or possibly the condemnation—of an almost 3-year-old experiment in assaying public opinion at work in a democracy. Institute polls, in quite pragmatic fashion, will be rendered either true or untrue by the results of the election. But something more important than a single organization is to stand the test. The possibility of scientific reflection of public choice will be determined and, in all probability, a new and more sensitive method of political procedure may become feasible.

For many months the Institute of Public Opinion has polled the country on issues of governmental policy, of labor, and of armaments, on varieties of political belief in different sections of the population, and on subjects of similar importance. After months of experimental work in discovering how many persons are on each side of controversial questions, it is my belief that the views of the electorate are quite as intelligent as those of their elected representatives.

Once I suggested that a poll of scientists and specialists, such as those who assembled for Harvard's Tercentenary, would reveal results striking y similar to those received from a poll of general public. The suggestion was challenged, of course. My best evidence came from a group of 20 questions to which we had nation-wide answers. We submitted the same questions to a group of about a hundred teachers and experts.

On the highly definitive question, "If there were only two political parties—Liberal and Conservative—which would you join?" there was immediate disagreement. The specialists would have joined with the Liberals by more than two to one, whereas American opinion favors the Conservatives by a slim margin. Yet on the other questions the persons with special knowledge agreed with the mass about four times out of five. Both insisted that the United States remain aloof from European sanctions; both thought expenditures by the Government for relief and recovery too great, and both favored an amendment to the Constitution to regulate minimun wage standards. Voters throughout the country indicated their approval of an enlarged merit system in Government by a vote of 88 per cent to 12 per cent. The specialists approved by 99 per cent to 1 per cent.

Their disagreements are no less instructive: the avearge voter believes it is necessary to balance the budget at once and to make a start toward reducing the national debt. He thinks the responsibility of caring for all persons on relief should now be returned to the State and local governments, and he objects, in general, to limiting the power of the Supreme Court. The teachers' group, however, was in no hurry to balance the budget, opposed return of relief to the States and communities, and was in favor, generally speaking, of limiting the power of the Supreme Court to invalidate acts of Congress.

I RECALL the experience of a friend of mine, a professor of physics, who drew a chalk line on the classroom blackboard and asked the class to guess its length. The guesses ranged from 3 feet to 8 feet. Not a single estimate was correct. Yet the average for all the guesses was exactly right.

Perhaps the parallel between physics and democracy is rather apt. It suggests, in all events, the method of the American political tradition; disregard individual views as such, but credit them when they are added together. It is with something of the same predilection that the Institute of Public Opinion, in the past year, has asked thousands of persons in all levels of society their views on major political, social, and economic issues.

Naturally the question arises as to the means of drawing this picture. One asks what is the technique that makes possible the claim of accuracy. The institute maintains a research office at Princeton, N. J., which sends out thousands of ballots every week. Thousands of ballots come back every week, too, both as mail ballots and as the result of predetermined number of personal interviews by nearly 300 staff reporters stationed across the United States.

Researches have shown that the number of ballots alone is rather unimportant; of more significance is the accuracy of the cross-section of the public which the ballots and interviews reach. Just as a physician learns the condition of all the blood of a human body by analyzing a drop of it, so the Institute takes a sample of opinion and from it learns the proportion of the electorate which favors or disapproves of any particular measure.

The personal interviews are particularly vital, since they reach both a section of the population not easily reached by mail and a section which returns mail ballots poorly yet includes citizens who will go to the polls. In addition to these contacts, mail ballots are sent to persons whose names appear in city directories and voters' lists, as well as telephone directories and other commercial lists.

It is extremely important for the establishment of a reliable cross-section that the number of ballots considered be in correct proportion to the number of persons who make up different groups in the Nation.

It is just as important to establish the correct percentage of votes from persons in different income levels. A person on relief is hardly likely to have the same views as an influential member of the Liberty League. Differences in points of view exist between rural and urban residents, and any cross-section must draw from these districts in correct ratio to the population. Furthermore, in all polls on political questions, that is to say, polls which ask people the way they intend to vote, two further controls are considered. A correct percentage is maintained of those who voted for Hoover, Roosevelt, or Thomas in 1932, as well as a correct percentage of young persons who have reached voting age since that election.

Band-Wagon Movement Feared From Reports.

SERIOUS STUDENTS of public opinion cast no doubts on our impartiality, but worry lest our reports will tend to create a band-wagon movement. They believe that the American people delight in voting for a pre-announced winner and that a pool which might report a preponderance of voters on one side of an issue will produce shifts of allegiance among the minority. It has been believed for some time that the American people behave like sheep; there is, however, not one bit of scientific evidence to support it. An analysis of the Literary Digest poll figures will disclose the similarity of early and final reports for any given State in a Presidential year.

In the Institute's own polls on Republican candidates for the nomination, Gov. Landon received 56 per cent of the total vote of all Republicans as early as April of this year, a percentage which represents twice the number of votes cast for the next highest candidate. The May report announced that Landon was retaining his support but not making gains. The final report, gathered just before the Cleveland convention, showed him one-half of 1 per cent lower than in April. Had the voters shown a tendency to be herded, Landon's popularity as a nominee would have increased each month after the April report which was highly favorable to him.

Frequently we receive the inquiry: "If you are running a national poll, why didn't I get a ballot?" It does not occur to persons who ask this question that if the Institute mailed out a million ballots a week it would take 1½ years to reach all the potential voters in the Nation. Again, since most of the newspapers which print the results of the polls express definite political convictions, readers often assume that the poll is colored by the newspaper's own political views. There has not been a single case in which the Institute has found a client newspaper changing or distorting the results of its surveys.

PERHAPS there may again be a question of the importance of reporting facts. In a certain sense, the November election will answer the question. If our predictions are reasonably close to the election results, the polls of the Institute will continue. Since it is my belief that the figures will be accurate, I feel privileged to point out that such polls as we conduct have been the dream of certain political thinkers, and that they offer a more complete picture of American beliefs and ideas than it has been possible heretofore to construct.

James Bryce, one of the acknowledged authorities on American government, prophesied that "a final stage in the evolution of government by opinion would be reached if the will of the majority of citizens should become available at all times." Like such other students of government as Woodrow Wilson and Walter Lippman, Bryce saw that the difficulty in trying to operate a government by public opinion was simply the difficulty of ascertaining that opinion with any degree of accuracy.

So They Said

Clipped From The Files

The Prophets.

PREDICTIONS of the election outcome, assembled by the Editorial Research Reports, reached the following extremes:

Henry L. Mencken (March, 1936)—The Republicans begin to grasp the fact that if they can beat Roosevelt at all, which seems most likely, they can beat him with a Chinaman or even a Republican.

James A. Farley (June 18)—Very well, I name all 48 States.

John D. M. Hamilton (June 25)—Gov. Landon will break into the Solid South . . . It might happen that we will carry all 48 States . . . The West is in the bag.

Father Coughlin (July and August)—The National Union for Social Justice can produce at least 10,000,000 votes for Lemke, and throw the election into the House of Representatives . . . I am positive that Mr. Roosevelt will not be re-elected. Lemke will carry Rhode Island and Massachusetts; he will take Pennsylvania and Michigan . . . Lemke will get more votes in Rhode Island than Landon . . . I will discontinue radio broadcasting if I do not swing at least 9,000,000 votes to Lemke. (Pledge later withdrawn.)

William Randolph Hearst (August 9)—The race will not be close at all. Landon will be overwhelmingly elected, and I'll stake my reputation as a prophet on it. He will not only carry New York State, but Pennsylvania, Illinois and California.

William Lemke (September 23)—I will carry Oregon, North and South Dakota, New Mexico, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan, Maschusetts, Rhode Island and Maine. (Ed. Note—These 11 States have a combined total of 113 electoral votes.) And Ohio and Texas are battlegrounds.

Gov. Landon (September 24)—There are now seven fat years ahead. They will be Republican years.

• • • •

IN OCTOBER, with Election Day only a month ahead, the prognostications still contradicted each other as vehemently:

Herbert Hoover (October 1)—The Republican Party is making progress all the way across the country.

Senator Neely (October 1)—The Roosevelt ticket will carry West Virginia by 100,000.

Joseph McGrath, Democratic State chairman for Massachusetts (October 7)—Roosevelt will carry Massachusetts by 250,000.

James A. Farley (October 14)—Here is the real low-down; President Roosevelt will carry at least 43 States, all that he had in 1932 and Pennsylvania. I am told by our leaders that Delaware and Connecticut will be ours . . . You see there will be only three chips, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine, left after we take our divvy.

George Harding, Republican national committeeman from Illinois (October 15)—Illinois will go to Landon by a majority of 400,000.

Col. Knox (on many occasions in the latter part of October)—We will carry every State east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio.

William Lemke (October 28)—The election will be thrown into Congress, where I will win.

• • • •

Literary Digest poll (final result, October 31)—Landon, 370 electoral votes; Roosevelt 161.

Institute of Public Opinion (final poll November 1)—Sure for Roosevelt, 315 electoral votes, sure for Landon, 12; doubtful, 204.

James A. Farley (November 1)—It is my confident prediction that President Roosevelt will be re-elected by a greater plurality than he had in 1932. In only two States, Maine and Vermont, have the Republicans any right to be hopeful.

Hollywood, Beware!

The Soviets sent three men to prison camp for from one to four years the other day for paying too much for a movie scenario in its production. Well, you could have knocked Hollywood and Broadway over with a stockholder!

What's the moving picture business coming to when they start taking the attitude that it should be conducted like a business?

Sending movie men to prison camps at hard labor for wasting money! Why, it's a direct slap at everything the movie industry has stood for through thick and thicker.

• • • •

What would Stalin do to the producers of most of the superpictures produced in Hollywood during the last six months? Nobody's safe any more.

• • • •

They don't understand what it means to devote months of time and a half million dollars to something that could better have been overlooked entirely.

• • • •

They send you to prison camps in Russia for not showing a good investment, but in this country they cut you in on 50 per cent of the gross, make you a vice president of the company and see that the publicity department sells you to America as the genius of the industry.

Troika Crowds Like Saxonsky And His Violin

Cocoanut GroveRevue Puts on Catchy Songs and Dance Numbers.

By Chanticleer.

The inseparables at the Russian Troika are Sasha Bartnovsky, leader of the Gypsy orchestra, and Simeon Saxonsky (Sam Saxon to you), the Troika's violinist. Sasha and Simeon go back many years in their association, to many of the country's nicer places. And, of course, in the little world of Russian entertainers in this country, the Troika is definitely one of the very nicer places. This much can be said for Sam Saxon: when he plays his fiddle the audience around the ringside usually stops gabbling almost at once and listens. And that is a tribute of the highest order in these precincts.

The Cocoanut Grove's show this week opens with a song by the girls of the ensemble who encourage the bachelors in the audience to give up their freedom—just let themselves go, as it were. However, bachelor or not, you'll get the same invitation if you are ringsiding. The tired business man also gets his money's worth from Ronee Villon and her interpretative dance sensations. The opening this week is Peacock on Parade. Music is in the able hands of Eric Correa.

Bill Strickland is looking forward to his third anniversary very soon now at the Lotus. That's a long time for a band leader to hold his popularity at one spot. Throughout this period the band has remained just about intact—if not wholly so. "Gridiron Revue" is the show this week at the Lotus, headed by Flo and Bob Gilbert, Hal and Hilda Raywin and the Sammet Sisters.

Whew! The Bert Sloan Company does its wire balancing act high above the customers in the ballroom at the Shoreham this week. That's sophistication in its most extended form. In the cocktail lounge the One-to-Two Club swing to the rhythm of the Curfew Band.

It's only on Saturday nights that the Crystal Bar at the Maryland Club Gardens loses its place at head of the class. On Saturdays the huge Winter Garden is thrown open and Charlie Jeeter moves his boys under the palm trees and the Crystal Bar is used for the overflow.

Like as not the topic of conversation down at Brinkley's will be "how do they prepare such good food for so little money?" Persistent little rumors come up that Brinkley's will add entertainers one of these days soon.

Milt Barrett, out in the suburban Casa Grande, is another who believes that good food is positively essential to the success of any after-darkery. Host Barrett's weakness is steaks. He loves 'em. And he tries to give his patrons the same quality of steak he would want himself if he just walked in as a customer.

Out the other way from town, at Griffith Farms, Raymond prepares for voracious appetites, too, these days. Its the brisk early winter weather that picks up jaded appetites. You'll find Bill Cassi and his music there.

Madrillon's Four-Thirty-Club Trio

Prince Georges Gives President 6,980 Majority

Official Canvass Completed in County; 50 Co-eds Visit M. U.

President Roosevelt's majority over Gov. Landon in Prince Georges County was 6,980 votes, it was announced yesterday by the board of election supervisors.

The official tabulation made yesterday at Upper Marlboro gave Roosevelt 15,087, to Landon's 8,107.

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate, and John W. Aiken, Labor Party nominee, tied with 34 votes each. Earle Browder, Communist candidate, received 33 votes.

Stephen W. Gambrill (Democrat), incumbent Representative in Congress from the Fifth Maryland District, swamped his Republican opponent, Roscoe C. Rowe, 13,306 to 5,964.

All three proposed amendments to the State Constitution were carried by overwhelming majorities.

The amendment empowering the Governor to appoint persons to fill vacancies in the General Assembly was aproved, 5,372 to 1,876.

The amendment providing for an additional judge in the Sixth Judicial Circuit Court, comprising Montgomery and Frederick counties, passed, 4,866 to 1,410.

The amendment providing for "bank stockholders' double liability" was sanctioned, 5,975 to 2,444.

Fifty co-eds from universities in the East and Midwest arrived at the University of Maryland yesterday for a three-day convention of the International Association for Women's Student Government.

Official addresses of welcome were made by H. C. Byrd, president of the university, and Miss Adele Stamp, dean of women, at a formal dinner in the university dining hall last night.

To raise funds for a summer camp for underprivileged children in Prince Georges County, the Kiwanis Club will sponsor a dance Saturday night at the Beaver Dam Country Club.

Members of the committee in charge of the arrangements are S. C. Helfer, chairman; Arthur Keefer, Thomas Anglin, Capt. Dick Mansfield, Harry E. Eisenhauer, William Bowie and Jacob Metzger.

The club plans to build a camp on Chesapeake Bay next summer. Approximately $1,000 has been raised by the organization since it began its drive last July.

The Southern Prince Georges County Citizens Association last night announced the award of prizes to three residents of Clinton, Md., for best-appearing lawns and premises.

An award of $10 in cash and $10 in shrubs went to William G. Copley. Second prize of $5 in cash and $7.50 in shrubs was won by Luke J. Milovich. Third prize of $2.50 in cash and $5 in shrubs was awarded to Hugh C. Bickford, who is newly elected president of the citizens' association.

A considerably increased supply will make the price of turkeys for the Thanksgiving table lower this year than they were in 1935, it was revealed yesterday by Wade H. Rice, poultry specialist for the University of Maryland Extension Service.

The price of chickens is also likely to drop, Mr. Rice stated. The supply of broilers and fryers is more than twice as large as the average for this season for the last five years, he said.

Merchants Discuss Yule Mailing Plans

First indication of the approach of Christmas was a meeting yesterday of the local postoffice officials with a committee of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association to formulate plans for the promotion of early shopping and mailing for Christmas.

John J. Hasley, chairman of the committee, said that the campaign this year will start November 29, the day after Thanksgiving, but that the toy departments of the stores would open November 16. The downtown stores will decorate the exterior of their buildings with festoons of laurel, interspersed with electric lights.

Child Delinquency Issue Discussed

Juvenile misbehavior resulting from parental unemployment and poverty cannot be cured by any one welfare agency, or any type of program that does not take into consideration the entire picture. Proper housing, recreational facilities, adequate wages to support the family and an incentive to live worthily are all necessary to each child's proper development.

These points were made yesterday by Miss Jane M. Hoey, of the Social Security Board, in a talk at thel uncheon of the Juvenile Protective Association at the Admiral.

Describing the extensive effort being made all over the country to curb delinquency, Miss Hoey pointed out that provisions are being made under the social security act to help children of families on relief through individual case work service, carried on by local welfare agencies.

Maryland Soccer Team Faces Towson Today

The University of Maryland's soccer team opens its home season today against the strong Towson eleven at 3 o'clock on the College Park field. The Terrapin kickers lost a close game to Johns Hopkins at Baltimore the other day in the first engagement of the year and are by no means hopeful of defeating Towson today, in view of the 1-1 tie game last week between Hopkins and Towson.

Maryland's team will be picked from the following: Lowitz, Scharf, Mears, Hobbs, Yeager, Morris, Lauder, Nezbed, Strauchan, Keller, Archer, Corbin, Moore, Clark, Brokamp and Hoffman.

TAKE A TIP FROM THE OLD-TIMERS
BEAD TEST

Take a tip from the old-timers. They got it from their fathers. Generations ago, people discovered that all whiskey had a head of "bead" (bubbles) when they shook the bottle. They noticed the amount of bead and watched how long it lasted. That's a natural test . . . like feeling the blossom end of a melon to see if it is ripe. It's the way whiskey has been bought for generations and generations. Butcher, baker and candlestick-maker . . . every man who knew anything about whiskey used the "bead test." It's the test that's stood the test of time. Get whiskey-wise . . . try this "bead test" next time you're buying whiskey.

WHAT IS BEAD?
First of all, it's the head of bubbles that forms on the surface of whiskey when the bottle is shaken. The amount of "bead" and the time it lasts constitute the "bead test."

Intervention By President Seen in Strike

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, Nov. 5.—The strike blockade of American shipping became acute in many ports tonight and leaders on both sides indicated they expected Presidential intervention in the situation.

One New York ship operator accused strikers of instituting a "reign of terror" to spread their walkout there. A strike leader retorted that ship owners had hired "mobsters" to attack pickets.

Seamen's Union "insurgents" attempted anew to tie up the port of Boston. Many strikers were held by police in Galveston and New Orleans.

Food prices soared in strike-bound Honolulu. Travelers competed with each other for passage between Hawaii and the mainland. Five of them decided to pay $200 fines each and sail on foreign ships. This fine is imposed on foreign lines if they carry passengers between American ports.

Investigators here said ship masters and residents of Alaska had sent flurries of telegrams to the White House seeking help from the Government.

Observers said the White House might take a hand in the strike if settlement efforts finally failed.

San Francisco warehousemen, striking independently for wage increases and better working conditions, continued peace conversations and started moving perishables out of storerooms.

Far apart on the main strike issues, unions and ship owners considered separately the problem of furnishing "safety crews" and refrigeration personnel to strike-bound ships.

The unions also discussed the "co-operation of East Coast and Gulf unions.

In virtually all Eastern and Gulf ports the sympathy strikes developed issues between "regular" union elements and the "insurgent" groups which walked out in support of the West Coast strikers.

Recruiting Move Fails.

New York, Nov. 5 (A).—An attempt by the International Seamen's Union to recruit substitute crews for ships affected by an insurgent "sit down" strike was frustrated today.

Sixty strikers moved into the union's hall as soon as it was opened and filled the place so completely no one else could get in.

Joseph Curran, chairman of the committee, moved to extend the strike from a "sit down" demonstration to an active demand for new wage and working agreements in all Atlantic and Gulf ports.

A conference was called for tomorrow night at which time a demand for a single national wage scale will be discussed.

Leaders in Many Walks of Life Here Congratulate Post on Poll Results

Plan's Value to Increase by 'Trial and Error,' Roper Declares.

Success of the American Institute of Public Opinion poll in predicting outcome of the election continued yesterday to bring congratulatory messages to The Post, in whose columns the results of the poll appear weekly.

Civic and business leaders, clergymen, educators, newspaper correspondents and editors of college publications, were among those to express their belief in the poll's accuracy in measuring popular sentiment.

In his final pre-election forecast, Dr. George H. Gallup, director of the American Institute of Public Opinion, gave Landon only three sure States, one more than he actually received. The Literary Digest predicted Landon would carry 32 States.

Some of the comments received yesterday follow:

Daniel C. Roper, Secretary of Commerce: "I am very much interested in scientific poll studies looking to reliable information with regard to public opinion. It seems to me Dr. Gallup's method looks constructively to this end. I am confident that through the 'trial and error' method his plan will have increasing value."

Method Justified.

M. C. Hazen, president of the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia:

"Dr. Gallup's scientific method of analyzing public opinion has been completely justified by his accurate forecast of result of election. These polls are a real contribution to the newspaper reader who wants to know what the people of the country are thinking on important national issues. The Washington Post has rendered a distinct service by making it available to the people of Washington."

Charles B. Dulcan, sr., vice president, Hecht Co.:

"Relative to the Gallup method of measuring public opinion by scientific selected cross-sections of the people, my answer is that I can't argue very much with the facts. The Gallup method in the recent, but hardly forgotten, Presidential election apparently proved itself sound, accurate and truthful."

James Rotto, sales manager, Lansburgh:

"Dr. Gallup's poll unquestionably represents advancement in technique of gauging public opinion and should be developed in other fields besides politics."

Mrs. Marion Wade Doyle, president Board of Education:

"I believe that the Gallup method has conclusively demonstrated its superiority over polls however large based on telephone subscribers, automobile owners, or the like, because of its greater range. The danger in such polls is the tendency to interpret them as conclusive rather than merely as indicative of trend. I hope those responsible for this poll will continue to observe the caution that characterized this year's polls and will preserve an objective and scientific attitude, constantly improving the technique. If obvious pitfalls are avoided, the poll will continue to perform a very useful educational and social service."

Correspondent Praises Poll.

Fred W. Perkins, correspondent, the Pittsburgh Press:

"When it began I was frankly dubious about the Gallup poll (which is published regularly by my newspaper, the Pittsburgh Press). My doubt was based on the comparatively small number of voters it samples on various issues. But its performance in the Presidential campaign has dissipated much of this doubt. Apparently, Dr. George Gallup 'really has something.' The election results show his forecasts were the most accurate among all the national polls, so far as this election was concerned. His poll is now doubtless established as a permanent barometer of public opinion trends. But it was not accurate enough to threaten the menace of becoming too much of an influence on the course of public affairs."

Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of Veterans' Affairs, Veterans' Administration:

"Whatever detailed method Gallup used to measure public opinion, certainly the results paralleled predictions and indorse its reliability."

Hardie Meakin, manager Keith's Theater:

"Congratulations on the Gallup method of measuring public opinion. Followed it throughout campaign with the comment thereon and found it of great interest. I fully anticipated his prediction would be correct, and it was."

Willard Goldheim, Goldheim's:

"We congratulate you on your foresight in joining 77 other representative newspapers to sponsor Dr. George Gallup's remarkably accurate Institute of Public Opinion. The Gallup method of measuring public opinion by scientific polling of selected cross-sections of the people has proved its accuracy beyond a shadow of a doubt. The final forecast of the Presidential election published last Sunday stamps the Gallup method as the only dependable guide to public opinion."

Method Held Accurate.

William C. Van Vleck, dean George Washington Law School:

"The method of measuring public opinion by obtaining a considerable number of samples from every section of the population is more likely to be accurate than one by which the opinion is secured of a much larger number of persons from less than every section of the population. Any method under which there is danger that a portion of the population differing in interests and point of view from other portions may not be reached runs the risk of inaccuracy. Insofar as the Gallup method undertook to take in every section of the population, it seems sound. The value of straw votes to the national welfare may, however, be questioned, since they tend to divert attention from the issues which ought to be considered in the question of who is likely to win and to invite doubtful voters to board the band wagon instead of making up their minds on the questions at issue."

Fred A. Emery, member of the news staff, United States News:

"The Gallup method of polling cross-sections of the electorate is very sound. I like it. Its proven accuracy on Tuesday was almost uncanny."

"So far as a political forecasting of public opinion has any scientific accuracy, Dr. Gallup's cross-sectional method inspires the largest measure of confidence in his prognostication."

S. M. Moore, jr., budget officer and chief of statistics, Veterans' Administration:

"I believe Dr. Gallup has conclusively proven the value of applied scientific study and statistical analysis."

Frank Diggs, editor of the American Eagle, American University:

"The Gallup method of measuring public opinion is fundamentally the best criterion that can be obtained. I believe it cannot be so easily influenced by an over-enthusiastic minority and it does not ignore the masses of poor voters. The Presidential poll has shown that the Gallup editors do not yet have their method of selecting voters as accurate as might be expected, but more experience should cure this defect."

Jack Cunningham, editor, Georgetown University Hoya:

"In current issue of Hoya, published this evening, we editorially professed through John Rufe's column belief in superiority of Gallup's method and admire The Post's foresight in publishing it. It was never our belief that the Digest polls gave accurate indication of popular sentiment, due to indiscriminate distribution of ballots. Scientific polling has proven representative of public opinion and should predict faithfully all future political and legislative results determined by popular vote."

Jack Thralls, editor of the Tower:

"Naturally, the most scientifically managed of all of these polls, the American Institute of Public Opinion poll, conducted, I understand, according to the Bernoulli method of proportionate representation in selective cross-sections, most nearly approximated what would happen Tuesday. But New Hampshire showed that human notions are still the most unpredictable things in the world."

Chest Team 8 Again Is Leader In Pledge Race

President Will Broadcast Appeal in Human Needs Mobilization Tonight.

Mrs. Sidney F. Taliaferro, captain of team No. 8, again won the banner for highest quota percentage reported at yesterday's meeting of the Community Chest special assignments unit at the Willard. She reported four pledges amounting to $5,885, which, added to her report of 19 pledges and $25,712 for the previous day, brings her total to date to 23 pledges, amounting to $31,597.

Speaking from the White House, President Roosevelt tonight will broadcast a Nation-wide appeal in behalf of the mobilization for human needs. His talk will be part of a program originating from a huge Midwest rally at Cleveland, Ohio, which will be carried locally over stations WRC and WJSV between 10 and 10:30 p. m.

From Cleveland, Gerard Swope, chairman of the 1936 mobilization, will respond to the address of President Roosevelt. The Philadelphia Orchestra will be included in the broadcast, with Leopold Stokowski explaining why the particular musical numbers he selects were chosen for the mobilization rally. Dudley Blossom, president of the Cleveland Community Fund, will preside at the meeting, and the Cleveland Singers Club will conclude the program.

Tumulty Makes Appeal.

The Willard Hotel recently was marked by a plea to the workers by Joseph P. Tumulty, chairman of the unit. Taking as his general theme "It Might Have Been You," he urged the workers to bring before their prospects the real needs of suffering humanity in Washington and to impress upon them the vital necessity for meeting those needs.

Richard B. Hynson, vice chairman of the unit, announced Coleman Jennings, campaign chairman, will be guest of honor at today's meeting. He said several special events are on the program and urged a large turnout of both captains and team workers.

Reports made yesterday amounted to $21,815 from 27 contributors. This amount, added to the $48,584 from 54 conrtibutors announced yesterday brings the total to $70,369 from 81 contributors.

Harold N. Marsh reported seven contributions amounting to $5,850; Philip O. Coffin reported three gifts amounting to $2,100; Wilson Compton announced five gifts amounting to $4,200; F. A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

A cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation today may lead to serious trouble tomorrow. You can relieve them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified Creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery that aids nature to soothe and heal the infected membranes and to relieve the irritation and inflammation as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled.

Medical authorities have for many years recognized the wonderful effects of Beechwood Creosote for treating coughs, chest colds and bronchial irritations. A chemist worked out a special process of blending Creosote with other ingredients so that now in Creomulsion you get a real dose of Beechwood Creosote which is palatable and can even be taken frequently and continuously by adults and children. Thousands of doctors now use Creomulsion in their own families and practice, and druggists rank Creomulsion top because in this genuine, original product you can get a real dose of Creosote so emulsified that it goes to the very seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles, especially those that start with a common cold and hang on and on. Get a bottle of Creomulsion right now from your druggist, use it all up as directed and if you fail to get satisfactory relief, he is authorized to refund every cent of your money. Get Creomulsion right now. (Adv.)

Latin by Marriage.

HARRY RICHMAN has spurned the offer extended by Cosmopolitan to write a series of articles concerning his round-trip transatlantic flight with Dick Merrill. Richman is waiting for the conclusion of his theatrical engagements, when he will essay three record-breaking solo flights: New York to Los Angeles, New York to Miami and New York to Havana . . . Richman's Lady Peace is the only plane entered thus far in the Lindbergh Anniversary New York-to-Paris race next May. He'll fly solo, insisting: "I'll never fly with anybody again!"

UNIVERSAL has purchased the movie rights to "Live Alone and Like It," Marjorie Hillis' best-seller. They'll use only the title and Faith Baldwin will write the story . . . Johnny Weissmuller read about the slaughter in Spain and said: "It just makes my Latin blood boil—by marriage!"

EMANUAL ALONSO, former Davis Cup star, who claims relation to Spain's former King, is in New York aiding the cause of the rebels. Errol Flynn, star of "Charge of the Light Brigade," is anxious to do broadcasting work—so that he can cash in on the picture's present popularity. Rudy Vallee and RCA-Victor both dickered for his services. Flynn, however, can't accept either offer for fear of offending the advertising agencies representing the program to be disappointed. In other words, he's so good that he can't work.

MONTE PROSER, lamenting his separation from Julie Jenner, his wife, met Nick the Greek—an old friend, who offered consolation. "Listen," Nick explained, "I'm a gambler, and in my business I must feel the same whether I win or lose. The minute it starts making a difference in my feelings I quit—and open a restaurant. The same should go for women and you . . . So buck up and come with me to the Paradise, where Julie is singing. Face her. It'll do you good and settle your mind." . . . Proser perked up considerably, adopted a gay mood and accompanied Nick to the Paradise . . . Just as the gay blades reached the top of the stairs leading to the entrance, Monte heard the master of ceremonies announce: "And next, that 'Follies' beauty, etc. —Julie Jenner." . . . So what did Monte do? . . . He fell down the stairs!

TED HUSING entered the Tavern last week and confronted a stage-struck columnist. "Listen, you," Ted berated, "every time you print an item about me it's wrong. The last two items you printed about me cost me two jobs. The next time you have something to write about me phone me and try verifying it. Better yet—keep my name out of your column altogether." . . . "Okay, okay," replied the Bernhardt of the reporters. "I won't write about you any more. But first I'll send you a bill for five years' free publicity." . . . "Never mind sending the bill. I'll settle it right now," Ted returned—and tossed a penny onto his table.

In HOLLYWOOD With Jimmy Fiddler

Horse Opera.

HOLLYWOOD, NOV. 5.

No picture is more fun in the making than a Western. I have talked with many stars who earned their first movie spurs in such pictures and I have yet to find one with a harsh opinion.

DOLORES DEL RIO.

Every studio has its "Western Village," usually located miles from Hollywood. When time comes to begin a new "horse opera," the village is simply populated and these "residents" are used when and if needed. Throughout production they live in the village. Day extras are called only for sequences necessitating hundreds of people.

The same casts, directors and cameramen, the same working crews, and the same cowboy and Indian extras work in all Western pictures, consequently everybody knows everybody else.

There is little studio atmosphere because actors wear no make-up and actresses very little. Life is utterly informal, as it is in any "cow city." Romances, sports and games, Saturday night dances, fist fights, even daily visits to the postoffice and bus depot—everything common to the average small town.

The one difference is that a movie company dines en masse. Each location unit has its own kitchen crew, and food is served army style in a huge mess hall. Good, plain food it is, too, and plenty of it for brawny, healthy men and women. There is usually a movie theater, and nearly always a night campfire around which gather cowboys who croon their plaintive prairie melodies.

• • • •

On her return from abroad Dolores Del Rio told this amusing anecdote which has since been distorted in the retelling, but originally was as follows: She was touring London with the director of her picture when they came upon an electric sign about the size of one of our common roadside billboards. "There," said the director, "is one of the largest displays in England."

Sterling Cast Will Support Katherine Cornell In 'Wingless Victory' at Premiere Here Nov. 24

Walter Abel to Have Male Lead in New Maxwell Anderson Piece; Ruth Matteson, Kent Smith, Hardie Albright, Ede Heineman, Helen Zelenskaya, Arthur Chatterson, Lois Jameson and Morton Stevens in Cast; Effie Shannon Has Principal Role.

IT SHOULD be a matter of intense interest to the lovers of the best in the theater to follow the assemblage of the supporting cast that will appear with Katharine Cornell in Maxwell Anderson's new play of "The Wingless Victory," for the first time on any stage in the National Theater on the night of Monday, November 24.

BELL.

It already has been announced in this space that Walter Abel will return from Hollywood on furlough from RKO-Radio Pictures to assume the leading male role among Miss Cornell's associate artists. In addition to Mr. Abel, whose work in Eugene O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Electra" will not soon be forgotten, the cast of "The Wingless Victory" will include Ruth Matteson, Kent Smith, Hardie Albright, who possesses what this column is pleased to look upon as one of the most distinguished dictions on the American stage or screen; Ede Heineman, Helen Zelenskaya, Arthur Chatterton, Lois Jameson and Morton Stevens.

As if this were not enough insurance of a superlative performance, a still later bulletin from the helpful typewriter of Ray Henderson advises that Effie Shannon also has been added to the roster of principals for the new play. Miss Shannon, who appeared under Guthrie McClintoc's direction last season in "Parnell," will have the important role of Mrs. McQueston, mother of the sea captain who marries a Malay princess and brings her back to his New England home.

Since Miss Cornell's last local engagement in "Romeo and Juliet" in the same theater was a complete sellout and enough money to insure a handsome second week's profit had to be refunded because there were no more tickets left to sell, it is a friendly suggestion that you get your order in early for "The Wingless Victory."

A Katharine Cornell "first time on any stage" is something that may not be laughed off lightly in the thought that there will be plenty of seats available any time you care to go. If you wait that long, there won't be any.

• • • •

There are a few last-minute changes in bookings that ought to be communicated to cinema's palpitant public. For one thing, "Wives Never Know," costarring Charles Ruggles and Mary Boland, will not be the new week's attraction on the screen at the Metropolitan. Max Reinhardt's film version of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be held over for a second week, instead. And at RKO-Keith's the screen offering following Victor McLaglen and Binnie Barnes in "The Magnificent Brute" will be "The President's Mystery," a screen story of industrial conditions suggested by President Franklin Delano Roosevelt and written for the screen by Rupert Hughes, Samuel Hopkins Adams, Anthony Abbott, Rita Weiman, S. S. Van Dyne and John Erskine. Herbert Wilcoxon, Betty Furness, Evelyn Brent and Sidney Blackmer head the cast.

There have been rumors flouting around in the circumambient for weeks to the effect that Jean Harlow, currently on view at Loew's Palace with William Powell, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy and Walter Connolly in "Libeled Lady," concerning which something is said in another column, might be a personal visitor to the Capital this fall.

The thing seems to be coming to a head, in a manner of speaking. There is just an outside chance—and I suspect that at the present moment it is nothing more than that—that Miss Harlow, the radiant young woman who has graduated her effulgence from platinum to brownette since she last was here, will be the "surprise" that the Variety Club has up its collective sleeve for the third annual rout scheduled for Saturday night, November 21, at the Willard.

It is known that General Chairman Carter Barron, divisional manager of Loew's, Inc., in the Washington territory, has been working for weeks on the possibility that Miss Harlow might be coming along sometime soon and might as well as not be the guest of honor at the annual Variety soiree. She has not been here for a good many years now, four or five, at least, and would add a touch of glamour to an already glamorous evening that would impress it in memory as one for the book.

Miss Harlow is said to be on her way East and since she always has liked Washington, it is highly probable that she will stop off here between trains if nothing more.

The Variety banquet and dance—including a floor show that could not be bought for money—will be limited this year to 500. A brisk demand for tickets already has asserted itself, according to Harry Brown, chairman of the ticket committee. Get yours now.

• • • •

Speaking of such, mail and telephone orders for tickets to "Kind Lady," second production of the Washington Civic Theater, are being accepted at the offices of the theater in the Raleigh Hotel—District 1600 by phone. The play will be presented in Wardman Park Theater on November 18, 19, 20 and 21. The box-office sale of tickets will begin on Thursday, November 12.

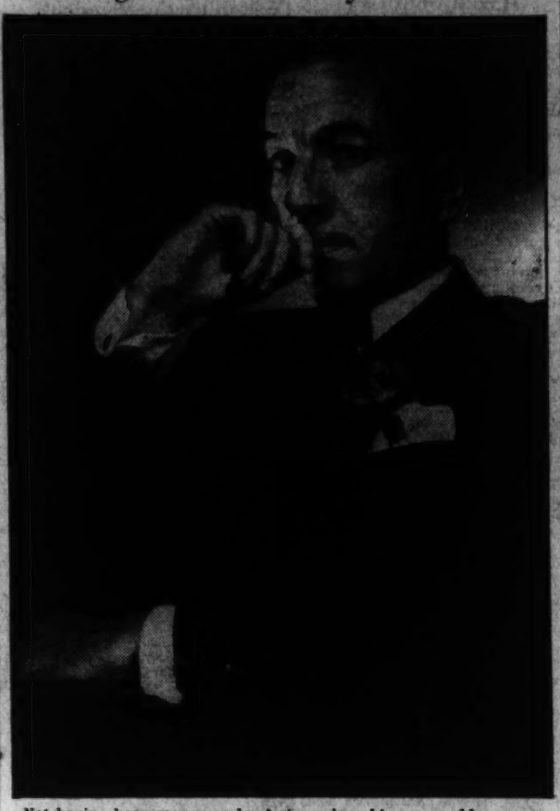
Regardless of whatever success they may achieve, Noel Coward's nine one-act plays, grouped under the title of "Tonight at Eight-Thirty" and to be presented in the National Theater for the two weeks beginning next Sunday night, will be shown in New York for only three months.

Mr. Coward likes to write but, one suspects, is a little bored by the necessity of acting the same roles night after night for an indefinite

Brings Nine New Plays to Town



Not having been seen on a local stage since his memorable appearance here with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in "Design for Living," Noel Coward returns to the stage of the National next Monday night for a two-week engagement in nine new short plays of his own authorship in which he will be principally supported by Gertrude Lawrence. There will be three "first nights" the first week, with three plays allotted to each.

period. It will be recalled that he limited the runs of both "Private Lives" and "Design for Living" to short runs after which he would have none of them personally, but dashed pell-mell to the nearest tramp steamer for another one of those famous cruises of his.

Signs of the Times.

It is Mr. F. T. Hoadley, Chevy Chase, Md., who spotted this double-feature bill announced on the marquee sign of a Milwaukee, Wis., picture house last summer:

"HOORAY FOR LOVE"

"Libeled Lady" Presents Star Cast in Lively Marital Joust.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"LIBELED LADY." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a story by Wallace Sullivan, adapted to the screen by Maurine Watkins, Howard Emmett Rogers and George Oppenheimer, featuring William Powell, Myrna Loy, Jean Harlow, Spencer Tracy and Walter Connolly, with Charley Grapewin, Cora Witherspoon, E. E. Clive, Spencer Charters, Charles Trowbridge and George Chandler. Directed by Jack Conway. At Loew's Palace Theater. Previewed Sunday night, November 1.

Paced to the high-stepping tempo of the wealthy sophisticates, this exhilarating comedy of heiresses, newspaper libel suits and frantic managing editors romps through an hour or two of the most hilarious fun the screen has known in recent months.

It is scarcely necessary to do more than scan the personnel of the distinguished cast Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has assembled for this gay adventure in threatened reputations, impetuous marriages and eventual clarification of all matrimonial and editorial difficulties to know with what finesse it is done.

William Powell is a suave and impeccable gentleman who marries Miss Jean Harlow as a gesture in protection of a newspaper friend who is really engaged to the girl, but finds himself confronted with a suit that threatens to lighten the boss' bank account by the meager sum of $5,000,000.

Powell Hooks a Big One.

The course of events makes it essential for Mr. Powell to take a quick trip to Europe. Upon his return he finds himself providentially—and by some clever planning on his own part—aboard the Queen Anne (a feeble camouflage of the Queen Mary, incidentally) with the "libeled lady" and her father, who entertains an enormous enthusiasm for trout fishing. It is this fortunate disclosure that leads to the most amusing scenes in the picture, during which Mr. Powell, as the veriest tyro, snags the biggest fish in the stream for which expert anglers have been casting longer than they can remember.

The whole merry business finally has a favorable outcome for all concerned, including the audience, by demonstrating the extreme fragility of some of Miss Harlow's earlier divorces, thus invalidating her marriage to Mr. Powell, clearing decks for his betrothal to Myrna Loy and permitting Spencer Tracy to wait a little while longer for Miss Harlow while she straightens out the peculiarly involved complications of her love life.

In all of this, I take it, any seasoned follower of the gelatins and their principal Thespic interpreters will perceive the basis of high-speed and delightful entertainment. Mr. Powell, at heart a comedian, plays with the zest of a man who really never caught a fish and Miss Loy, opposite, maintains a dignified and haughty aloofness that quite fits the character and contributes to the final effectiveness of the film's furiously farcical story.

Most of the time Miss Harlow is the hard-berled character that has come to be something of a trade mark for her on the screen—and it is not in the least like her, off-screen—and Spencer Tracy does his accustomed skillful job as a harried editor who has to choke off that $5,000,000 libel suit, resulting from one of his paper's scandal stories, or else.

Walter Connolly also is a tower of strength in the comic developments of the play in the role of Miss Loy's millionaire father who would rather hook a trout than make another million.

Expansive in Scene.

Minor supporting roles are played by such veterans of the stage and screen as Charley Grapewin, the newspaper owner, who looks with slight favor upon the activities of the "libeled lady;" Cora Witherspoon, one of this department's favorite comediennes; E. E. Clive, Spencer Charters and a long list of others.

"Libeled Lady" has been directed with a fine eye for comic effect by Jack Conway and represents an unusual combination of farce, "hokum" and sophisticated high comedy.

'Carnival in Flanders' Proves Best Foreign Comedy To Illuminate U. S. Silver Screen in Many Years

"CARNIVAL IN FLANDERS," sharpwitted "LA KERMESSE HEROIQUE," Films Sonores Tobis Espinay picturization of a story by Charles Spaak, adapted to the screen by Bernard Zimmer, with music by Louis Beydts, featuring Francoise Rosay, Alerme, Jean Murat, Louis Jouvet, Lynne Clevers, Micheline Cheirel, Maryse Wendling, Claude Gembert, Alfred Adam, Claude Saint Val and Delphin, the dwarf. Directed by Jacques Feyder. Presented Wednesday midnight to the Belasco Theater.

These four popular players, it seems almost needless to say, from left to right, are William Powell, Myrna Loy, Jean Harlow and Spencer Tracy. All have done many fine things in a serious vein for the cinema. Each, on the other hand, is a born funmaker. That will be proved to the satisfaction of all who view "Libeled Lady," current feature at Loew's Palace.

Never has so fast-moving, so adult and so distinguished a screen comedy come to a local silver sheet as this slightly risque and exuberantly entertaining counterpart of Robert Emmett Sherwood's maiden effort as a playwright, "The Road to Rome," in which Jane Cowl starred at the Belasco years ago.

Not that the two plays have anything in common beyond the feminine viewpoint as to what may best be done with invaders and a sophisticated treatment that makes for mature diversion. There is nothing in the least suggestive of plagiarism here, but there is much the same flavor to be found in the ingredients of a drama that harks back to 1616 in Flanders for its locale and story as was found in the earlier work.

The little town of Boom is preparing for the annual kermasse, or carnival, when word reaches the authorities that a Spanish Duke is leading his hordes toward the Flemish village and will spend the night and possibly a day there. The Burgomaster anticipates nothing but a shambles at the hands of Duke Philippe. His scheme is to play dead in the hope that the invaders will travel on to another city out of respect for his demise. He has had almost trouble enough already in trying to persuade his daughter to wed the butcher instead of the artist and now comes Philippe to cip the climax of his persecution!

The Ladies Take Command.

But his wife, the Lady Burgomaster and the "head man" of their domestic menage, has other ideas. Summoning the women of the village to her support, she contrives a plan to entertain the visiting Spaniards in a manner to which they have never before, presumably, been accustomed. It works perfectly, but perhaps just a little shocking for those who are able to understand the French dialogue in which the picture is spoken. The English superimposed subtitles are, as always, inadequate, but it must be said in their defense that they represent the most skillful and comprehensive job that has been done to date in rendering foreign-made films intelligible to American audiences.

In point of production, "Carnival in Flanders" also is the most impressive production that has been imported to the Belasco from the other side. It is beautifully staged and photographed, and deserves to have won the high awards which are reported to have been bestowed upon it in Europe. There is a movement, verve, high humor and all-around excellence to this film that cannot be gainsaid by even the most captious of native critics, who are more apt than not to discount the merit of any foreign production, even before they have seen it.

Although the personnel of the cast means little in the matter of "marquee names" to the American public, there can be no derogation of the superlative excellence of their work.

Leading Woman Scores.

Francoise Rosay, as the Mme. Burgomaster, who engineers the coup that saves Boom from destruction, plays with a full sense of the role's comic as well as dramatic possibilities and adds a subtle touch of ribaldry to the developments of the plot that is so discreetly and expertly done as to leave no aftermath beyond one of appreciation for an extremely artistic performance. The same may be said of Alerme's portrayal of the craven Burgomaster. His per-out of Europe within memory. Louis Jouvet, as the priest, and Jean Murat, as the invading Duke, also contribute interpretations of exceptional worth.

In every department of production and performance I cannot too highly recommend this deftly contrived Gallic comedy as one of the most useful exhibits of the Parisian sense of farcical humor that have come to these shores in years. There is about it all a quality of sheer realism and perfected detail that places it alongside "Les Miserables" as a superb study in the degree to which the cinema can achieve actuality, although the stories have no more in common than "Getting Gertie's Garter" and "Macbeth."

There is more than vague analogy in that "Getting Gertie's Garter" allusion, at that, it may be remarked!

The usual short-reels and Fox Movietone News supplement a feature which, while admittedly audacious, bawdy and seldom discreet in its implications, still is so admirably done as to command the approbation of any broad-minded observer.

"HELL'S ANGELS." United Artists picturization of a story by Marshall Neilan and Joseph Moncure March, featuring Ben Lyon, James Hall and Jean Harlow. Produced and directed by Howard Hughes. Reviewed (revival) by W. A. Whitney.

The first really big pictorial presentation of aerial warfare—and considered by many to be the greatest of them all—returns: "Hell's Angels," indeed a Titan among Titans.

"'Hell's Angels' presents in its entirety one of the finest dramas of aero warfare yet made, combining the perfection of the silent photographic technique with the best sound engineering has to offer." Thus did this reviewer on January 3, 1931, comment on what was to become the week of November 5, 1936, the Rialto Theater's featured attraction.

And we see no reason, even after a lapse of nearly six years, to alter that opinion. While the picture may leave some things to be desired in purely narrative aspects to add a doof of marvelous feats of airmanship, mkaing the entire fabric tense and compellingly dramatic.

It was this picture, it will be recalled, which made Jean Harlow a star of first magnitude. With her are associated Ben Lyon, James Hall and John Darrow in the major parts of this drama of aviators—on land, as well as in the air.

"ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT." Universal picturization of the story by Erich Maria Remarque, adapted to the screen by Maxwell Anderson and George Abbott; featuring Lewis Ayres, supported by William Bakewell, Louis Wolheim, Beryl Mercer, "Slim" Summerville. Directed by Lewis Milestone. Reviewed (revival) by W. A. Whitney.

Ranking with "Journey's End," "What Price Glory?" and "The Big Parade" as one of the finest dramas to have come out of the World War, "All Quiet on the Western Front" continues after these five years still to maintain its enviable position among the cinema's more notable exhibits.

The passage of the years has not made less poignant the drama of the story, the utter horror and futility of armed conflict, and the honesty and sincerity of each person associated with this, the junior Carl Laemmle's debut in motion-picture production.

One need not recount here the story, which in the film version centers in the person of Lew Ayres, for that, once seen, can never be forgotten and those who may not have seen the work well know the story and the picture from hearsay.

Accordingly, it is quite sufficient to say that, at a time when war clouds, despite the recent statement of a newspaper publisher, are cluttering up the sky, one owes it to himself again to witness "All Quiet on the Western Front" and to renew his determination to make certain that this ruthless carnage shall not be known again.

The October issue of "The March of Time," featuring commentaries of the anti-tithing activities of the adherents to the Church of England, college football and the labor situation in the United States; "Neighbors," a cartoon; and "Football Teamwork," a Pete Smith Oddity, round out the program of particular merit.

Takoma Players

"ARE YOU A MASON?" The Little Theater of Takoma Park presents the comedy in three acts by Leo Dietrichstein, directed by H. M. Smythe, with scenery and stagecraft by Perry Huf and J. H. Vogel. At the Presbyterian Church Hall, Takoma Park, Md., November 5 and 6. Reviewed Thursday evening by W. A. Whitney.

In three acts of pleasing entertainment the Little Theater of Takoma Park last evening offered Leo Dietrichstein's comedy, "Are You a Mason?" before an enthusiastic audience.

While Playwright Dietrichstein dealt with a sure-fire situation—the difficulties of a dutiful hubby gets into when he offers a white lie to cover his soirees at poker—and seemed hugely to enjoy the marital harassment, the players were themselves not entirely responsible for the merriment.

Situations themselves such as were contrived in this comedy are always good for plenty of laughs, but the manner of presenting the show lacked the proper delivery. Read in a somewhat stacatto manner, the players called more upon the audience to respond to the lines of the playwright than spontaneously to enjoy their mirroring of life.

But the audience enjoyed itself, and to Harry Richards, as the husband devoid of Masonic affiliations; Richard Alderson, as the ex-actor friend; William M. Green, as the up-State farmer who would become a joiner; and Will H. Carlton, as the father-ni-law, belong the greater measures of credit for that enjoyment.

Two amatory threads are included, with Mr. Alderson and Charlotte Knott and H. J. Stevens and Doris Judge functioning with some degree of credit. Among the others in the company were E. Clyde Smith, Agnes Carleton, Phyllis Huff, Margaret Boyner, Clara Mae Tarbett and Marie Staples.

"Sure, I drink America's finest whiskey ...it's only a quarter more!"

"PERHAPS I'm no expert—but when I met Four Roses, nobody had to tell me I'd found the whiskey I'd been looking for!

"I'm no spendthrift, either—but when I learned that I could get Four Roses for only a quarter a pint more than the kind I'd been buying, you can bet I switched brands mighty fast."

★ ★ ★

Every drop of Four Roses is whiskey. Not just one fine straight whiskey, but a glorious combination of several straight whiskies, each outstanding for some particular quality: aroma or body or smoothness or flavor.

Blended together, with a skill born of 70 years' experience, these whiskies merge all their virtues in one truly great whiskey—and its name is Four Roses!

Younger Set Opens Year At Luncheon

Mrs. Sibley Gives Talk on Opportunities for Service.

By Dudley Harmon.

Attendance at the Junior League's opening luncheon of the season yesterday hit a higher mark than for several years. Practically every seat at the small tables set up in the Italian Garden of the Mayflower was taken, and when the meeting broke up there wasn't so much as a grapefruit or a macaroon left to attest that some of the guests invited hadn't turned up.

December promises to be a month of momentous decisions for the Junior League, according to announcement made yesterday by the president, Mrs. William W. Mackall, jr., who presided. Provisional members will be announced, and the group will decide whether to continue sponsorship of the annual National Capital Horse Show. Also, there's been some talk of the League's giving a large ball this year, and that question will be decided.

Mrs. Sibley Speaks.

Mrs. Harper Sibley, wife of the president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and herself a member of the Junior League, received close attention during every minute of her speech on opportunities for service by league members. She spoke wisely and wittily, and looked far too young to be the mother of six children, and a grandmother besides, as she sat at the speakers' table, wearing a gown of soft green crepe with a high-crowned velvet toque of matching shade and a corsage of gardenias.

Seated at the same table were several officers of the league, including the first vice president, Mrs. Montgomery Blair, jr., dressed in a chic brown tailleur with a soft rose-colored hat of felt; Mrs. Bishop Hill, treasurer, and Mrs. Reginald Meade, secretary. Also at that table was Miss Gloria Chandler, secretary of the Children's Theater department of the Association of Junior Leagues of America, who gave a short address.

Committee Heads Attend.

Many newly elected heads of various League committees were present yesterday, including Mrs. Pierre Gaillard, Mrs. Conrad Eustis, in a blue frock trimmed with green piping; Miss Virginia Flannery, Miss Anne Hollowell and Miss Elizabeth Houghton, whose blue wool frock matched a blue quill pinned to her sports hat. Also present was Mrs. Robert Watson, who has been hard at work for the success of the children's entertainment program which begins tomorrow at the Roosevelt High School.

Mrs. Harry Hines Woodring, wife of the Secretary of War, was present, dressed in all black, and others who attended the luncheon included Miss Olivia Stokes, Miss Patricia Ridsdale, Miss Stellita Stapleton, Mrs. John Martin, in a black suit trimmed with Persian lamb and a high-crowned black felt hat; Mrs. Henry Parsons Erwin, Miss Elizabeth Sibley, Miss Priscilla Watson, Mrs. John F. Cutler, Miss Betty Beale and her sister, Mrs. William T. Mann, in a simple brown tailleur with a gray hat; Miss Mary Cootes, in hunter's green frock and hat with a caracul cape; Miss Kay Pearson, Miss Anne Park, Mrs. Walter White, Mrs. David Karrick, the Misses Ruth and Dorothy Sowers, Miss Elizabeth Morison with Mrs. Evatt Barnum, and Mrs. Oscar Coolican, who sat at the speakers' table.

Chinese Envoy Luncheon Guest

The Ambassador of China, Dr. Sao-Ke Alfred Sze, was guest of honor at a luncheon yesterday at the Cosmos Club, given by Dr. Herbert Wright, professor of international law at Catholic University.

The guests included Mr. Wilbur J. Carr, Assistant Secretary of State; Mr. R. Walton Moore, Assistant Secretary of State; the Rev. James E. Walsh, M. M., superior general of the Catholic Foreign Mission Society; the Rev. Joseph M. Corrigan, rector of the Catholic University of America; Mr. Robert Lincoln O'Brien, chairman of the United States Tariff Commission; Dr. John C. Merriam, president of the Carnegie Institution of Washington; Mr. James Clement Dunn, special assistant to the Secretary of State; Capt. George V. Stewart, U. S. N., head of the post-graduate school, United States Naval Academy.

Hold Dance Saturday.

Alpha and Omega Chapters of Beta Gamma Phi Sorority will hold their opening fall dance Saturday, at Indian Spring Country Club.

THE MERRY WHIRL by MARYLYN

"Cloudy," the huge Shepherd dog that stands guard at "Contemplation," vociferously greeted guests arriving for supper the other evening when the Reed Thomases were being feted in celebration of their fourth wedding anniversary. To all who know the dog, he is as gentle as a lamb, but those who have not had the pleasure of his acquaintance receive quite a start when he accompanies the cars to their parking places and then sticks his massive head in the window and growls his nicest hello.

Hostess Betty Winans Astin, in gunmetal lame, came out of doors in spite of the rain to welcome the arrivals, while her merry husband, Mills, remained inside putting the finishing touches on the punch.

The Astins have just discovered a ghost at their home, and they believe it high time for one to put in its appearance as the house is ages old, and who ever heard of an old house being ghostless? Anyway, as Betty was telling a group of early arrivals about meeting the spook, she reached a point in her narrative which had every one sitting on the very edge of his chair, when a gust of wind dashed rain and twigs against the nearest window, and there came a knock at the door. It was only more guests arriving, but it did provide the necessary scare.

• • • •

After supping, several small groups took form and each went about its own business like a separate little world. In front of the fireplace Betty West English, lovely as ever and wearing a flame satin gown with loop sleeves at the shoulders, sat on a long low bench and smilingly listened to the debate going on between Reed Thomas, whose bright plaid socks were the envy of all, and her husband Merton English, Politics and election are still the leading topics. Kibitzing and delighted with it was DeLong Bowman, who with the other two gentlemen, was seated on the floor.

• • •

In a corner across the room Charles Shumaker and petite Peggy Thomas, in rust crepe, were the ring leaders in song while "T" Burkett and Pretty Jane Corcoran, in peacock green, cheered and spurred them on up the scale. They were occasionally joined by Mills Astin, who stopped his "hostly" wanderings long enough every time he passed to snatch off a few bars of melody.

In the cozy drawing room on the other side of the house, the Hank Reeds, she wearing her dark curles in one of those halo coiffures, vastly becoming to her; Betty Carter who pooh-poohs anyone's praise of her magnificent riding, and who had on a greenish-blue crepe gown trimmed with rhinestones; "Charlie John" Lynham, Deek Ottoway and the Howard Raileys, she in black lace; talked of shoes, and ships and sealing wax, presidents and kings. Smith Bowman not in any one "camp" went from group to group but, kept an eye on Temp Feaver, who is visiting the Bowmans

Edith Mish, in Old Bridal Gown, Married to Gerhard Smitskamp

Gunton Temple Church Decorated With Flowers for Evening Ceremony; Couple to Reside in Capital After Motor Honeymoon Journey.

Wearing the wedding gown worn years ago by her grandmother, Mrs. Robert Mish, Miss Edith Galt Mish last night became the bride of Mr. Gerhard Frederick Smitskamp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard Smitskamp, of this city. The ceremony was at 8:30 o'clock in Gunton Temple Memorial Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Dr. Bernard Braskamp officiated.

The church was decorated with palms, autumn leaves and white chrysanthemums, and candles lighted the altar. White ribbons marked the aisles and little bouquets of white pom-poms decorated the ends of the pews.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Matthew Galt Mish, was given in marriage by her father. Tall and slender with golden hair and blue eyes, she wore a gown of white satin, with a panel of heirloom lace beaded in pearls, and the front of the bodice laced in quaint fashion from the V-neck to the waist. The back of the skirt had a small bustle from which the skirt and long train extended.

Her veil of illusion was held in cap shape with lilies of the valley at the back and a short veil over her face. Her bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley was much like that which had been carried by her grandmother.

She was attended by Miss Charlotte Reed, daughter of Capt. Paul L. Reed, U. S. N., retired, and Mrs. Reed, as maid of honor. She wore a gown of electric blue satin made on empire lines and a blue turban of the same material and carried yellow pom-pom chrysanthemums.

The bridesmaids were Miss Charlotte Taylor, Mrs. Jeoffrey Creyke, jr., Miss Mary Silber and Miss Jeannette Smithskamp, sister of the bridegroom. All wore gold-colored satin gowns in empire style, trimmed in brown velvet, and with a brown velvet turban and carried golden brown chrysanthemums.

Mr Thomas Robbins Baldwin served as best man and the ushers were Mr. Jeoffrey Creyke, jr., Mr. Matthew Trimble Sawtelle, Mr. Robert Howard Dunnington and Mr. Lewis Wolfe.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents. The mother of the bride wore a gown of blue crystalline velvet, trimmed with silver lame and a corsage of gardenias and lilies of the valley. The mother of the bridegroom was in a gown of mulberry lace and wore a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Mish, the grandmother, was in a frock of dubonnet velvet and her corsage was of orchids.

Palms and white chrysanthemums decorated the house and the bridal table had a centerpiece of lilies of the valley and was lighted with white tapers.

Miss Thompson To Shun Parties

Unlike many brides who attend parties in their honor right up until the day of the wedding, Miss Caroline Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Huston Thompson, is having a moratorium on parties from Sunday until Wednesday, when she will be married to Mr. John Farr Simmons. The ceremony will take place at 5 p. m. in the Sulgrave Club.

The Secretary of the Turkish Embassy, Mr. Ibrahim Seyfullah, entertained at a cocktail party yesterday in honor of her and her fiance, and last evening Mr. and Mrs. Charles Darlington gave a dinner for the couple. Mrs. L. Corrin Strong, Mrs. Herbert Feis, Frau Herbert Scholz and Mrs. Donald Hiss are others who have entertained in honor of Miss Thompson and Mr. Simmons.

Miss Octavia Stokes will be maid of honor and only attendant for the bridde-to-be.

Society Notes

Mrs. Roosevelt arrived in Washington last evening from Hyde Park, having driven her roadster to the Capital herself. She will hold a press conference at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

It is expected she will start a two-week lecture tour Sunday which will take her as far as Kansas City. Her first lecture will be on Sunday evening at Temple University in Philadelphia.

The United States Ambassador to Brazil, Mr. Hugh Gibson, is in Washington and is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn at their home on Observatory circle.

On Wednesday Mr. Gibson was guest of honor at a luncheon given by the Ambassador of Brazil, Mr. Oswaldo Aranha.

The Mexican Embassy was the scene of a small and informal reception yesterday morning when the Ambassador, Senor Dr. Don Francisco Castillo Najero, and members of his staff and the Minister of Bulgaria, Dr. Dimitri Naoumoff, and his staff met to sign an amity treaty between the two countries.

The Minister of South Africa and Mme. Close will leave Washington today for New York, where they will attend the Armistice ball of the British Great War Veterans of America at the Waldorf-Astoria this evening.

Last evening they were hosts at Chevy Chase Country Club at a dinner in honor of Col. Lewis, of the Royal Artillery, of London.

The Minister of Venezuela, Senor Dr. Don Diogenes Escalante, has gone to New York and will sail tomorrow aboard the S. S. Champlain for Europe. He will go directly to Paris, where he will join his family and will be accompanied by them on his return to this country the middle of December. During the absence of the Minister, the Counselor, Senor Dr. Jacinto Fombona-Pachano, will assume the duties of Charge d'Affaires.

Will Give Luncheon

Mrs. Conrad Syme will entertain at the first of a series of luncheons Thursday in her home on Macomb street.

Jusserand's Widow Press Unit's Guest

She Is Accompanied by Mme. de LaBoulaye on Entrance.

By Jessie Ash Arndt.

Mme. Jules J. Jusserand, widow of the late former Ambassador of France, yesterday was guest of honor at a tea given by the Newspaper Women's Club at the Admiral, in the house which was once the French Embassy and in which she and the Ambassador lived for four years of the 23 they were in Washington.

The guest of honor, with Miss Margaret Hart, president of the club, received in the little room to the right of the stairway on the second floor, which was the Ambassador's study, where he wrote many pages of his books. What is now the dining room of the club was during the Jusserands' occupancy the drawing room, furnished in gold and rose brocade, and the scene of many elaborate functions. Yesterday an electric organ had been installed and "The Marseillaise" was played as Mme. Jusserand entered, accompanied by Mme. de Laboulaye, wife of the present French Ambassador.

Mme. Jusserand wore a black gown buttoned down the back with countless small round buttons, a black band around her throat, and a black hat which was in design a modification of a man's opera hat. She greeted the newspaper women and their guests with her customary graciousness. Many of them were among the friends of former years. Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie was one of the guests with whom she talked over old times. She and the Ambassador had known Mrs. Imbrie's father, Col. Robert Gillespie.

Recalling the days in the house whose rooms were so familiar to her, she said that although the four years she was there were those of the World War, the memories of her residence were happy ones because in those years the bond of friendship with the pepole of Washington seemed even closer than before.

Among those who assisted at the tea table were Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, who is an honorary member of the club, and Mrs. Sallie V. H. Pickett, dean of newspaper women in Washington, and one of the founders of the club.

Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, another honorary member of the club, who came in for a short time during the latter part of the afternoon, was accompanied by her son, Mr. MacDonald Goodwin, and Miss Caroline Cecil. A few who were there at the end of the party had the privilege of hearing her sing "The Marseillaise" to the accompaniment of the organ.

Miss Fleming Is Named Wellesley Junior Head

Miss Edar von Lengerke Fleming, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fleming, of Edgemoor, Bethesda, has been elected president of the junior class at Wellesley College.

Miss Fleming was graduated from the Cathedral School in Washington. At Wellesley she has been a member of Barn Swallows, the college dramatic society, and the secretary of the sophomore class. She made her debut in Washington last season.

Will Entertain at Tea.

Mrs. John Rutherford has issued cards for an at-home on Saturday, November 14, at her residence on Twentieth street.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Should Girls Give Their Photographs to Boy Friends? How Can Woman, 45, Hold Love of Boy, 20? These Are Today's Questions.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My mother, my sister and myself have recently been discussing the subject of whether or not it is proper for a girl to give her photograph to a boy for Christmas. My sister is 16, and for nine months has been going with a boy the same age. He has asked her for a picture, other than a snapshot. I am 15, and for nearly nine months have been going with a boy 18. He would also like a photograph. Both of them are very nice boys, and our parents like them very much.

• • • •

I happen to know that my friend is giving me a small chest which he is making in school, as he asked me if I would be permitted to accept it. For additional information, my sister is in her last year of high school and I am in my next to last year. There is also a boy who, in his last year of high school, became a very good friend of my sister's. He is now in college, and my sister wondered if it would be proper to send him, also, a framed copy of her picture that is to be used in the school year book.

• • • •

Mother has promised to let us give these three boys our pictures if your decision is in favor of it. Otherwise, we can't. I hope you will answer soon, as we wish to make an early decision. Thanking you very much, I am, sincerely, YOUNGER SISTER.

• • • •

DEAR YOUNGER SISTER: Strictly speaking, it is not best form for young girls to give their photographs to young men, although it is frequently done, and I dare say no red-blooded young man of today feels that his room (either at college or at home) is adequately furnished until and unless it disports framed photographs of at least one, and preferably more, of his alleged feminine admirers. For this reason alone, young girls should think twice and seriously before going on record, in the eyes of masculine contemporaries, as being the very special friend of any one youth. I think, too, that a girl's photograph cannot smile forth upon the world from some boy's writing desk, bureau or wall space, without the subject's running the risk of being made the topic of masculine conversation from time to time; and I think any sensitive, well-bred young girl would shrink at the thought of such a possibility.

• • • •

It is my opinion that photographs should be exchanged between boy and girl only after they are engaged to be married; and that a girl's photograph is just about the last thing on the gift list she should give a boy. If any of these young men see fit to make you or your sister a gift of his photograph, that is a different matter. M. H.

June-and-December Love.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a woman of 45, deeply in love with a man 25 years my junior. I often wonder if he thinks of me as an older woman or whether his love is true. What can I do to make myself look more attractive and younger?

I play bridge and go to many social functions. I am unmarried and long for a companion. The object of my affection may be young in years, but his mind is well developed. Hoping you will be able to give me an answer soon, I am, sincerely yours, PUZZLED.

• • • •

DEAR PUZZLED: There would be something radically wrong with the boy's thought processes if he didn't think of you as an older woman, since you are 25 years his senior; more than twice his age, and old enough to be his mother. Surely you aren't deluding yourself with the notion that he thinks of you as a young girl or even as a young woman. If he loves you (although you have cited no evidence to justify that supposition) the reality of his love would not necessarily be affected by honest acknowledgment on both sides of the difference in your ages. As a matter of fact, if you have the good sense to act your age and bestow upon him a happy blending of mother love and sweetheart love, you may be making the right and wise response which will keep the relationship vital, binding and enduringly satisfactory.

• • • •

You may recall that the wife of Disraeli, England's Prime Minister and great statesman during Victoria's reign, was many years his senior and remained his sweetheart to the end of life, through having the good sense to be as much mother as wife to him.

If you keep informed on contemporary history, you have probably read that Elsie Janis, famous "sweetheart of the A. E. F." is today happily married to a man 20 years her junior. The fact that the difference in their ages has never been camouflaged nor disputed would indicate that they honestly faced the figures and dismissed them as facts of no importance.

• • • •

You will probably only be emphasizing the difference in your ages if you go too far in the direction of trying to make yourself appear younger. My advice to you would be to try to make yourself one of the world's loveliest looking and most agreeable woman of 45. This means giving meticulous attention to the lines of your figure, to the grooming of your hair, brows, nails, skin and teeth, and to the selection of a smart, simple and flattering wardrobe. The woman of 45 who hopes to look smart and as young as her years will permit should rule out doodads, such as necklaces, earrings, brooches, bracelets and other purposeless adornments. She should dress in solid colors most becoming to her hair and complexion.

• • • •

Plain tailored frocks and severely tailored suits and wraps do wonders for many women of this age. Other types are advantaged by garments made on slim, flowing lines. Many women of this age look extremely well in navy blue or black, relieved by touches of crisp white or off-white shades at wrist and throat. Gloves, bags, shoes and hose should be expensive looking and severely smart. The woman of 45 should learn how to make up her face effectively and artistically. The right shade of lipstick, powder and cream rouge will do wonders for the saddest middle-age complexion. She should beware of eye shadow and mascara, particularly for daytime, as these cosmetic aids have a tendency to harden the expression of a face no longer youthful in texture and contour.

• • • •

When competing with younger women for the attention of a younger man, the woman of 45 should so conduct herself that she is envied her age and experience. She should never make the mistake of envying younger women their youth, or of attempting to meet them on this lost and shallow ground. She has—or should have—wisdom, understanding, humor, tolerance, kindliness, gentleness and strength to bring to a love relationship. And if she finds herself loved by a man young enough to be her son, she can depend upon it that he loves her for qualities of mind and heart he believes she possesses; and not because he has mistaken her for a lass of 18. M. H.

Sophisticated Pinks Popular This Year

New York (AP).—"Sophisticated pinks" such as Spanish rose, creme de rose, dusty pink and powdered strawberry—all more worldly and flattering than that bland Maude Muller pink—are much used this year. So are turquoise, chartreuse and hyacinth. White is rarely pure white—more often it is pearl, dove or calla.

Brown is a new negligee color and is often used for accent. Supple silk satins, soft silk chiffons, luxurious velvets and beautiful laces are the fabrics most often chosen.

Young Child Should Be Familiarized With Play Before Being Taken to Theater to Avoid Shock

By Elizabeth Young.

IF YOUR child is between the ages of 8 and 11, don't send him to the theater without first familiarizing him with the story of what he is about to see. If he is less than 6, don't send him at all. His nervous system is not yet ready for the shock of a theater experience.

This is advice of a children's theater expert, Miss Gloria Chandler, who was in Washington this week to conduct a five-day institute with the marionette group of the local Junior League.

"I don't think children of preschool age need the theater," says Miss Chandler. "I look into the audience to find, nearly always, that too many children are being given their first theater experience at too early an age. I suppose this is because so little is offered in the way of theater for children that parents are overanxious to give their children this advantage when it comes along. What they can better do is build a perennial children's theater program for their own communities, and let the child take it in his stride in good time." That is the sort of thing Miss Chandler has been doing the past four years in her capacity as field representative of the children's theater department of the Association of Junior Leagues of America, Inc.

Signs of Interest.

"Children, unlike adults, appreciate the theater most if they know what they are about to see," Miss Chandler maintains. "If a child can say the lines ahead of the principal actors, then he's happy; he gets full value. If he can say, 'Oh, yes; now he's going to do this', or 'Just a minute, now; he's going to do that.' If he is busy explaining to his parent, nurse or companion exactly what is going to happen next, he belongs in the audience.

"First contact with the theater plus the shock of unfamiliarity with a plot gives the average child too much to grasp at once," Miss Chandler says. "Children demand a certain amount of excitement and stimulation in their diversion. And in the theater, when they know what to look for, the excitement is good, healthy excitement. But when they don't beforehand, the mounting excitement and the shock of the climax is just too much. They leave the theater tense, confused and overstimulated."

"Cinderella" enjoys unrivaled popularity with child audiences, probably because the story is so well known. Other prime favorites are "Peter Pan," "Indian Captives," and "Pinocchio." This Miss Chandler learned while conducting the Junior League's Children's Theater at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago. The theater operated four months each year, giving three performances daily three days a week to capacity audiences.

Trained in Chicago.

Miss Chandler, who has been a staff member of the Association of Junior Leagues since 1933, has "done theater" all her life. She trained at the Grace Hickox studios in Chicago after graduating from Smith College and played with different semiprofessional and Little Theater groups in and out of the Windy City. She became interested in Children's Theater work from the child's point of view while teaching dramatics to students of the Faulkner School for Girls and the Girls' Latin School, of Chicago.

"Not," she says, "from the point of view of children acting; but from the point of view of adults acting for children. In order to project the kind of vivid and robust play which child audiences require—and theirs is a wholesouled slapstick humor and not the whimsy variety,—actors must bring adult maturity and understanding to their roles. If the performance is sufficiently vivid, every child in the audience will go away to recreate what he has seen, maybe in many different fields. And that is our aim in Children's Theater work—to stimulate the child's creative faculties and develop his standards of artistic appreciation."

During the past 16 years, 131 Junior Leagues in as many cities—out of the 140 leagues belonging to the Association of Junior Leagues of America, Inc.—have inaugurated Children's Theater programs as their contribution to the cultural life of their respective communities. These local theater projects are fitted into the educational systems where possible, and in other instances are a welcome supplement to school activities.

Last year, in Fort Worth, Tex., the Junior League Children's Theater was made a definite part of the educational program in the public schools, the board of education backing two productions for the year and making arrangements to have the productions shown in all schools with adequate auditorium facilities, which numbered 24.

The Children's Theater program of the Junior League came into being because members of the league who were mothers discovered there was no theater to take their children to.

"So they just got busy and provided it," Miss Chandler tells. "And in doing it for their own children they became interested in doing it for all children."

The Washington Junior League has a national reputation for the excellence of its marionette entertainment for children. "It has the most perfect technical setup in the country; splendid scenery, lighting effects and costuming, and is now concentrating on improving its theater technique in order to import robust personality to the characters," Miss Chandler says. In the course of the five-day institute here, Miss Chandler placed particular emphasis on voice projection.

In addition to its marionette program, the local league is sponsoring the presentation, beginning this Saturday, of a series of four "Junior Programs" brought out by a committee within the National Music League. The first offering is "Haensel and Gretal," to be given in the Roosevelt High School auditorium Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock, in co-operation with the Community Center. Miss Chandler is remaining in town for this event.

Miss Gloria Chandler, above, field representative of the Children's Theater Department of the Association of Junior Leagues of America, Inc., is in Washington this week conducting a five-day institute with the marionette group of the local league.

Juliet Cap Is Favorite Among Younger Players

The Juliet cap is Hollywood's latest gasp—at least among the younger players. Toby Wing was pert in one of these felt skull caps with blunt peak. Narrow black satin bands encircle the brimless crown and end up by forming a narrow bow with long, stiff ends and loops. For evening these Juliet caps are made up in gold cord and brilliants, but for day or evening they are certainly the most captivating cap of the century—if one is as young as Juliet.

A Woman's NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Nov. 5.

THANKS to persuasive and ceaseless propaganda, it is getting to be axiomatic around this daffy village that "Makeup Makes the Woman" these days—and every time the beauticians say it, a few more people believe it. I've majored in this mystic art during the past half-dozen years, and I've certainly seen many cases where the proper assortment of face-daubs has shed the years like hairpins at a barn dance.

ALICE HUGHES.

The biggest of our department stores recently set out to prove the validity of this new saw by establishing what it calls "the personal palette kit," or eight separate batches of makeup to suit the various leading shades of women's hair. Since the establishment of the thing thousands of women, old and dewy, have turned up begging to be shown the cosmetics which go with their particular thatches. Each palette kit contains cream, rouge, powder, mascara, lipstick and eye-shadow. Interesting hair statistics have been compiled through it.

One-third of the suppliants, the store tells me, have light brown hair. Twenty-five per cent are chestnut, a more reddish brown. Blue-black runs to 18 per cent, and ash blonde follows with eight. Reds and grays average 2 per cent apiece. And the shop craftily picked a horde of young and raving beauties to staff the department and advise with the sisterhood on face problems.

• • • •

The cosmetic business has now reached a truly astonishing peak of development. For the life of me I don't know what its magicians and hocus-pocus artists can do next—unless it is to tear our faces right up by the roots and start all over again!

• • • •

GIRL ABOUT TOWN: How's for buying a modest little pear-shaped pearl called the "Pellagrina?" It's only 34 carats, and you can snap up the silly bauble for the merest $200,000. I hear that Prince Youssoupoff, the Romanoff who is now in trade in London selling scent, is willing to let go the ridiculous trifle whenever he sees the two hundred grand on the line—or even near it. The jool's history begins in 1579, when it was owned by Philip II of Spain, and it has been in the Romanoff Prince's family for 100 years. So I've solved the problem of your Christmas present for Aunt Emma (the one with money) . . .

• • • •

On this gem matter, every time Cole Porter writes a mess of song hits for a successful musical show, he digs down and gives his missus some jeweled knick-knack to remember him by. "Anything Goes" brought her a ducky diamond and aquamarine necklace, and the new "Red, Hot and Blue" is about to add a heavily gemmed cigarette case to her collection. How Mrs. Porter pulls for hits!

• • • •

London is having one of its characteristic tonsilitis-chuckles at the expense of the New York department store which recently tried to tie up legally the word "Coronation" to use on its fancy merchandise. "No dice!" rules the copyright-sharks of Washington, and the store slank into the night! . . .

• • • •

You can always smell a Broadway stage hit a mile off. "Tovarich" is definitely in the bag and will run frantically all winter, for no less than three fancy saloons here are advertising "Tovarich Cocktails." Nobody ever named a tipple after a floppo!

Child Entitled To Reject Food If Ill Prepared

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

NO CHILD can be blamed for refusing to eat food which is badly cooked or prepared.

Many people go on the principle that a child will eat anything. They may be careful about his having enough calories and vitamins, about balancing starches and proteins, giving green vegetables and fruit, seeing that the mineral content of the food is adequate. Having attended to these details, however, they cook the food carelessly and serve it any which way, under the impression that the child will not know or care what he gets, so long as his hunger is satisfied.

Children do know, however. They object to badly cooked and messily served meals quite as much as do adults. They cannot always say why they will not eat, but their tastes are very definite, and should be considered.

The warmed-up left-overs, wilted-looking vegetables and over-cooked meat appeal to no one, and have not the same nourishment which is contained in freshly prepared food. Dry carrots, lumpy cereal, cabbage cooked to a tough rag, may nourish, but they do not appeal to any appetite. Strongly flavored or odorous foods, like cauliflower, onions, fish, need very special care to make them appeal to a child.

It is a great mistake to pamper a child with special dishes which he likes, or to worry and fret about his not eating enough.

The Chief Comes Home!

The Hecht Co. will withhold the opening of its doors today (Friday) until 9:30 a. m.—to pay homage to the President upon his return to Washington.

America's beloved leader returns today to Washington—returns to a citizenry whose respect and admiration know no bounds.

He comes not as a victor or a conqueror, for party lines are in the limbo of forgotten things—and America has united as a single man behind the standards of its Chief.

We salute you, Mr. President, with Washington and the nation—knowing the solemn pride that must be yours to have so won the esteem and affection of an entire people.

We congratulate you upon your past achievements—with a firm and resolute conviction in the glorious future that awaits you and all your countrymen.

Replacement Division

The rumored reorganization pending in the WPA and the continued retrenchments in the Resettlement Administration raise anew the question of what is to become of the WPA replacement division.

WPA unionists have been demanding that the hiring of non-civil service employes in government agencies from the replacement division rolls be made mandatory. The unionists have succeeded in getting Deputy Administrator Corrington Gill to submit such a request to the Budget Bureau, but there the matter has been laying for several weeks.

Up to now the replacement division's record has been rather good. From January to September of this year government agencies reported that they made 6,951 appointments and of these, 4,667 jobs were filled with persons on the replacement rolls. Many of these persons secured their positions on their own, but the replacement division itself had 2,256 requests from agencies during that period.

Much of the success of the replacement division was due to the fact that the dismissals in some agencies, were being paralleled by expansion in others. In coming months, however, it is feared expansions will be relatively scarce and dismissed persons will find it more difficult to secure replacement. This slackening of replacement opportunities was noticed during October. At present there still are 940 persons on the active rolls.

Most of the government agencies have co-operated splendidly with the replacement division. During the first nine months of this year the Navy Department filled 161 of its 174 reported appointments (in most cases non-civil service appointments) with persons on the replacement division rolls, the War Department, 194 out of 220; Agriculture, 524, of 553; Commerce, 501 of 609; Treasury, 911 of 1,085; Farm Credit, 26 of 28; HOLC, 103 of 173; National Archives, 13 of 18; National Emergency Council, 114 of 171; Resettlement, 354 of 379 and Railroad Retirement Board, 13 of 13.

The agency which relied least upon the replacement division was Interior with only 200 of 699. General Accounting Office took 231 from 573, but most of its replacement division people were put on in recent months, the GAO being a bit reluctant to co-operate at the outset.

Some personnel officers doubt that any better results could be obtained if the replacement division recruiting were made mandatory.

One election victory generally overlooked in the Democratic landslide was the successful fight of the National Women's Party to insure the franchise of women teachers in St. Thomas and other islands of the Virgin Islands. An effort to keep the women from voting until next year was balked by a militant protest to President Roosevelt a week ago.

Fishing Rod Brake

Louis A. Harris, a male nurse at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, has come to the assistance of anglers who are troubled with back lash when handling their fishing rods.

Harris has invented a neat looking contrivance that can be fitted into standard reels and acts as a brake, automatically preventing back lash. As soon as the sinker stops sinking, the slackened pull loosens the brake which cuts short the spinning of the reel.

Inspiration for the invention came to Harris a litte more than a year ago when, while fishing in the ocean, he almost lost his outfit because of back lash. It took Harris only two weeks to make up the brake and he has been using it ever since.

Harris has made brakes for a number of his fishermen friends at $1 per brake. He does all the manufacturing at home—fitting the brake to a pattern—and can make several dozen in a single afternoon or morning. This week Harris received a patent on his invention, which he hopes will stimulate sales.

The Durand hearing decision will have repercussions in the fight between the old Justice Lodge and J. Edgar Hoover over the dismissal of ten fingerprint employes. Picketing of the F. B. I., unless Hoover agrees to an impartial hearing, is likely.

November Calendar

Things have been so topsy-turvey of late that compilation of the November social calendar hasn't been as comprehensive as we had planned. However, here are some of the events scheduled for the rest of this month:

Tonight, the third anniversary celebration of the Procurement Division, Lodge No. 86, at the Hayloft, 1326 Massachusetts avenue.

Tomorrow afternoon—WPA Lodge picnic in Rock Creek.

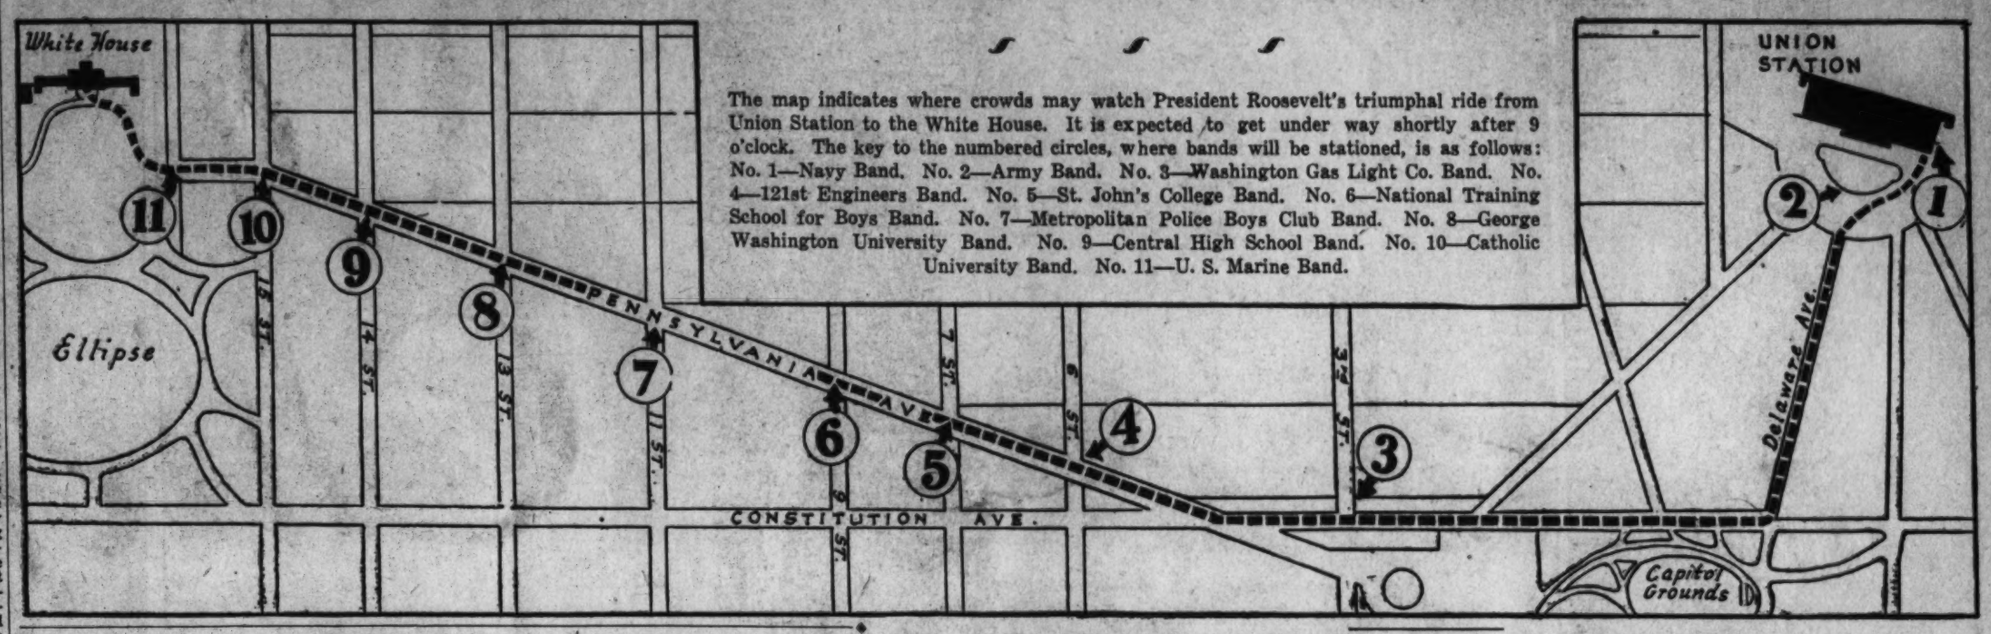
Route of Presidential Procession Today and Location of Bands



The map indicates where crowds may watch President Roosevelt's triumphal ride from Union Station to the White House. It is expected to get under way shortly after 9 o'clock. The key to the numbered circles, where bands will be stationed, is as follows: No. 1—Navy Band. No. 2—Army Band. No. 3—Washington Gas Light Co. Band. No. 4—121st Engineers Band. No. 5—St. John's College Band. No. 6—National Training School for Boys Band. No. 7—Metropolitan Police Boys Club Band. No. 8—George Washington University Band. No. 9—Central High School Band. No. 10—Catholic University Band. No. 11—U. S. Marine Band.

Roosevelt's Return Recalls Receptions to Other Heroes

Arrival of Union Army From Civil War, Lindbergh's Visit After Paris Flight, Visit of Prince of Wales, All Were Momentous Occasions.

By Frederic B. Tuttle.

While Washington always has been a city of magnificent homecomings for the Nation's heroes, the greatest greeting in its history, that to be given today to President Roosevelt, will shatter tradition.

Heretofore the goings and comings of Presidents have been taken as a matter of course by the citizens of the District.

Inaugurations were national affairs. There was no local significance in them. They were giant spectacles on America's stage, and Washington was merely the scenery.

From the days of President Adams on, the Chief of the Nation has come and gone with only mild curiosity and scattered cheers from the men and women to whom he was, in fact, a neighbor.

The White House was not a mansion or a palace in Washington, occupied by a Washingtonian, but it was a National institution, housing the head of the Government and his family, who came and went with less disturbance and commotion and shouting than does the mayor of the average Middle Western city.

Presidents, however, have had their homecomings here. At first these homecomings were over the muddy streets in private stage coaches and official carriages.

The greatest greetings have fallen, however, on those the President and the Nation chose to honor.

The foremost home-comings Washington has seen were those given the Grand Army of the Republic 71 years ago, when it returned victorious from the Civil War; the gigantic reception to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, when he was greeted by President Coolidge and the highest officials upon his return from his non-stop flight to Paris in 1927; the tumultuous greeting accorded President Wilson when he arrived after attending the Peace Conference at Versailles; the return of the body of the Unknown Soldier from France for interment in Arlington's green hills, and the parade review of the crack First Division after the war.

There have been many other home-comings, and there have been official greetings of national character almost too numerous to mention.

There have been kings and queens and diplomats and statesmen and soldiers and sailors, and plain men and women who achieved some degree of fame and found themselves on Pennsylvania avenue as the crowds watched.

Queen Marie was idolized with a sentimentality born of the post-war days. Albert, King of the Belgians, was saluted as a world hero here. There were the welcomes accorded Dino Grandi, the Italian foreign minister; Pierre Laval, when the French premier and his pretty daughter came during the Hoover Administration, and Gen. Pershing, when he came back after the Armistice.

The return of the Union Army after Appomatox and the surrender of Lee was the greatest thing of its sort on record up to that time.

Washington had grown, in the four war years, to a city of more than 125,000. For two days the vast volumes of blue-clad soldiers moved through the city.

They swung triumphantly down Pennsylvania avenue, bayonets gleaming in the spring sun. President Lincoln had been dead a month, and the Nation, reunited once more, mourned him and the hundreds of thousands who had died in the Civil War.

The troops were reviewed by President Andrew Johnson. There were tens of thousands in the crowds that lined the avenues.

But, vast as it was, the return of the Grand Army after four years, with its attendant enthusiasm, was surpassed in the welcome given Col. Lindbergh in June, 1927.

The crowds of that day when the Nation, led by President Coolidge, greeted Lindbergh, were estimated at 500,000.

Col. Lindbergh received the Distinguished Flying Cross as tens of thousands cheered. He was guarded by Marines, many of whom had seen service in Belleau Wood and Chateau Thierry. The Marine Band played as the greatest crowd the Capital ever had seen cheered and applauded.

More than 100,000 greeted President Wilson here in 1919, upon his return from the peace conference. They lined the streets as the Chief Executive and the First Lady rode by. Those were the days of extreme militarism, for the war still lingered.

But the task of trying to agree with the globe's other statesmen in remaking the world had taken much of the joy from Mr. Wilson's face. The crowd cheered. Flags fluttered. Drums rattled. Here and there a mother in mourning, or a disabled veteran in a wheel chair impressed upon the Capital the fact that war memories still lingered.

The solemnest, most spiritual of the Nation's home-comings, was that accorded the Unknown Soldier, when his body arrived from France. He had heard the Nation's cheers as he marched away, but now drums were muffled. The steady march of his "buddies" who had lived was slow. One of the greatest crowds ever to attend a Washington homecoming watched with solemn reverence.

His greatest greeting came after the surrender of Lee at Appomattox. Then the crowds thronged to the White House grounds and cheered the man who later was to die a martyr's death in Ford's Theater.

Ready for Trip Here, President Sees Cardinal

"Before we die we're going to make little old Dutchess Democratic," he added.

The President left at 11 p. m.

On the strength of word received here that a crowd would welcome him on the Union Station plaza tomorrow morning, officials said the Chief Executive might have a few words of greeting to say from his automobile.

The President limited his official activities today to a luncheon with Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, and prominent American dignitaries and laymen of the Catholic Church.

Those attending the luncheon at the Roosevelt estate besides Cardinal Pacelli, were Bishops Francis J. Spellman of Boston, and Stephen J. Donohue, of St. Patrick's Cathedral of New York; Enrico Galleazzi, secretary to the cardinal; Joseph P. Kennedy, former chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, and Mrs. Kennedy, and Frank C. Walker, former director of the National Emergency Council, and Mrs. Walker.

Interviewed on his train at nearby Poughkeepsie, the Vatican dignitary, dressed in the scarlet robes of his church, said he "enjoyed the visit very much" and was happy to have had the opportunity of seeing and congratulating the President.

There was some hesitation in his escort over whether "congratulating" was the proper word under the circumstances, but it was agreed to let it stand.

Bishop Spellman halted all questioning about possible subjects discussed at the luncheon table. He also prompted the cardinal several times as the latter described how he admired the scenes, the people and the churches and convents he had seen on his month's tour of America.

A reporter seeking information whether the United States planned to establish diplomatic relations with the Vatican got only half through a query on this point when Bishop Spellman raised a hand to interrupt.

He said the cardinal was on a "private visit" and was not giving interviews on subjects of that sort.

In view of this statement, newspapermen refrained from asking whether the outspoken political statements of Father Charles E. Coughlin, of Detroit, had entered the discussion with Mr. Roosevelt.

Then Mr. Roosevelt will proceed to the White House, via Delaware avenue, Constitution avenue, Pennsylvania avenue, Treasury place and East Executive avenue.

Although 11 bands, including the Army, Navy and Marine, will play, there will be no parade, in the generally accepted sense of the word, no stiff greetings or congratulatory addresses—nothing formal, just a home-coming welcome for a neighbor.

"The committee on arrangements for this celebration," said Commissioner George E. Allen, "consists of 619,000 persons. In other words, the entire population of Washington."

It was Allen, aided by Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, who took the responsibility of co-ordinator yesterday after public response to The Washington Post's suggestion of a gala reception assumed staggering proportions.

Deluged With Calls.

Long before noon broadcasting studios, newspapef offices, the District Building, Federal departments—in short, nearly every public service that might have anything to do with sponsoring a celebration—were being deluged with calls from individuals and groups who wished to participate.

Neither Allen nor anyone else "promoted" any plans. They simply accumulated, gaining increasing momentum as the day waxed, and Commissioner Allen merely tied them together. But it was a labor of love.

Police Chief Ernest W. Brown canceled all leave and time off to insure proper protection of the crowds expected to jam Union Station Plaza and line Pennsylvania avenue. Chief Charles E. Schrom of the Fire Department issued orders to all firemen supposed to be off duty today to report to the plaza. About 280 men will be available for this extra duty, he said.

Democrats to Take Part.

Arthur Clarendon Smith, president of the Democratic League of the District, announced members would form in front of the Harris Hotel, near Union Station, at 8 a. m. He predicted more than 350 would participate, carrying banners and waving flags and marching to their own band.

Pennsylvania avenue will be gaily decorated with American flags set out by the various stores and buildings.

"Not a single contribution is being raised for this reception," said Commissioner Allen, "and it's not costing the Government anything. This is the most spontaneous thing I've ever experienced. I'm kicking myself because it wasn't my own idea."

Among those who assisted Allen and Hazen in crystallizing plans yesterday were Chiefs Brown and Schrom, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal, John B. Colpoys, United States Marshal and Democratic committeeman; Thomas E. Lodge, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations; Col. John W. Oehmann, commander of the District National Guard; Richmond Keech, of the Public Utilities Commission; John Locher, representing organized labor; production men from the broadcasting and newsreel companies, and others.

Broadcasts Planned.

The National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting System have made elaborate arrangements for complete radio coverage, which will be as extensive as the inaugural parade system.

Although the principal "pick up" point will be at Union Station, announcers will be deployed along the procession route with short-wave transmitters to absorb everything to which a sensitive microphone is receptive. One of these "pick up" stations will be set up in The Post Building by both National and Columbia. The N. B. C. battery of announcers will consist of Carleton Smith, who is attached to the President and who will arrive on the special train; Bill Coyle, Ted Kimball and Hugh MacIlreavy. Its broadcast will be carried locally by WMAL.

In addition to its regular staff announcers, Station WJSV, local outlet of the Columbia system, probably will use Arthur Godfrey and Mayebelle Jennings.

The Capital's 90,000 school children were given liberty to meet the President at the station and view his triumphal ride to the Executive Mansion when Supt. Frank W. Ballou issued an order which frees the youngsters until the affair is over, which probably will be about 10 o'clock.

Schools Won't Close.

Dr. Ballou said: "The public schools as a whole will not be closed on Friday, because it is believed that it would be dangerous to the lives of many public school children if they were to undertake to visit Union Station without adequate protection. The schools cannot provide such protection.

"It is understood, however, that any parent who desires to accompany his child or permit his child to participate in this welcome to President Roosevelt may keep such child out of school for that purpose."

The presidents of Wilson and Minor Teachers colleges will select ten representatives of each student body as welcoming delegations. Likewise, each of the senior high schools will have a special delegation of not more than 20 pupils, half of which number will be high school cadets in uniform.

Unit groups of ten each also will represent the junior high and vocational schools.

Special provisions have been made for pupils of Stuart Junior High who, with their teachers, will report at Union Station Plaza. The student body of Jefferson Junior High and their teachers will view the procession along Pennsylvania avenue between Fourth and Sixth streets. Similar plans have been made for Randall Junior High.

"Elementary school principals of schools reasonably near Pennsylvania avenue," said Dr. Ballou, "may excuse their fifth and sixth grade classes who will be permitted to go to Pennsylvania avenue accompanied by their teachers to see the President as he returns from the station to the White House.

"All pupils absent from school for participation in this welcoming of the President are expected to return to school when the event is concluded."

Parking to Be Banned.

From 6 a. m. until the program is over, auto parking will be prohibited on Delaware avenue, from Union Station Plaza to Constitution avenue; on Constitution avenue, from Delaware to Pennsylvania; on Pennsylvania avenue, to Fifteenth street.

This route will be roped off up to and including East Executive avenue, where the Presidential party will enter the White House grounds through the southeast gate.

The cheering, band music and whatever remarks President Roosevelt may make will be carried over Nation-wide hookups of the National, Columbia and Mutual broadcasting systems. Newsreel cameras, photographers and, above all, the yelling presence of thousands of flag-waving admirers of the re-elected President will form a pageant of triumph such as Washington has not seen since Lindbergh's visit in 1927.

But the spontaniety of today's reception and the fact that it was conceived a little more than 24 hours before the climactic event, said Allen, will make it unique and render it beyond comparison with Washington's colorful turnouts for Lindbergh, Admiral Byrd, Queen Marie, Gen. Pershing and other celebrities.

Commissioner Allen, in warning against too thick a congregation at Union Station, emphasized that the home-coming show will occupy the greater part of downtown Pennsylvania avenue east of the Treasury and urged prospetcive spectators to scatter out along the thoroughfare as a matter of safety.

Bowl Choice Is Still Moot Problem

Eliminations So Far Have Failed to Unveil One Able to Accept.

Nebraska, Alabama Are Mentioned as Not Unlikely Prospects.

By Alan Gould.
Associated Press Sports Editor.

New York, Nov. 5.—Undisputed leaders have emerged from the pack in most college football championship races without giving any clear clues to the probable post-season Rose Bowl pairings.

Northwestern, the current No. 1 team of the Nation, is prohibited from any post-season festivities by Big Ten regulations. The Wildcats, therefore, will have to console themselves with a copper-riveted claim to national as well as conference title honors if they beat Wisconsin, Michigan and Notre Dame in their remaining three games.

This leaves the Eastern choice wide open. Last year Southern Methodist answered the call, marking the first time the section east of the Mississippi River failed to produce an entry. The current eligible list seems to include Marquette and Nebraska in the Middle West; Fordham, in the East; Louisiana State, Tulane or Alabama in the South, and Southern Methodist in the Southwest.

Marquette, the only team on this list neither beaten nor tied thus far, plays Creighton, the University of Mississippi and Duquesne, in that order. None of the three is a push-over. Fordham, which completed the job by holding the Panthers to a scoreless tie last week, meets Purdue, Georgia and New York University. The big hurdle for the Rams is this Saturday's match with Purdue.

Nebraska's Cornhuskers, who narrowly missed the distinction of being the first to halt Minnesota's conquering march, have a great record and two opportunities to embellish their national rating. They meet Pittsburgh at Lincoln, November 14, and Oregon State at Portland two weeks later.

The triumvirate of Dixie leaders each has one tie game on its record. Tulane, the season's sensation in the Southeastern Conference, plays Alabama this Saturday at Birmingham and Louisiana State at Baton Rouge on November 28. Alabama, because of the Tide's fine previous record in the Rose Bowl, would be strongly considered if it beats Tulane and then disposes of Georgia and Vanderbilt.

On the West Coast doubt as to whether the University of Washington or Southern California will gather the Pasadena plum may be removed when they meet at Seattle next week. Washington also has Stanford and Washington State to hurdle. Southern California faces an equally rugged prospect with California, U. C. L. A. and Notre Dame on its list.

Santa Clara, the only unbeaten-untied team on the Coast, is not eligible for the Rose Bowl. Only members of the Pacific Coast Conference can collect a slice of this post-season melon, worth $75,000 to each participant at capacity in gate receipts.

G. W. to Defeat Davis-Elkins With Ease

Virtually assured of an easy victory over Davis-Elkins Saturday, George Washington, nevertheless, is taking the game seriously, inasmuch as it will afford the team a good opportunity to test new plays designed to build up an offense in close quarters, or between the tackles.

These plays, according to Bill Reinhart, Coach Jim Pixlee's first lieutenant, must click if the Colonials hope to make their trick stuff work in later games, particularly the finale with West Virginia. The Mountaineers have scouted George Washington thoroughly and are familiar with all of its strategy. They also know that the downtown school's plays are not very effective between tackles, and this knowledge will be invaluable in building a defense for George Washington's spread plays and other trick stuff.

All of the Colonials are in good physical condition, and their strongest team will take the field at the start of the game, hoping to clinch victory in the first half.

Davis-Elkins has a big line with a couple of outstanding tackles in Jim Smith, a 215-pounder, and Jim Kapple, who does the punting; Ed Gutowski, center, is a truly great defensive player, according to Jean Sexton, who scouted the team, and will be a barrier on passes.

The club has a small but fast backfield. Huck Miers and Art Tebor are pony backs George Washington will have to watch, while Labe Gregory, 185-pounder, who does the passing, throws a mean peg.

Back, Chasing Pun, Fetches a Pheasant

Kelley, of Yale, Nominates Kelley, of Yale, As His Choice for End on 1936 All-American

YALE'S CAPT. LAWRENCE KELLEY.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 5 (AP).—Larry (Loquacious) Kelley, Yale's nominee for all-America, admits he's the best end playing college footbal today.

"I can't be kept off any all-America—if it means anything—this season," says Yale's irrepressible captain.

"I'm a great end, no doubt about it. If I don't believe in myself, how can I expect others are going to believe in me?"

Kelley, a witty wisecracker with a hair-trigger tongue that has made him just about the most colorful athlete ever to wear the blue of Yale, scales 190 and towers an inch over 6 feet. He made the varsity as a sophomore—and the all-America third eleven—three seasons ago.

The current season was only a few weeks old when Kelley captured the headlines as the author of the "soccer" kick that has become one of the most discussed plays of the year.

His 22-yard "ad lib" boot of a Navy fumble, which gave Yale possession on the Middies' 3-yard line, set up the winning touchdown when the Blue was trailing midway in the third period. Kelley and Coach Pond claim the kick was accidental.

As a sophomore, Kelley climaxed his first collegiate campaign by scoring the only touchdown in the Princeton game. The Tigers went in as odds-on favorites despite Kelley's prediction that Yale would win.

Kelley grabbed a 25-yard pass and scampered across the shocked Princeton goal line. Congratulated for this brilliant play, the Eli winger said:

"Too bad Yale didn't need another touchdown. I was all set to score it, but I knew all the time one I made was enough."

Kelley beat Penn last year, scoring the winning touchdown on Charley Ewart's pass to the end zone. A similar play enabled Yale to defeat Penn this year, only instead of taking the forward this time, Kelley served as a decoy, fooling the experienced Quakers with the cry of "I got it!" Meanwhile, with the Red and Blue secondaries lured away from the point of attack, Ewart tallied.

"Hey, ref, watch this one. We're going to flimflam 'em and we don't know ourselves where the ball will wind up."

Navy apparently took him seriously, for on the next play, Clint Frank, Yale back, tore off one of the longest runs of the game on a simple shovel pass from which he broke into an end sweep.

Kelley pulled one of his classics in the Yale-Princeton game of '34. With the Tigers stunned by the unexpected fight they were getting from the Elis, a Princeton reserve ran onto the field and, reaching the officials, appeared confused as to whom he was replacing.

"Maybe he's going in for me. I've been in the Princeton backfield all afternoon."

Teammates are not spared when Kelley is in good voice. Ewart was knocked unconscious in the first game this season on a pass play. Being a seasoned player, Ewart, upon recovering his senses, knew the physician would ask him his name as a test of his condition.

"Don't ask me, Doctor, I know who I am," laughed Ewart. "I'm the great Larry Kelley."

Western Picked Over Eastern Team Today

Eastern and Western High will attempt to unscramble the much muddled interhigh football situation today when they collide on Eastern's field at 3:15 p. m. in a game which has scholastic seers tossing coins as to the probable results.

Both are deadlocked with Central's interhigh champions for second place and a victory for either will keep it very much in the running. Although Tech, on the basis of its 6-0 upset of Central, is the natural choice, it still is a wide-open race.

Despite the fact that Western has lost three out of five games and has scored 53 points less than Eastern this season, the Georgetowners look to be the logical choice to win today. Western's line, led by a first-class end in Jim Farquharson, outplayed the Tech forwards throughout when the Techmen handed the Red team a 7-0 defeat last week.

In addition to this, Coach Dan Ahern has two of the best running backs in the city in Len Weinstein and Morris Snead, both of whom also pass and kick. On the other hand, Eastern has looked none too impressive in its two series games, during which it lost to Central, 26-0, and beat Roosevelt, 13-0, with two touchdowns in the last quarter.

Wilson Will Face Bullis Prep Today

Woodrow Wilson's football team will attempt to score its third victory of the season when it meets Bullis Prep this afternoon on the latter's field.

Bullis, one of the strongest prep school clubs in this section, will Tigers, who, however, will be forced to manage without the services of Dave Tate, star back, and Bill Nedemeir, quarterback and defensive stalwart.

The absence of these two men has caused Coach Heintell to shift the line-up of his backfield, and Brooks will sub for Nedemeir at the signal-calling post. Sparhawk will replace Camalier, and Bill Garland, brilliant line-plunger, will attempt to fil the versatile Tate's cleats.

Navy Coach Sees Spectacular Tilt With Notre Dame

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 5.—A wide open, spectacular game of football when the Navy and Notre Dame meet in the Baltimore Stadium on Saturday was forecast today by Tom Hamilton, head Navy coach.

Hamilton, who said the Navy would hold nothing back, explained that he expected the game to be marked by good kicking and swift shots for a score. He said Notre Dame plays a deceptive open game and that Navy would have to open up with everything in its bag of tricks to offset the attack.

The Navy offense includes many spectacular plays, and so far during the season the Middie backs have not hesitated to toss forwards, laterals and shovel passes. The Notre Dame backs are reported to be faster than the Navy ball carriers.

Hamilton put his team to work on its kicking game today and spent time on polishing its play.

Tickets Available For Notre Dame Tilt

A "plentiful supply of tickets" and round-trip transportation awaits Washington football fans interested in the Navy-Notre Dame game in Baltimore tomorrow. The ticket announcement was made by the American Automobile Association which has the ducats on sale at its office at Seventeenth street and Pennsylvania avenue.

The Baltimore & Ohio is running a special train from Washington for local fans at $1.25 round trip. The train will leave here at 11:50 a. m., arriving at the Clifton Park Station, Baltimore, at 12:55 p. m. where special motor coaches will transfer the passengers to the Stadium at 40 cents round-trip.

The B. & O. is also selling tickets for the game until 4:30 p. m. today

West Triumphs In New York's Horse Show

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 5.—A famous sire and his daughter stole the spotlight in the National Horse Show today as Midwestern stables continued their triumphant march in Madison Square Garden's arena.

King of the Plain, America's foremost harness pony for eight years, chalked up his initial victory of the show in the colors of Francis Dodge, of Rochester, Mich. The 11-year-old King was not long out of the ring, however, when in pranced his 4-year-old daughter, Highland Cora, to threaten the supremacy of her famous daddy and give A. B. Dick, of Gurnee, Ill., his first blue ribbon.

The King, looking every inch a champion as he answered the commands of his trainer, Reed Bridgeford, took the measure of six other single harness ponies over 13.2 hands and not exceeding 14.2. The victory marked the thirty-second triumph for the little bay stallion since being purchased by Miss Dodge from Mrs. John R. Thompson, of Chicago, for a reported price of $25,000 in July, 1935.

Highland Cora, even smaller than her illustrious sire, was making her first appearance in the national, but she too carried herself like a champion as she won the class calling out single harness ponies over 12.2 and not exceeding 13.2 hands. Barring an unexpected defeat, she will meet the King in the championship class Tuesday night.

In winning his event the King was forced to beat La Success, a brown mare from Judy King's Atlanta, Ga., stable which won the Seaton Pippin Challenge Cup for the third straight year last night.

Grimes Plans On a Scrappy Ball Club

Dodgers Won't Be Second Gas House Gang, Says New Manager.

'Let Them Do Gassing, We Will Furnish the Fight This Year.'

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Nov. 5.—There ought to be much rejoicing in Flatbush tonight—surly, snappy, scrappy Burleigh Grimes is coming back to the Dodgers and he's coming back fighting.

He looks more like the well-dressed businessman now than he did back in the days when he hurled his spitball for "Uncle Robbie," but appearances are deceiving. Grimes is still Grimes, even though his jaw seldom sports the stubble of his pitching days.

Within a few minutes after he had been notified of his appointment as manager of the Brooklyn National Leaguers for the 1937 season, Grimes set aside any doubt as to his intentions.

"I'm going to give Brooklyn a hustling ball club," he said. "I don't know how good we'll be, whether we'll win a lot of games or not, but I can tell you it will be the kind of scrappy ball club that Brooklyn fans and all other fans like."

We'll Furnish the Fight.

That represents Grimes' personal record, covering 22 years of active duty and two years as a minor league manager, better than anything he has probably ever said.

Grimes' fight propensities and his two seasons with the Cardinals suggested the natural query, "Will you give Brooklyn a gas house gang?"

The veteran leaned back to laugh before he said:

"We'll let the Cardinals do the gassing and we'll furnish the fight. That's as far as we're going toward giving Brooklyn a second gashouse gang. That gas business sometimes gets a team in trouble. We'll play a fighting brand of baseball—you can bet on that—without the gas."

2 Changes Made For Wesleyan By Cards

Swarthy Sam Pagano, ravenhaired basketball star, will be in the front line trenches tomorrow afternoon when Catholic University squares off with the powerful Bobcats of West Virginia Wesleyan at Brookland. The kick-off is scheduled for 2 o'clock, a half hour earlier than usual.

Sam, who has been playing second fiddle to Leonine Leo Katalinas all season, replaces the hulking Leo who is getting a well-earned rest after two savage and brilliant performances against Mississippi and Loyola. Mississippi voted Katalinas and Clement, his running mate, the best tackles it has faced thus far. Both boys played great ball against the "Rebels."

At Loyola, "Kat" turned in another spectacular performance, wrecking all of the plays aimed at his side of the line. The New Orleans eleven went to work on the big fellow late in the game, which is one of the reasons why he needs a rest this week, but he finished out the game.

Another substitution made yesterday by Coach "Dutch" Bergman was Vic Sochon for Dick Arnold, the piano-playing guard, who is out with a twisted knee. Sochon turned in a fine performance in a pinch-hitting role at Loyola and should go well tomorrow.

Sarron Seeks British Title In Africa

Australia, New Zealand, Scotland and England Bouts Scheduled.

By Bill McCormick.

Featherweight Champion Pete Sarron, who won his laurels here, will leave the United Sates November 20 on a fighting tour of Europe and the Antipodes, which will be climaxed by a fight to retain his crown against the best opponent the world has to offer.

SARRON.

Before risking his own hard-earned championship, Pete will attempt to lift the British lightweight crown in a fight against Laurie Stevens in Johannesburg, South Africa, on January 5.

Sarron and his manager, Jimmy Erwin, will leave Washington next Monday for St. Louis, where Sarron fights Everett (Young) Rightmire November 17. They will embark from New York on the Bremen for Southampton.

Other Countries On List.

After definite dates are set in a series of conferences in Southampton for bouth in England and Scotland, Erwin and Sarron will leave for South Africa, where Pete has been booked to make two fights for the Transvaal-National Sporting Club. The first contest for that organization will be against Stevens, the second against an opponent not yet named.

After the South African appearances, Sarron and Erwin will leave for Australia and New Zealand, where tentative bouts have been booked.

After New Zealand and Australia have been covered by the champion and his manager, they will return to England and Scotland, which they will tour. Bids have been made for Sarron's appearance in several other European countries.

ERWIN.

Following the tour, Erwin will offer the services of his champion in a title fight. Numerous promoters are seeking to have Pete lay his crown on the line and Erwin will accept the best offer.

Mexico City has offered a $7,500 guarantee to Sarron to defend his crown against Baby Casanova. California is bidding for a championship fight involving their titleholder, Negro Henry Armstrong. London is seeking a championship bout between Sarron and Jimmy McGoorty. New York promoters would like to have Sarron defend his N. B. A. title against Mike Belloise, who is recognized as ruler of the 125-pound division in the Empire State. The best offer so far has been for $10,000 from a European promoter who does not wish his identity disclosed.

Garfield Girls to Drill.

Garfield Athletic Club girls' basket ball team will hold its first practice session tonight at Hine Junior High School, Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast. All members of the team and any new candidates are requested to meet at Hine's at 8:45.

Ormsby Dusts Off New Plate: For 12th Child

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Emmett "Red" Ormsby, American League umpire, dusted off another plate today—for his twelfth youngster.

In the living room of his rambling home out in Evergreen Park, Ormsby settled his 190-pound frame into an easy chair, and grinned. The late Karl Dane grinned like that throughout the movie "The Big Parade." The big parade in this case consisted of 12 little Ormsbys.

Red, the proud father, didn't know what to make of it. red headed, big and raw-boned, with hands that defy you to guess how he works them through his coat sleeves every morning, Ormsby was supremely happy.

And a Toothbrush Apiece.

"Let's see," he began, counting on his fingers. "First there is Rita; she's 13. Then there is Rose Marie, she's 12. Next is Helen, she's 11.

And he went down the line naming them one by one.

"What's a good name for this one," he asked. "I am running out of girl's names. Eight of them—eight of 'em, just think of that. And four boys besides. Me, oh my, oh me."

Ormsby, the productive family man par excellence, has been calling balls and strikes in the American League since 1923. The late Byron Bancroft Johnson, former president of the American League, put Ormsby on the staff of umpires on a hunch that the young man, although inexperienced in the major leagues, had the making of an ideal judge for a ball field.

Genuine Family Man.

As a family man, Ormsby has become a father every year, usually in November, for the last 13 years. Rita, the first born, came into the world on Armistice Day 13 years ago. Eight years later the eighth child was born on the same date.

Umpiring isn't the only thing for which Ormsby is known. Not so many years ago he was rated highly as a semi-professional pitcher in Chicago. Then the World War came along and Red heard the call of adventure. They put him in a Marine uniform and away he went. When he came back he was wearing a citation for bravery in action. He was gassed in the Argonne offensive, ending his days as an active baseball player. Returning from the war he began umpiring in the Three-Eye League in 1921.

Deal for Star Is Reported Certain

Night Games for Both Cards, Browns Plan of Sam Breadon.

By the United Press.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Branch Rickey and the St. Louis Cardinals weren't kidding when they said Dizzy Dean will be sold. He'll be peddled down the river to the Cincinnati Reds for players and cash.

The deal will be one of the big baseball stories of the winter. But the story behind the Dean deal will make even a bigger story.

By a source close to the Cardinals the United Press has been told that the cash involved in Dean's sale will be used by the Cardinals as part of the money with which Sam Breadon, owner of the Cards, will buy the St. Louis Browns.

The deal for the Browns has been virtually completed, with Donald L. Barnes, St. Louis banker, heading the syndicate which will front for Breadon. In the negotiations leading up to the deal, Rickey has taken an active part, but will have to remain in the background afterward because the American League is opposed to inter-league connections.

To Draw on Cards' Farms.

William O. Dewitt, vice president of the Cardinals' minor league clubs, will be installed as business manager of the Browns. Dewitt's knowledge of the players on the Cardinals' numerous farms will prove invaluable in rebuilding the Browns. The plan is to put new life into the Browns with players obtained from the Cardinals' farms.

Sportsman's Park, where the Cardinals and Browns play, will be equipped with an elaborate lighting system, and each club will play seven night games during the 1937 season. The Browns drew only 92,000 paid customers last season. Rickey believes that the Browns will draw nearly that many to the night games next season.

The Chicago Cubs and Reds have a deal on the fire which also figures in the Dean sale. Warren C. Giles, new business manager of the Reds, who formerly was with the Rochester International League Club, a Cardinal farm, is attempting to obtain some of P. K. Wrigley's cash to send on to St. Louis to get Dizzy.

Cubs May Get Derringer.

The Reds have offered the Cubs almost the pick of the club, and it is believed that Pitcher Paul Derringer, Third Baseman Lew Riggs and Outfielder Ival Goodman are the players who will come to Chicago. One of the Cubs' pitchers and Third Baseman Stanley Hack are likely to figure in the deal with Cincinnati.

In some quarters it is believed that the Cubs-Reds-Cards arranged a triangular deal when Lon Warneke, Cubs' star pitcher, went to the Cards for Jimmy Collins and Roy Parmelee.

The transfer of Dizzy Dean to the Reds and the acquisition of several Cincinnati players by the Cubs may have been arranged at the time of the Warneke deal, but the announcement held up pending completion of negotiations for purchase of the Browns by the Cardinals.

Billie Bee Scores Neck Decision Over Jay Jay at Pimlico

Bomar Stable Entry Wins Feature

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico Race Track, Nov. 5—The Bomar stable added another purse to its long string today when Billy Bee, wtih Jockey M. Peters and Lady Luck in the saddle, won the Baltimore Handicap. The gelded son of Jean Valjean managed to stave off defeat by Howard Bruce's Jay Jay in the final strides to score a neck decision.

Although the judges waited for the picture, the Billy Bee backers were already in line for the $19.20 mutuel. Third money in the vest pocket field of four went to Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' Indomitable with Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Sobriety bringing up the rear.

Billy Bee had all the best of the running, breaking clear of his opposition and being in front all the way. Jay Jay, winner of four straight races this year including three stakes, was poorly ridden by Jockey DeCamillis. For some reason, the boy took the 1-2 shot away in hand and Jay Jay had drifted well to the rear at the far turn. Swinging for the stretch, DeCamillis ducked his mount to the inside and it appeared that the gelding might win after all.

Jay Jay went through nicely on the inside at the final bend and then swerved out only to be taken to the inside again. Decamillis finally shot Jay Jay after the flying Billy Bee and he was wearing down the winner at the end but too late to help the favorite players.

The victory brought $2,120 to the Bomar Stable and a lot of grief to most of the 8,000 customers present. The winner's time was 1:13 4-5, creditable over the heavy, sticky track.

Mrs. John Bosley, jr., added another purse to her long string by winning the day's first race with Angus, a gelded son of the mud-loving Ladkin. Angus led Kenty to the wire by three lengths with Bay Hero third in the field of ten competing at a mile and 70 yards. Angus took the lead from Kenty in the early stretch and paid a $16.50 mutuel.

Gladys Whitney's Rideaway scored an easy victory in the day's steeplechase event while being ridden by Rigan McKinney, the gentleman jockey. Dundrillin was second seven lengths away with Daffy a distant third in the group of six. Forest Charm set the early pace and after a mile was 15 lengths ahead and seemed on the way to victory. However, he stumbled at the eighth fence and almost lost his rider. At the eleventh, Forest went down and Jockey Freddy Thorndyke escaped injury. Jockey J. Eaby suffered a broken collar bone when Dontara fell at the ninth fence. Ridgeway was a $3.20 mutuel.

Virnock Takes Third.

To the tune of $19.80 mutuel, Virnock took the third race from 11 juveniles. The Greenock colt was a winner by at least a head but the judges waited for the picture. Legsure was second with Clarion Call third. Happy Hostess, one that set the early pace, stopped in the stretch.

Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Belshazzar, ridden by Jockey J. Stout, won the fourth race in the role of a $6 betting proposition. The Black Servant colt came from far back to circle the field and defeated Harry's Dream by a length and a half. Third money went to Blue King, a brisk closer.

The Denmark entry of Grand Duke and Chief Cherokee ran first and second and both were in hand at the end of the fifth race, the Timonium Purse. Sunned was third. Grand Duke set the pace throughout. The entry brought a return of $4.90. Victorious Ann, heavily played favorite, was away slowly and failed to threaten.

In one of the roughest races witnessed in this State, Strophe won the seventh in a picture finish with Poop Deck. Count Tetrarch was third in a field of ten. Poop Deck caused most of the trouble in the stretch where Spartan Lady and Count Tetrarch suffered interference. However, the stewards let the finish stand. The winner paid $37.90.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ANGUS, $16.50, $8.50, $5.80; KENTY, $3.90, $3.00; BAY HERO, $8.10.

ANGUS worked his way up on the outside from a slow beginning, gained sharply on the swing to the stretch, took command in the early straightaway and was drawing out at the end. KENTY was sent to the top with a bold rush approaching the far turn and continued willingly, but was unable to resist the winner. BAY HERO hung after looming menacingly entering the stretch. IDENTICAL, tired after pressing the pace of KENTY. TREBIZONDE was squeezed back at the far turn and tired. SUMAC stopped after setting the early pace. GALA DAME stopped early.

SECOND RACE—Two miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. The Warrenton Steeplechase. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, same. Went to post at 2:00½. Off at 2:01. Winner, G Whitney's ch. g. (a), by Wildair—Bubble Trained by S. J. Holloway. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 3:47 3-5 (13 jumps).

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RIDEAWAY, $3.20, $2.60, $2.40; DUNDRILLIN, $3.10, $2.70; DAFFY, $3.70.

RIDEAWAY, under restraint for a swing of the course, assumed command when FOREST CHARM fell and was nicely in hand to the finish. DUNDRILLIN was hard ridden throughout and closed gamely, but was held safe by the winner. DAFFY lacked speed throughout. POSTMAN HOME showed a sluggish effort. FOREST CHARM drew far out during the first mile, almost unseated rider when he stumbled at eighth fence and fell and lost rider at the eleventh fence while tiring. DONTARA fell at the ninth fence.

THIRD RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. The Dalhousie. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:32. Off at 2:34½. Winner, Mrs. A. Two-dollar mutuels paid—VIRNOCK, $19.80, $12.50, $6.50; LEGSURE, $19.00, $10.90; CLARION CALL, $3.70.

VIRNOCK came between horses with a rush on the backstretch, swung to the outside of leaders entering the stretch and had to be kept to pressure to stave off LEGSURE in the final stages. The latter, slow to get under way, reached contention approaching the stretch and was straining when the winner got to the finish. CLARION CALL, off forwardly, was allowed to drop back leaving the backstretch and closed willingly. PRAIRIE PRINCE closed with a belated rush on the outside. CHALPHONE went evenly. BRED IN BLUE could not keep up. HAPPY HOSTESS stopped after drawing out while setting the pace. MR. DUNCANNON was used up forcing the pace. OVERLAP had early speed.

DAILY DOUBLE PAID $357.60.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. The Dalhousie. For 2-year-olds. (Split of third race.) Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:04½. Off at 3:06½. Winner, Mrs. E. D. Jacobs' br. c. (2), by Black Servant—Belle of Kentucky. Trained by H. Jacobs. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BELSHAZZAR, $6.00, $3.90, $3.00; HARRY'S DREAM, $4.20, $3.40; BLUE KING, $5.70.

BELSHAZZAR, allowed to run on own courage to the backstretch, gained with a rush on the outside at the far turn, circled the leaders and was drawing away at the finish. HARRY'S DREAM, rated close to the pace for six furlongs, came willingly under pressure in the final drive, but was not match for the winner. BLUE KING came with a belated rush on the outside. JUSTA GAL was tiptoed to the front at once, set the pace to the far turn and then tired gradually. MOLASSES BOB gained sharply along the backstretch and went evenly thereafter. EXHORT pressed the pace of JUSTA GAL and stopped. MAX B had early speed. FIRING was pulled up.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. The Timonium Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won handily; place, same. Went to post at 3:32. Off at 3:34½. Winner, Mrs. E. Denemark's ch. g. (3), by Stimulus—Humanity. Trained by B. S. Mitchell. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48, 1:13 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GRAND DUKE (entry), $4.90, $4.00, $3.10; CHIEF CHEROKEE (entry), $4.00, $3.10; SUNNED, $6.80.

GRAND DUKE assumed command at once, was steadied along in front and was nicely in hand at the end. CHIEF CHEROKEE worked his way up on the inside when put to a drive and was taken in hand through the final sixteenth. SUNNED was hard ridden throughout, but tired gradually after reaching the stretch. VICTORIOUS ANN was away sluggishly, went to the outside and hung thereafter. BETH BON could not threaten. SARACEN had good early speed.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $2,500 added. The Baltimore Handicap. For all ages. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:04. Off at 4:09. Winner, Bomar Stable's dk. b. or br. g. (4), by Jean Valjean—Under the Rose. Trained by R. E. Potts. Net value to winner, $2,120; second, $500; third, $300; fourth, $100. Time, 0:24, 0:48, 1:13 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BILLY BEE, $19.20, $4.00, out; JAY JAY, $2.30, out; INDOMITABLE, out.

BILLY BEE, away on top, was hard urged throughout and withstood a long drive to barely last ahead of JAY JAY. The latter was taken in hand leaving the gate, came to the inside with good speed at the stretch turn and was wearing down the winner at the end. INDOMITABLE was forced to race wide throughout and showed a good effort. SOBRIETY tired after pressing the pace of the winner.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. The Montgomery. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:35. Off at 4:37½. Winner, H. Langley's b. f. (3), by Macaw—Sonnet. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 4-5, 0:50 3-5, 1:16 2-5, 1:44 2-5, 1:58.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STROPHE, $37.90, $19.10, $7.00; POOP DECK, $8.90, $5.40; COUNT TETRARCH, $3.40.

STROPHE, allowed to settle into stride and not hurried for a half, went up on the outside to better position swinging for the stretch, came through along the rail to escape interference and closed with a rush under energetic handling. POOP DECK came around on outside of leaders entering the stretch, bumped COUNT TETRARCH at the eighth pole and came gamely at the end. COUNT TETRARCH assumed a brief lead at the far turn, met interference when POOP DECK swerved and closed willingly. He pulled up with a cut leg. SPARTAN LADY, closer than usual during the early running, suffered interference in the stretch. INFILEE came to the outside for the final drive and was listlessly handled. APATHY stopped after a half. DEARZIN tired after setting the pace. EXETER had early speed.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000. The Montgomery (second division). For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 5:11. Off at 5:15. Winner, A. C. Compton's b. g. (6), by Pompey—Some More. Trained by H. G. Bedwell. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:50 2-5, 1:17, 1:43 3-5, 1:58 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—POMPOSITY, $5.00, $3.90, $3.10; MISS TIPTOE, $9.30, $5.50; PENCADER, $3.80.

POMPOSITY, within striking distance of the leaders from the start, moved up smartly when placed to drive and took command inside the eighth pole to easily open a gap. MISS TIPTOE came up on the outside to gain a forward position, took command at the far turn, saved ground and closed gamely, but could not resist the winner. PENCADER, close from the start, was tiring at the end after pressing the pace. IMPERIAL BETSY, a distant trailer, came with a belated rush in the stretch. HIGH FLAG was used up setting the pace under hustling tactics. GLOWING COAL stopped.

Hoya Coaches See Victory Over West Virginia After Battle

Squad Given Big Send-Off For Trip

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Not fully recovered from the shock of being tied by New York University two weeks ago, 30 Georgetown gridmen—a trifle weak around the knees, but grimly determined to retain their undefeated status, last night entrained for Morgantown, W. Va., where they tangle with West Virginia's Mountaineers tomorrow in one of the most attractive games on the Eastern card.

The Hoyas' destination this morning is Fairmont, 25 miles from the scene of battle, where they are scheduled to arrive around 8 o'clock. The team will be quartered in Fairmont until just before game time, going over to Morgantown this afternoon for a workout and returning immediately after.

Send-off Given.

A huge rally, accompanied by the usual speeches, cheers and blaring of the band, staged in the quadrangle at the Hilltop last night, climaxed a week of pep meetings at Georgetown. The send-off exercises lasted the best part of an hour. Expressing the sentiments of Head Coach Jack Hagerty as well as his own, Assistant Coach George Murtagh predicted a Georgetown victory, but only after the stiffest competition the Hoyas have met all season.

Hagerty, meanwhile, was shuffling his lineup, seeking a winning combination and not hesitating to use reserve talent in the starting team. With Jack Fleming, ace punter, out of the lineup and not even on the trip, Bill Duff again will be called on to do the punting, and his toe carries the hopes of the Hoyas. Fleming's loss has been offset to some extent by the recovery of Joe Keegan, who is expected to see heavy duty.

A local boy, Maury Nee, will team with Al Snyder at end, winning the chance by his sparkling work against N. Y. U. and Shenandoah. This is one of three changes in the line. Pat Brady, former St. John's Prep standout, will be paired with Al Vacarro at tackle, while Jim Hill, another reserve, has been awarded a guard position with Johnny Frank. Red Hardy is scheduled to start at center.

Displaying as much confidence as competitive spirit, which has been the best in this territory for a number of years, Gallaudet's ambitious football squad will taper off a week of intensive drills this afternoon in preparation for tomorrow's invasion of New York City, where it meets City College.

It will be the Blues' first trip to the big town in a number of years, and they intend to make the most of the occasion. The team figures C. C. N. Y. will be prepared for an easy afternoon, and it intends to take Benny Friedman's men by surprise.

Clive Breedlove will replace Olaf Tollefson at tackle, but the line-up otherwise will be the same as that which overwhelmed Wilson Teachers last week.

Southwest Drills.

The Southwest A. C. will practice at 7:30 o'clock tonight on the Bent school yard. All members report in uniform, including Reds Scheible, Melvin Inscoe and Bo Mertens, to prepare for Sunday's game with the Anacostia Eagles at Fairlawn.

Want Sunday Game.

The Silver Spring Merchants want a game Sunday at the Silver Spring field with a 150-pound or unlimited team. Phone Silver Spring 257-J between 4 and 5 p. m.

Gonzaga Boy Off on Touchdown Sprint Against Georgetown Prep

Olson Tosses Dusek After Struggle

Cliff Olson won the right to be tossed about by Canadian heavyweight title contender Yvon Robert next week when he flopped Rudy Dusek in 32 minutes at Turner's Arena last night. Olson accomplished the coup d'etat with an Irish whip, after suffering much punishment.

The highlight of the brawl came when Rudy picked up a second-hand cigar, with the avowed intention of rubbing it in poor Clifford's peepers. A customer became the big hero of the evening when he snuck up to the ringside, reached between the ropes and extracted the cigar from Dusek's hand.

No sooner had he purloined the cigar than did the customer—one George W. Andrews—scamper away to the biggest cop in the building as Dusek started after him. Of course, Rudy never got out of the ring in his pursuit of Mr. Andrews.

Matros Kirilenko was declared the winner over John Katan after the regular 30-minute schedule for their bout had elapsed. Katan was disqualified for kicking after the match. He probably will be set down for 30 days by the International Union of Bone Crushers for violation of the overtime rule.

Table Tennis Tourney Is Scheduled Tonight

The membership tournament under the auspices of the District Table Tennis Association will open tonight at the Earle table tennis courts, 403 Eleventh street northwest, with competition for both men and women.

Open only to novice players, the tournament is expected to draw a field of 50 players.

Matches will start at 7:30. An entrance fee of 25 cents will be assessed members of the association, and 50 cents for nonmembers.

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich.

Wes Ferrell, who, like Al Smith, took a walk last summer and landed with a loser, was hit hard—in the pocketbook, if not on the pitching mound . . . Convinced that the Red Sox would win the pennant and that he would share in the World Series spoils, Ferrell came down in his salary demands and signed a contract for $15,000 . . . he was pursuaded to sign for that figure by the announcement of Owner Tom Yawkey that the Sox would receive $1,000 each as a bonus if the team finished at least second . . . Ferrell failed to cash in on either possibility, what with the Red Sox finishing sixth . . . and, in addition, has yet to recover the $1,000 fine he was assessed for walking out of the box without Manager Joe Cronin's permission in a game at Yankee Stadium.

POVICH.

That General Manager Eddie Collins is securely in the saddle at Fenway Park despite the five-year managerial contract under which Manager Joe Cronin is working, is increasingly evident . . . the direction in which Owner Tom Yawkey's favor is blowing was indicated by the changes in the coaching staff recently . . . with Collins' man, Bing Miller, replacing Cronin's man, Al Schacht, on the coaching lines.

The Washington club, which pulled a fast one in drafting Outfielder Beverly Ferrell from the Georgia-Florida League, may yet lose title to him . . . when General Manager Branch Rickey, of the Cardinals, casually remarked to Clark Griffith at the draft meeting in New York last month that Ferrell was an excellent prospect, Griffith took him at his word and put in a claim for the player . . . because the Nats finished lower in the American League race than the Cardinals finished in the National League, Griffith had first claim to Ferrell and Rickey's own claim was futile . . . but now the Baltimore club claims a prior title to Ferrell and the case has been laid before Commissioner Landis.

Owner Joe Cambria, of the Albany International League club, a Washington farm, alleges that rival club owners are attempting to squeeze him out of the league . . . Baltimore, he declares, has consistently refused to give him dates for the profitable night games, thus diminishing his gate receipts . . . the Giants are eager to establish an International League farm at Jersey City but are balking at Cambria's demands for $50,000 for his league franchise . . . Cambria bought the Albany franchise, players and all, for $7,500.

Jake Powell, hero of the 1936 World Series, found it costly to learn the location of Aurora, Ill., last summer . . . requested by his family to visit relatives living in Aurora when he reached Chicago with the Yankees, Powell innocently hopped into a taxi and set out . . . at the end of his ride, he was confronted with a $17.50 cab bill . . . he returned to Chicago by electric train for a dime . . . Powell in recent winters has been employed as a clothing salesman at a Seventh street department store here, but now in possession of his World Series melon, he will take a complete vacation.

Carl Fischer, who made his big league debut with Washington in 1930, is returning to the big leagues with Cleveland after a season in the minors . . . Fischer's first appearance with the Nats in unforgettable . . . relieving Sam Jones in the ninth inning with the bases full, none out, and Washington one run in the lead, the rookie left-hander calmly struck out Sammy Byrd, Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig to save the game . . . in the summer of 1935, Fischer pitched a one-hit game against the Nats in Griffith Stadium . . . and was released by the White Sox before the season ended.

Believe it or not, but ever since Clark Griffith took over the Washington club in 1912, the Nats' record in the American League is second only to that of the Yankees . . . three times they won pennants and three times they finished second . . . six times they finished fourth, twice they were fifth, three times they were sixth and twice they were seventh . . . only the A's and Yankees have won more pennants than the Nats in the last 25 years.

Gonzaga Drubs Little Hoyas By 31 to 0

Gonzaga High romped at will yesterday to swamp Georgetown Prep, 31 to 9, at Garrett Park. It was the opening game of Gonzaga's defense of its Catholic Prep School championship.

The Little Hoyas, coached by Ed Hargaden, Georgetown's former basketball ace, went into action crippled severely by early season injuries which struck half a dozen regulars from the starting line-up. Their sole remaining backfield star, Adison Hagan, of Norfolk, Va., joined them on the fifth play of the game when he received a badly sprained ankle and was carried off the field.

The heavily favored Gonzaga eleven finally cut loose with its scoring in the second period after the smaller Garrett Parkers had battled the Purple even throughout the opening quarter. Coach Orrel Mitchell's outfit swung into the scoring column on one play, when Jim Ellis, chunky halfback, slashed through the Georgetown Prep left tackle and raced 38 yards for the first touchdown.

The city team made it 12 to 0 shortly afterward when Charlie Butler, left end, intercepted a pass by Bill Heinbaugh, Prep quarterback, and ran 40 yards for the second touchdown. After the intermission, Gonzaga resumed where it left off by making it 18 to 0 on a 35-yard touchdown march, featuring Sonny Hartman and Jim Walsh, with Hartman cutting around the Prep right end from the 5-yard line for the score.

Doctor Is Sought As Added Offical For Grid Games

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 5.—The Virginia Medical Monthly in an editorial today advocates that a "disinterested" physician be made an official of every football game.

"Football coaches do not seem to realize the increased risk of continued play to a slightly injured, tired or groggy player," the editorial states.

The physician should follow the ball from the sidelines, be provided with a whistle and given authority to order from the game any player whose physical condition makes further play dangerous, the editorial advocates.

Stocks Reach Recovery Peaks In Broad Rise

Strength of Government Issues Features Bond Market.

By Frederick Gardner.
Associated Press Financial Writer.

New York, Nov. 5.—In one of the broadest markets since 1929, stocks today were whirled up to new recovery peaks with gains of 1 to 5 or more points. Brokers attributed the second buying rush since the election largely to a revival of optimism for business and industry. Political influences, they said, appeared to be waning.

Whether there was an inflationary tinge to the proceedings was a matter of argument. At any rate U. S. Government securities enjoyed one of their widest advances in several years and other bonds pointed higher. Commodities held around peak levels.

The stock list encountered some selling here and there, but this was absorbed in most instances without much unsettlement.

On six different occasions during the session the ticker tape was behind dealings on the floor of the exchange. Transfers totalled 3,619,890 shares, the largest volume since last February 19. There were 965 separate issues traded against 909 Wednesday. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up .8 of a point at 72.5, a new top since April 20, 1931.

Commission houses reported heavy overseas buying. Leading foreign currencies declined as dollars were obtained to purchase American securities.

Coppers responded to another lift in the export price of the red metal. At the same time demand abroad caused another increase in foreign production quotas.

U. S. Gold Mounts To Another Peak

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board reported last night in its weekly statement that American gold stocks had attained another high, $11,056,000,000, during the week ended November 4. Addition of $27,000,000 came during the week despite the international monetary agreement with leading European powers which had been expected by many fiscal experts to result in slowing the inflow. The current gold total is $1,344,000,000 in excess of the level at this time last year.

Demands for month-end cash in meeting pay rolls caused an increase of $76,000,000 in money in circulation, bringing the total to $6,378,000,000. Resulting from this was a decrease of $39,000,000 in member bank reserve balances, which brought total reserve balances down to $6,693,000,000, a total estimated by the board to be about $2,140,000,000 in excess of legal requirements.

Brokers' Loans Rise $9,000,000 in Week

By the Associated Press.

Loans on securities to brokers and dealers, held by weekly reporting member banks in New York City, were reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve Board to have totaled $981,000,000 for the week ended Wednesday, an increase of $9,000,000 for the week. Loans for the corresponding week a year ago totaled $839,000,000.

The New York Stock Exchange reported yesterday that members' collateral borrowing at the close of business October 31 amounted to $974,928,$18, an increase of $3,396,774 over the September 30 total of $971,531,244.

N. Y. Telephone Gains.

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—The New York Telephone Co. today reported a net gain of 16,403 telephone stations in October, compared with 6,633 in October, 1935, and 1,202 in the same month in 1934.

Corn Startles Grain Pit With 3-Cent Jump

Domestic Scarcity and Marine Strike Are Chief Factors.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Skyrocketing virtually 3 cents a bushel late today, the corn market became for the time being the grain trade's chief attraction.

Broadened speculative trading, inspired by apparent likelihood that the marine strike may bring to a halt the importation of big quantities of Argentine corn into the United States, went hand in hand with the sudden upshoot of corn values. The spark which set the corn pit afire was word that general domestic scarcity of corn available for immediate use had hoisted No. 1 yellow corn to a premium of 19¾ cents a bushel over December contracts at Kansas City.

Corn closed buoyant 1⅞@2¾ cents above yesterday's finish, December 97⅞@98⅛, May, new, 92⅜@92½; July, new, 89½@89¾; wheat irregular, ¼ off to ⅞ up; December 115⅜@115½, May 113½@113⅝, July 99½; oats at ⅜@½ advance, December 42⅝, and rye showing ½@¾ cents bulge, December 85. The outcome in provisions was unchanged to 10 cents higher.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Continue Advance in Active Trading; Government Bonds Rise Sharply.

New York, Nov. 5.—Financial markets were less exuberant than was the case yesterday, but prices continued to move ahead in active trading in nearly all sections—bonds, stocks and commodities. Stocks pressed the market in the first half hour as piled-up orders swamped the slow ticker; but after that the pace was fast only at times. Prices were under their best toward the close, as profit taking increased. Sales increased to around 3,700,000 shares. December wheat closed ⅝ of a cent higher at 115½ cents a bushel.

No second thinking on the election changed anyone's views on the outlook for stocks, and the feeling in trading circles predominated that most of the current activity is based on expectation of inflation. Business news continued good, but seasonal recessions are appearing in some departments. Railroad freight car loadings for last week, according to reports of leading carriers, fell a little from the total of the preceding week, but maintained a large gain over a year ago. Merchandising companies continue to report large increases in sales volume, and the best season is yet to come.

Special Influence.

Considerations other than those strictly of inflation, and apart from the general improvement in business, again had an influence in setting prices for some stock groups. Coppers, for example, were swayed by the hardening price for the metal; but London observers predicted at least a temporary top for the rise in copper. Oil shares were favorites, and along with the extra dividends was the suggestion that if a code system similar to that of the NRA be revived, the leading oil companies will be helped.

The old codes were well designed to intrench the big companies, to regulate production and to fix prices. Improvement in public utilities possibly was a natural rebound from the excess of pessimism and the sales made by those who had bought utility stocks as an election bet, hoping for a sharp rise in case of New Deal defeat. In any event it is likely that public ardor for public whipping of the utilities is cooling. Sugar shares were stiffened by the expectation that the quota system would be continued, a measure designed to hold the cost of sugar to the consumer.

Before the profit-taking of the last hour struck the market a large number of stocks had run up 1 to 3 points, many of them reaching new high prices for the year. Public utilities recovered the greater part of the previous losses. Preferred utility stocks came back 1 to 5 points. Metals moved into new high ground, but the extent of the gains was smaller. Cerro de Pasco failed to hold an early advantage of more than 2 points. Andes extended its gain to 25 points in two weeks.

Some Profit Taking.

Steel shares were mixed. In the first few minutes Steel and Bethlehem sold at their best prices, but weakened at the close. Inland jumped nearly 4 points. Crucible revived. Motor shares did well in spite of the sales brought out by the swiftness of the advance yesterday. General Motors opened at a new high price, and Chrysler ran to a new top.

Railroad stocks again were backward with irregular price changes. The Alleghany group was bouyant and Great Northern rose a point. Unusual activity came into the motor accessory group, where the favorites were Briggs and Timken. Most of that section gave way a little. Oils were selective. Chemicals developed greater strength. Tobaccos and merchants were firm. Farm implements were dull.

Amusement stocks had an exciting day. With more than 600,000 shares changing hands during the first three hours, Radio scored its best gain in some time. The preferred was lifted 3 points. Paramount issues weakened a little, but Warner pressed forward.

Government Bonds Rise.

Even more conspicuous than the rise in stocks was the further extraordinary strength that developed in the Government bond market, because the reasons for it were more obscure. It scarcely can be said that Government bonds are going up because the country has pledged its faith in the Government. The majority of the millions who voted have no Government bonds and are unlikely to own any.

That market is almost wholly one for the banks and other financial institutions, where management decides price on the basis of interest rates, supply and demand, and only indirectly on fiscal policy. The Government's budget and its taxation program would be an important influence in a time when no such great necessity to borrow existed or when the banks had other means of employing their revenues.

Easy Money in Prospect.

As it is, the Government has aided in building up excess reserves for the banks and largely because of the fact that business demands for credit still are comparatively small the banks have nothing to do except put their otherwise idle funds into Government bonds. That necessity at a time when the easy money policy of the authorities (plus slack business) is holding interest rates to a low level sets the prices for the bonds. Advances of a quarter to a half point (large for the Government bond market) were the rule. The market reported no particular rush to buy, but the supply to meet such demand as came in was unusually scarce.

Presumably financial institutions have decided that for a good many months at least this country is assured of cheap credit and high excess bank reserves—a continuation of old policies. Any holding off until after the election, on the chance that the outlook might change, scarcely is justified now.

British Buying.

The steady buying of American securities for British account, which has been in progress intermittently for many weeks, and which has been reported especially heavy since the election, was blamed for the slight heaviness in the pound today. No substantial offset in the form of repatriation of French and continental balances has existed and the franc today even suggested a minor trend away from Paris.

The decline of more than a point in the franc surprised those who do not realize that a Government stabilization fund does not stand as a stone wall against offerings of that Nation's currencies, but merely serves to scrape off the peaks and fill in the deep depressions. Political developments in France are not considered propitious in the foreign exchange market and there was a little speculative selling on the overnight news developments. French franc futures for 90 days, which have been quoted at a discount of around 7 points, widened to 10 points discount.

Dividends.

Today brought an unusually large number of extra and special dividends brought on largely through the wish of the corporations to avoid a penalty tax. With the New Deal victory in the election, the chances are that the penalty tax will be collected next spring, although some of its worst features may be modified later. To avoid payment of the tax corporations between now and the end of the year will add considerably to the dividend payments already piled up. Such announcements help to create an atmosphere of whoopla in the stock market, but are scarcely reasons for sound investment.

Electricity Output At New High Mark

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—Production of electricity in the week ended October 31 totaled 2,175,810,000 kilowatt hours, a new peak, the Edison Electric Institute reported today. This represents a gain of .4 of 1 per cent over output of 2,166,656,000 kilowatt hours in the previous week and a gain of 14.7 per cent over 1,895,817,000 kilowatt hours in the same week last year.

Safe Deposit Group Prepares For Convention

By Thomas M. Cahill.

The safe deposit section of the District of Columbia Bankers Association is making preparations for the convention of the National Safe Deposit Association in this city next May. Approximately 300 delegates are expected. John F. Hillyard, assistant trust officer, National Bank of Washington, is chairman of the section, and its executive council consists of Mrs. Helen R. Sharpe, vice president; P. C. Brady, secretary; Andrew R. Walden and T. E. Elgin, Richard E. Harris, an assistant treasurer of American Security & Trust Co., has been appointed general chairman for the convention and is now forming his committees.

Local Clearings.

Local bank clearings in October amounted to $103,532,240.70, a gain of $16,280,690.29 over those of the month a year ago, latest figures of the Washington Clearing House Association reveal. This is the fourth time this year local clearings have passed the $100,000,000 mark. For ten months of 1936 they total $927,118,855.83, in comparison with $765,015,852.68 for the similar comparative period last year. This is a gain of $162,103,003.15.

Clearings by months this year compare as follows with the monthly summaries for the corresponding months in 1935:

January	$86,990,549.44	$69,566,823.40

Fleming Is 46.

President Robert V. Fleming, of Riggs National Bank, celebrated his forty-sixth birthday this week. In 1907, at 17, he entered the employ of that bank as a runner. In 1925, at 35, he was elected president of the institution. In November, 1935, he became president of the American Bankers Association. In January, 1935, he was elected chairman of the directorate of Riggs National Bank.

R. V. FLEMING.

Julius E. Loh was elected a vice president of the Second National Bank at a meeting of its directorate this week. Mr. Loh, a native of Macan, Ga., has been a resident of Washington for the past 3½ years. Frederick S. Beyer was elected cashier of the institution at the same meeting. President John A. Reilly has announced the G street northwest branch of the bank as its future main office.

Walter S. Pratt, jr., was re-elected president of the Equitable Co-operative Building Association at the annual meeting of stockholders this week. Other officers re-elected were Harry G. Meem and Gilbert Grosvenor, vice presidents; Edward L. McAleer, secretary; J. Harold McDowell, assistant secretary. Directors elected were Ralph P. Barnard, Frederick V. Coville, Charles H. Doing, Gilbert Grosvenor, Arthur B. Heaton, Robert L. Lewis, Edward L. McAleer, Harry G. Meem, Theodore W. Noyes, Arthur Peter, Walter S. Pratt, jr., and Frank J. Stryker. The fifty-seventh annual report showed continued successful business.

G. A. Pendleton has assumed his new duties as assistant treasurer of McLachlen Banking Corporation.

Roderic Peters and Seward Abbott were honored at the annual sales convention of the Servel Electrolux sales division of Servel, Inc. They received gold medals for five years' service with the corporation.

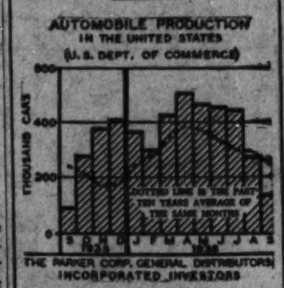
General Electric Sales.

R. P. Harrington, appliance sales manager of the National Electrical Supply Co., announced recently the results of a sales conference by telephone originating in the Bridgeport, Conn., office of the General Electric Co., with a Nation-wide circuit in which the local company was included. A total of $1,000,000 retail value in orders was placed by distributors with the General Electric Co. in an hour and ten minutes.

Washington Gas Light Co. has received an award from the American Gas Association for being ahead in a Nation-wide refrigerator selling contest. President Marcy L. Sperry, of that company, has been elected a member of the board of directors of the association.

Trust Investment Officer Frank M. Perley, American Security & Trust Co., is back from a tour of Europe. He visited the stock exchanges of London, Brussels, and Amsterdam, and was in the Paris bourse when the first hint of the devaluation of the franc reached that institution.

Production of Autos 55% Over Year Ago



Boston, Nov. 5.—Following the seasonal trend the number of motor vehicles turned out in September dropped from August production but passed a year ago by 55 per cent. There are 26,000,000 motorists in this country who paid $255,000,000 in Federal taxes during the first nine months of this year.

Cotton Is Steady; December at 11.89

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—Irregular fluctuations in cotton today reflected near month covering and hedge selling or liquidation in the forward positions. March sold off from 11.90 to 11.82 and closed at 11.86 with prices generally 9 points net higher to 6 lower at the close.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was steady early today on renewed covering and commission house buying promoted by steadiness of lard and cotton, but prices reacted later under local selling. Final quotations were unchanged to 3 points net lower. Sales, 61 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal; December closed 9.97; January, 10.05; March, 10.18; May, 10.22.

Workers' Wages Raised Here and in Canada

Youngstown, Ohio, Nov. 5 (AP).—A substantial increase in the business of the General Fireproofing Co. will result in a pay increase for 1,500 employes effective November 9, the company announced today.

The amount of the increase will be based on the employes' rate cards, the company said, and will be determined this week.

Timmins, Ontario, Nov. 5 (AP).—Management of Hollinger Gold Mines today announced an increase of 5 cents an hour in the basic rate of wages at Hollinger, McIntyre and Dome Mines. The increase, effective November 1, is estimated to add about $700,000 to the company's pay roll.

The increases will be about $400,000 annually at Hollinger; $170,000 at McIntyre, and $130,000 at Dome.

Refined Sugar Advanced.

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—Leading producers have advanced the price of refined sugar, effective at the close of business today, to a 4.65-cent-a-pound basis from the present 4.50-cent level.

Socony Oil Co. Votes Special 25c Dividend

Other Corporations to Pay Extras; Firestone Raises Rate.

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—The harvest of extra dividends resulting from the undistributed profits surtax was swelled today by substantial payments voted to stockholders by a number of leading corporations.

Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. announced a special distribution of 25 cents a share. John A. Brown, president, said it was authorized in order to reduce the company's tax liability on undistributed income, and added the management would have preferred to retain the cash it represents "for capital expenditures and debt payments." The dividend is payable December 15 to stock of record November 18.

Servel Co.

Servel Co., of Evansville, Ind., ordered an extra dividend of 40 cents and increased the quarterly dividend to 25 cents from 15 cents in previous quarters. Both dividends are payable December 1 to stock of record November 18.

Bigelow-Sanford Carpet.

Bigelow-Sanford Carpet Co., with plants at Amsterdam, N. Y., and Thompsonville, Conn., declared a special dividend of $2 and a dividend of 25 cents on the common stock, both payable December 1 to stock of record November 16. The company paid 25 cents three months ago.

Timken Roller Bearing.

Directors of Timken Roller Bearing Co. declared an extra dividend of 75 cents and a quarterly disbursement of 75 cents on September 5, an extra of 25 cents and a quarterly of 50 cents were paid. Dividends are playable December 5 to stock of record Novembr 18.

Atlas Powder.

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 5 (AP).—The directors of the Atlas Powder Co. declared today the regular dividend of 50 cents and the extra dividend of 25 cents a share on common stock, payable December 10 on stock of record November 30. The directors said they would consider later another special dividend on common stock to be paid between December 10 and 31, after the effect of the surtax on undistributed profits is more accurately determined.

American Steel Foundries.

Directors of American Steel Foundries, Inc., ordered a payment of $1 on the common, the first since 1931, and a preferred disbursement of $17.50 on arrears as well as a regular of $1.75.

Phelps-Dodge Corporation.

The board of Phelps Dodge Corporation ordered a special payment of 25 cents a share, in addition to the regular of the same amount.

Harbison Walker.

Harbison Walker refractories ordered an extra of 50 cents and a regular of the same amount, while the board of Holland Furnace Co. ordered a dividend of $1, the first in four years.

Firestone Increase.

Akron, Ohio, Nov. 5 (AP).—Directors of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., today, authorized an increase in the quarterly dividend on common stock from 30 cents to 50 cents per share. There are 1,933,000 common shares outstanding. Directors also declared the regular quarterly dividend on 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock, series A, amounting to $1.50 per share payable December 1 to stockholders of record, November 15.

Holiday Cuts Bank Clearings In Past Week

But Total for 22 Cities Is 6.2 Per Cent Over Year Ago.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 5.—The volume of bank clearings for the short week, occasioned by the election day holiday, was curtailed slightly.

The total for 22 leading cities, as reported to Dun & Bradstreet, for the five days ended Wednesday, November 4, was $5,298,156,000, against $4,987,404,000 last year, a gain of 6.2 per cent.

Clearings at New York City amounted to $3,323,716,000, a gain of 8.4 per cent over the $3,067,022,000 in the similar 1935 period. At outside centers the aggregate was $1,974,440,000, which was 2.8 per cent above the $1,920,382,000 recorded a year ago.

Strasburg Youth Wins High Farm Fair Score

Winchester, Va., Nov. 5.—Mackall Pangle, Strasburg, with a score of 330.3, was high individual in the judging contests held during the Frederick County Future Farmers' Fair, it was announced today. Morris Boyer, Middletown, this county, was second with a score, but, 2 below Pangle. Paul Hanna, Stephens City, was third, and Harry Fleming, Woodstock, fourth.

The high team was from Toms Brook. Other leaders in the order named were Stephens City, Strasburg and Front Royal. The winning team, a member of the Shenandoah County Federation, will receive a loving cup.

Edith Maxwell Counsel to Ask Venue Change

Smith Leaves for Wise, Va., to Present Motion to Judge Skeen.

Charles Henry Smith, of Alexandria, counsel for Edith Maxwell, left last night for Wise, Va., where he will ask Circuit Judge H. A. W. Skeen for a change of venue.

Should Judge Skeen deny that motion, Smith will ask that a venire be called to Wise from some other Virginia county. The Alexandria lawyer will argue that because of the bitterness growing out of Edith Maxwell's first trial, in which she was sentenced to 25 years in the penitentiary by a jury of mountaineers, it will be impossible to find an impartial jury in Wise County for the next trial.

The first trial of the 22-year-old mountain school teacher was widely publicized. There were many reasons for this. To begin with the tragedy occurred in a mountain region made famous by John Fox, jr., in his novel, "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine." Then, there were the circumstances: Edith's returning home late at night; the quarrel with Trigg Maxwell, her father; the father's attack on her, and Edith's action in striking back at him with a slipper. One hour after he struck him over the head with the slipper, he was dead.

But the thing that most attracted the attention of the world was the verdict of the jury at the trial a year ago. That verdict was murder in the first-degree, which means malicious, premeditated murder.

Wise County was widely condemned for that verdict. It was called a backwoods area and its residents were frequently referred to as "hill billies." The truth is, of course, that the county, like any other, has its good and its bad residents, some well educated, some illiterate.

All classes, however, resent the publicity given to the county, although some residents admit that if it had not been for this publicity, Edith Maxwell now probably would be nothing but a number in the State penitentiary.

The point Attorney Smith will make before Judge Skeen is that, because of the publicity, it would be difficult, if not impossible, to get a jury, the members of which would be absolutely impartial, as required by law.

State's Attorney Fred Greer, who prosecuted Edith the last time and will prosecute her again, has announced that he will fight the motion to take the trial away from Wise.

Post readers, whose contributions financed the fight which led to the granting of a new trial for Miss Maxwell, are now contributing to a fund to meet the expenses of the defense at this trial.

Brother Confesses Insurance Murder

Elkhart, Ind., Nov. 5 (AP).—Police said Lester Bedford Slack, 34, house painter, confessed today to poisoning his brother, Elgy Slack, 39, in order to collect his brother's insurance so that he could take a trip to Florida. Elgy Slack died Monday night.

Police found two $500 policies on Elgy Slack's life naming Lester as beneficiary. The officers said Mrs. Helen M. Kercheval, of Mishawaka, and Lester Slack planned to be married November 28, and Slack told her they would go to Florida for the winter.

Authorities said they planned to investigate the death, last spring, of Lester Slack's wife. She was believed to have died of pneumonia.

Ickes Invited to Laying Of College Cornerstone

Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes was invited yesterday to participate in ceremonies surrounding the laying of the cornerstone of the new clinic and laboratory of the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond, according to the Associated Press.

Dr. W. T. Sanger, president of the college, said in letters of invitation to Ickes, Representative Andrew J. Montague, of Richmond, and Senators Byrd and Glass, the date of the ceremony was tentatively set for Tuesday, December 1, the Founders' Day anniversary of the college. The new building was made possible by a $300,000 gift from a friend of the college and a Government grant. The total cost of the project when completed will exceed a half million dollars.

Mediterranean Rule Shift Seen if Rebels Win

New York, Nov. 5 (U.P.).Don Fernando de los Rios, Ambassador of Spain, today said that a victory by the insurgents in Spain would result in a complete change in the balance of power in the Mediterranean.

France and England, he pointed out, in a talk before the Council of Foreign Affairs, would find commercial and military routes controlled by Germany nad Italy.
